The England of 1914.
Mr. Hayes' Beer Flat.
The Family of Five.
Cancer and Oxygen.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE SENATE, and many more or less sentimental Americans, discuss the extent to which we should obey Great Britain as regards our national defense program.

Why not imitate Great Britain in the days of her power and self-confidence before the war, instead of following her in these days of her diffidence and financial distress?

BEFORE THE WAR Britain sang:

"We've got the men, we've got the ships, we've got the money, too."

At present they haven't got the money. We have it.

When the British had the money they built what they pleased, when they pleased, and told the world that they intended always to have a fleet equal to that of any other two nations on earth.

WE DON'T need a giant fleet on the water to furnish targets for fliers.

We need strength, the greatest fighting air and submarine fleets in the world. We should be able, at any time, to say to any nation:

"Don't interfere with us and we shall not interfere with you.

"But, if you do interfere with us, we shall immediately destroy your most important cities. If you think we can't do it, come and see."

IN CHICAGO, Jack Hayes kept a "beer flat" supplying bootleg liquor. Such places pay blackmail to racketeers and extortionists. Hayes, ill in bed, told the police he was expecting extortionists. The police hid in his beer flat, the extortionists arrived at 2 a. m. saying they were policemen. Mrs. Hayes told them:

"Some police officers are here now."

They shot and killed Hayes in bed. The police shot and killed two of them.

The Chicago police have energy. They do shoot, and when they shoot, they kill.

DR. TUCKER, of the U. S. Naval Hospital at Norfolk, discovers in fruits and vegetables "Five good germs," called "The Family of Five." They give health and strength, supplying vitamins, life elements, essential to existence.

They are missing in green fruits, and die when fruit decays, making it poisonous. They are not injured by heat, and exist in canned fruits and vegetables. A vitally important discovery.

DR. SUNDSTROEM, of the University of California, has cured cancer in rats by keeping them in tanks under low atmospheric pressure.

The "low oxygen tension" does not kill the rats, but cured 83 per cent of the rats subjected to it, and afflicted with cancer. If diminished oxygen tension kills cancer, perhaps increased tension would cure it.

JEAN MERMOZ, having flown the Atlantic in a seaplane in 20 hours and 12 minutes, was received in triumph at Rio Janeiro last night. The French are great fliers.

And the French government, one of the most intelligent on earth, knows enough to build an air fleet sufficiently powerful to keep the rest of Europe, Great Britain included, in awe.

We should import some of those Frenchmen for use in Washington.

WHILE the world congratulates France on this great flying achievement, it sympathizes deeply with Mexico in its loss of high-grade fliers, caused by unforeseen weather conditions.

The courage and skill shown by the Mexican aviators is worthy of all praise and admiration.

AT SHOLAPUR and Peshawar, British troops are reported to have crushed the Gandhi revolt.

On the ground, native troops do the fighting, and take their share of the wounds.

In the air, intelligent British with bombing planes impress the Hindus as safely as an owl flying over a field mouse nest.

THERE IS NO universal national feeling in India. Mohammedans hate Hindus and vice versa. There are tens of millions of both. The native-born Indians in the British army fight for Britain against their brothers "loyally."

Three hundred million Asiatics in India are kept in hand by only 200,000 Britishers on the spot—fewer than one-tenth of 1 per cent.

MR. MACAULAY, head of the Canadian Sun Life Assurance Company, expects our stocks to regain soon 60 per cent of the losses made in the big 1929 break. He thinks that 1931 probably, 1932 surely, will see "the 1929 peak once more."

Mr. Macaulay's opinion is important, for he is the world's largest buyer of good American stocks. Some that you may have bought are probably not in his portfolio.

SPROUL GUILTY IN BAD CHECK CASE

2 U. S. GIRLS SURVIVE IN GOLF TILT

Collett and Hicks Reach Quarter Finals, Former Beating English Champ

International News Service.

FORMBY, England, May 14. — Glenna Collett, the queen, and Helen Hicks, the crown princess of American golf, went serenely forward this afternoon to the round before the semi-finals in the British women's championship.

Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. Leo Federman, their teammates, went turbulently out of the championship.

Glenna, having won a bitter 21-hole match from the British champion, Molly Gourlay, this morning, won as she pleased from Beryl Brown, another Britton, in the fifth round this afternoon, 7 and 6. It was Helen's unpleasant but necessary task to eliminate Mrs. Federman in the same round by 4 and 3.

ORCUTT ELIMINATED

Miss Orcutt was eliminated, 6 and 4, by Enid Wilson, former British champion and main hope of her compatriots since the defeat of Miss Gourlay.

Miss Hicks will meet Miss Wilson tomorrow morning, while Miss Collett plays Hilda Cameron. If the two American negotiate the hurdles of the quarter-final play of the morning they will meet in the semi-finals in the afternoon.

FREIGHT RATES INDUSTRIAL BLOW HERE

Short Haul Charges Held Unfair and Discriminatory; May Force Plants to Move

The railroads are taking a step which will seriously impede Pittsburgh's industrial development, F. A. Ogden, general freight agent for the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, said yesterday in commenting on the complaint he has lodged with the Public Service Commission against the increases in short haul rates which the carriers are planning to put into effect May 20.

He said:

"The new rates will be a severe blow to industries in this district. They unjustly discriminate against manufacturers here.

"The unfairness to Pittsburgh is seen in the fact that the new tariffs affect so-called line haul rates, but not those in the switching areas of this or any other district.

"The Pittsburgh switching area has a maximum length of only 10 miles and it includes only a small part of the industrial district.

DECLARES COSTS DOUBLED

"Other switching reas are far larger. Chicago's switching district is about 30 miles in exten' and the area served is about nine times as large as the switching district here.

"Many factories here are having the cost of getting their steel shipped from mills to their plant doubled while, if they were in another district, the costs would be unchanged."

6 YEAR TERM CONFRONTS PREACHER

Evangelist of 'Glory Barn' Convicted of $3,000 Fraud Against Crippled Invalid

Evangelist John W. Sproul was found guilty on three charges of passing worthless checks by a jury of four women and eight men in Criminal Court today.

The jury deliberated 45 minutes after a trial that lasted less than two hours.

The maximum penalty is two years' imprisonment or $100 fine or both on each charge, according to Assistant District Attorney M. Barney Cohen, who prosecuted the case. Sproul gave notice he would seek a new trial.

ACCUSED BY INVALID

From his wheel chair, F. J. Vogel, invalid former railroader, of Millvale, testified that Sproul had borrowed $5,000 from him last year to build his "Glory Barn" at Parnassus.

In repaying the debt, Sproul gave him five checks each for $1,000, Vogel testified. Two were good, but three came back from the Mellon National Bank with the notation that Sproul's account there was closed.

Once Vogel broke down and wept in testifying regarding his wife and two daughters. His daughter, Anna, hurried to his side, placed her arm around him and consoled him until he regained his composure.

ACCOUNT CLOSED

A representative of the Mellon Bank testified Sproul's account had been closed because of "too many bad checks coming through."

Sproul did not take the witness stand. His counsel, Attorney A. F. Burkardt, argued that his client was not guilty of violating the bad check law in giving post-dated checks without funds in bank.

Judge W. T. Darr, of Jefferson County, presided.

Another charge of converting to his own use $1,000 advanced by J. M. Luterman, of 3131 Forbes street, to pay telephone bills against Sproul's radio broadcasting station WMBJ, was quashed today by Judge H. H. Rowand on motion of Luterman's attorney, Benjamin Diamond. The claim had been satisfied, Diamond told the court.

VOTE FOR OPEN SUNDAY GROWS

Advocates of an open Sunday continue to pile up an overwhelming lead over supporters of the existing closed Sunday in the Blue Law poll of registered voters of Pittsburgh at the end of the first week of tabulating ballots.

Voters from all the wards of the city have been heard from in the pool. The latest districts to file returns, Sheraden, Carrick and Mt. Oliver, give some support to the Blue Laws but it is surpassed by the sentiment recorded for appeal.

The total of ballots tabulated is 7,157, divided as follows:

For the Blue Laws	743
For Modification	429
For Repeal	5,985

Of the ballots cast during the week those favoring repeal of the Blue Laws outnumber those seeking to continue the law on a ratio of eight-to-one.

SLUSH PROBERS COMING HERE

Senators Gerald P. Nye and Robert F. Wagner, members of the Senate Campaign Fund Committee, will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning for personal observation of election conditions here.

While here they will conduct no formal investigation of slush fund charges hurled by the Davis and Grundy factions during the primary campaign.

Senator Nye, chairman of the committee, is reported, however, to be particularly anxious to examine the efforts being made to insure a fair registration of voters as a means of preventing a corrupt primary.

When the Senators arrive here, they will go into conference with United States District Attorney Louis E. Graham and with Allegheny County Prosecutor Andrew L. Park. Both have pledged their

PIRATES, PHILS IDLE TODAY

Rain and wet grounds today caused the postponement of the second game of the series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies at Forbes Field. The contest was called off early this morning by officials of the local club.

No date was set for the playoff, but it likely will serve to make up a double-header between the two clubs later in the season.

The Phillies won the opening game yesterday, 14 to 8.

The Pirates, who yesterday announced the release of Pitcher Lil Stoner to the Fort Worth Club, of the Texas League, today recalled Infielder Ben Sankey from Wichiat to sertngthen their reserve corps. With Pie Traynor ailing and Stuart Clarke out of action because of a twisted ankle the Pirates find themselves without a utility infielder. Sankey will report at once.

TRAFFIC PLAN DENOUNCED

Council's approval of the so-called Plan "T"—or one-level project—for the Pennsylvania Railroad improvements at Eleventh street would be "the worst traffic blunder in the city's history," L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the Citizens' Planning Commission, declared today.

An ordinance providing for the "T" plan was introduced in Council yesterday and was to be considered in committee late today.

Monteverde said:

"I cannot understand why they want to adopt this plan with every department and bureau of the city advising them to adopt Plan "Z."

COMPROMISE LIKELY

The "Z" project provides for an elaborate plan of traffic ramps and overhead crossings to speed traffic in preference to the simpler method involved in Plan "T."

Monteverde said he understood an effort would be made to have Council adopt a compromise proposal which would permit plan "Z" to become effective at a future date.

Six and possibly seven of the nine councilmanic votes are reported in favor of the "T" project. Lack of funds for the other plan

'Stein Song' Wins Vallee Varsity 'M'

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—The voice that has charmed thousands of feminine hearts by its crooning melodies last night won an honor usually reserved for giants of the gridiron and other athletic heroes.

Bryan Memorial To Be Half Mile From Capitol

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS.)—A handsome memorial to the late William Jennings Bryan, the "Great Commoner" and Democratic leader, will be erected in Washington, but it can't be within a half mile of the Capitol.

The House Library Committee, in reporting a bill passed by the Senate authorizing the memorial, specified it cannot be placed on any part of the Mall, between the Capitol and Lincoln Memorial, which are in line with the Washington monument and the reflecting pool.

The memorial is to be erected by a private association. It probably will be a tower with carillons.

TROLLEY CRASH JOLTS 40

Forty passengers were jolted and a woman fainted when an Arlington avenue street car crashed into the trailer of a Beechview-Dormont car at Smithfield and Carson streets during the rush hour this morning.

The Arlington car, taking the Carson street switch instead of the Tunnel switch, rammed into the center doors of the trailer as it swung past, damaging the door and shattering windows.

HORDES OF INDIA REBELS SEIZED

SHOLAPUR, India, May 14.—(AP.)—Wholesale arrests of civil disobedience leaders, including two men suspected of the murder and burning of two constables, occurred here today.

Troops of the Royal Ulster Rifles, aided by civil police, began combing the city for Gandhi followers. During their cleaning-up operations they came upon a veritable arsenal of swords and spears in a private house.

NATIVES LEAVE CITY

Before dawn more than 200 natives had been arrested in connection with the curfew order which last night forbade citizens being abroad in the streets between 7 p. m. and 6 a. m. Some of these were released with a warning. Others were held on suspicion of being ringleaders in the campaign of killings and arson of last week. It was stated officially that those not brought before a military court would be given civil trials for minor offenses.

An exodus of Sholapur inhabitants today followed the curfew

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS.)—Lieut. Alford J. Williams, Jr., premier Navy flier, bade farewell to the Navy today after 13 years' service.

Hammerstein's Old Friend Posts Widow's Bail

NEW YORK, May 14.—(INS.)—Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, widow of Oscar Hammerstein, who suffered the humiliation of arrest, declared today the charges against her were "absurd" and expressed the opinion that her "enemies" were at work against her.

Mrs. Hammerstein was arrested Monday in her room at the Hotel Winthrop by three detectives. She spent Monday night in jail because she was unable to find any one to furnish bail and, yesterday morning, was arraigned in Jefferson Market Women's Court. She was released in $500 bail pending a hearing next Tuesday on morality charges.

Bail was furnished by Saul Birns, a radio dealer, who had been a friend and admirer of the late Mr. Hammerstein. He did not know Mrs. Hammerstein, but had read of her plight in the newspapers.

Mrs. Hammerstein gave her age as 47.

Aftr her release she said:

"The same enemies who robbed me of all I owned must be back of this."

She had been living at the hotel for the last six months. She said she was writing a biography of her late husband.

CAPT. GOSS SHOWS U. S. DESTROYER STRENGTH HIT BY PACT

ARM NEEDED FOR 'SUBS' CRIPPLED

Britain, Japan to Retain Modern Vessels and Have Big Advantage in Bases

By CAPT. N. H. GOSS, United States Navy.

(United States Naval Academy, 1905; commanded destroyers and convoy escorts in European war zone during World War; graduate naval war college; now commanding the U. S. Ship Sirius; Capt. Goss is a practical sea-going officer, who has devoted much study to the subject of sea power and is a well known writer on naval subjects).

The London Treaty assigns the following destroyer limits: America, 150,000 tons; Great Britain, 150,000 tons; Japan, 105,500 tons.

Present totals are: America, 223 of 226,313 tons; Great Britain, 179 of 196,761 tons; Japan, 115 of 129,375 tons.

Including following destroyer leaders: America, none; Great Britain, 13; Japan, 24.

This treaty increases the relative strength of both the British and Japanese by requiring us to scrap very extensively in the only type in which e have any superiority in tonnage or numbers of serviceable vessels.

Strength Lost

It also decreases our strength in destroyers by increasing the relative value of the more modern British and Japanese vessels which our present greater number tends to neutralize.

For the same reason it adds to the relative value of the British and Japanese leaders which we at present lack entirely. It authorizes Japan to retain more destroyer leaders than we could build under the new restrictions.

The destroyer limits prescribed give an increased value to present British and Japanese superiority in bases.

A previous discussion on submarines indicated how the proposed London treaty provision assigning Japan an equality of submarine tonnage would upset the ratio in strength of other types.

This is particularly true as regards destroyers. Destroyers in addition to their normal fleet work of carrying torpedoes are the natural anti-submarine weapon. As the war showed, submarines are very elusive and hard to find even in restricted waters and a great dispersal of effort is necessary to hunt them down and prevent unexpected attacks. This naturally requires many units in order to be effective. Even modern destroyers are comparatively small vessels of limited radius and of restricted efficiency on the high seas when separated by material distances from their bases.

Bases Needed

Well-located and convenient bases have a similar effect on destroyer strength as they have on submarines, only more so, since destroyers must remain on the surface and are relatively more handicapped by bad weather — to the point of being helpless in very heavy weather. They have great speed in smooth water, but very little in a heavy sea.

Normally bad weather, like the sea caused by trade winds, hampers destroyers to the point where they are easy prey to larger vessels like cruisers.

This is not only an example of how types are dependent on each other, but illustrates how an equal ratio of destroyer tonnage may result in an uneven ratio of actual strength under different conditions. Not only must destroyers be numerous to be effective on account of their dispersed activities of hunting submarines, but, being very lightly built, they are naturally very vulnerable. So considerable losses must be expected in destroyer operations, especially if they are any great distance from a base.

Obsolete Vessels

As a result of wartime construction, we have had up to the present time an actual excess in destroyer tonnage. Our destroyers, however, are all of the same general class and all are semi-obsolete, due to their age and to the fact that they were hastily designed during the war.

For fleet work, in order to be efficient, destroyers must be led by somewhat larger vessels, called leaders, which are super-destroyers with somewhat greater gunpower, better sea-keeping qualities and large enough to provide space for efficient control of a group or squadron operating together.

Since we have not authorized any destroyers since the war we lack this leader type altogether and are accordingly hampered in comparison with the British and Japanese who have each constructed leaders.

The Japanese also took advantage of the unrestricted opportunity following the Washington conference to authorize and construct an extensive destroyer program which are naturally modern vessels embodying all previous experience in their design.

The British true to their sound custom of continuous construction of some war craft of all the principal types in order to keep up to date by modern development have continued to build a number of destroyers since the Washington conference which too are naturally up to date vessels. Include additional leaders, are more modern and consequently more efficient than ours.

Limit too Low

A destroyer force of over 100,000 tons for the Japanese would provide them a very effective force since they have a large proportion of new vessels, led by leaders. This force would be formidable in comparison with ours when we consider the disparity in base facilities available to each. While we would naturally not expect any destroyer strength beyond the accepted ratio of 5-5-3, the limit established by the London conference of 150,000 tons would be very low considering all the duties that must be undertaken by our destroyers.

Unless we immediately embark on a new program including not only the construction of leaders but the entire modernization of our destroyer force as well as replacement of all existing vessels, a very costly procedure, the scrapping of our present destroyers which this treaty requires would leave us greatly inferior to the British and no margin of destroyer strength with which to overcome the increased Japanese submarine ratio.

GAINS SHOWN BY BOROUGHS

Additional census figures made public today show gains in population of the North Boroughs.

Bellevue, with its present population of 10,250 as compared with 8,198 for 1920, is credited with making the largest gains. Avalon's population is fixed at 5,932 as against that of 5,277 for 1920. The borough of Edgeworth's total is 1,667, which is an increase over its old total of 1,373.

Tarentum also showed an increase, with a population of 9,539. Tarentum's 1920 population was 8,925.

Four townships, McCandless, Frazer, Marshall and O'Hara, were also released and show gains. McCandless Township made the greatest progress. The present population reaches 2,647, while the 1920 figures show 1,465. O'Hara Township has 5,127 as compared with 4,672 for 1920. A gain of over 600 is registered in Frazer Township. Frazer now has a population of 1,641. The old figure was 1,035. In Marshall Township the present number of 1,265 residents compares favorably with the old number of 1,140.

A trip back home by airplane is in store for Mike Metrovith, 14, of 3052 Preble avenue, who is being held in Wellington, Kans., as a runaway, according to P. E. Moran, a private detective, who will return him.

Departing by train last night for Columbus, Moran planned to take a plane for Wichita, and go from there to Wellington by train. On his return with the boy, the same transportation will be used Moran announced.

Metrovitch, a freshman at Oliver High School, ran away from home March 29, it was said. His whereabouts became known when he was arrested in the Kansas town.

feated in the fourth round and Miss Orcutt and Mrs. Federman in the fifth.

The American casualties of the morning left the lower half of the draw solidly British and disposed of any chance that two American players might go to the finals.

Miss Collett's morning match with Miss Crowley was one of the most brilliant of the American girl's career.

After the regulation 18 holes had been completed with the match square in holes and medal score—80 each—the first two extra holes were halved in fours.

At the twenty-first hole Miss Courlay had taken six strokes and was still six feet from the hole while Miss Collett's ball was 20 feet from the pin in three, leaving her three putts to win the hole and match.

The English girl then rushed across the green to congratulate her American rival.

Friends rescued Glenna from a surging gallery of autograph hunters and escorted her to the clubhouse for a brief rest before the start of her fifth round match with Miss Brown.

Veteran observers said Miss Collett's titanic struggle with Joyce Wethered in the British finals of 1929 was the only recent rival to the struggle of today between the two trim girl golfers, Miss Collett and Miss Gourlay.

Hiker, 43, Enters 'Endurance Walk' Against Youth

Joe Miller, Boston young man, who is trying to break the long-distance walking record at old Exposition Park, has a rival.

"Just to show what an old man can do, I will outwalk Miller even though I am nearly twice as old."

Miller says he will get $1,000 from an uncle if he keeps going until July 11. He and Ford rest 15 minutes each hour. Miller had what he described as a "bad night" last night and ambled wearily through the rain today.

ADAMS ADMITS HUGE COST IN NAVAL PACT

Prefers Billion Expense to Competition; Pratt and Stimson Defend Treaty

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Two cabinet officers and an admiral defended the London naval treaty today at two senatorial committee hearings.

Secretary Adams, before the Naval Committee, conceded that if the United States built up to the treaty limits it might cost around $1,000,000,000, but he insisted even that would be better than the old game of competition.

STIMSON DEFENDS BARGAIN

Concluding three days before the Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary Stimson agreed with hostile questioners that parity in British-American cruiser strength would not be reached until after 1936, but argued nothing better could be expected.

Admiral William V. Pratt, commander of the battle fleet, followed Stimson with a declaration the treaty was "very satisfactory;" and that although he was on record as favoring eight-inch gun cruisers he would rather have the variety of big and little guns provided by the new agreement.

He described the six-inchers as preferable in bad visibility and added that "you don't have good visibility in the Pacific."

SATISFACTORY TO HIM

Chairman Borah asked:

"Is this treaty satisfactory to you?"

"Yes sir, it suits me," Pratt answered. And when I say that I know if we had any fighting now I would have to do it."

Borah asked Pratt if he had changed his mind on the eight-inch and six-inch cruisers.

He answered:

"I have. I have a very definite reason which has just come up, to prefer a six-inch, but I would like to tell you that in private."

ADAMS AIDS DEFENSE

Secretary Adams upheld the treaty section by section against an assertion by Chairman Hale, of the Naval Committee, that the American delegation modified "radically" American naval policy. Walsh, of Massachusetts, seconded Hale in questioning various treaty provisions.

Both secretaries emphasized the difficulties facing the London conference and insisted the United States got all that was humanly possible out of the negotiations.

Royal Couple View U. S. Art in Rome

ROME, May 14.—(AP.)—The King and Queen today visited the exposition of the American Academy and inspected works of New World artists.

The message said the steamer Principe Asturias sank and the Teresa Talla suffered heavy damage. It failed to state whether the crews were safe. The ships were small and belonged to the Catalana Talla Company.

ATTACK DRAWS O'MALLEY FIRE

Pat O'Malley today denounced as a malicious attempt to defeat his candidacy for Congress a letter written by Attorney George P. Kountz, which assails O'Malley's record.

In this letter, addressed to the Pennsylvania Elections Association, Kountz points out that O'Malley was convicted of obstructing election officers in Pittsburgh in 1923. Sentenced to two years in jail, O'Malley was pardoned after five months by then Gov. Pinchot.

O'MALLEY'S REPLY

O' Malley said:

"Attorney Kountz may have written that letter but it was inspired by the gang of my opponent, P. J. Sullivan. Defeat is staring Sullivan in the face and he is willing to go to extremes in a futile effort to avoid it.

"The voters in the Thirty-fourth Congressional District all know that I was convicted on that charge. And they also know that Gov. Pinchot saw fit to pardon me. That conviction does not bar me from taking my seat as a Congressman any more than Paddy Sullivan will bar me. Let the voters decide whether I am more competent of representing them than Paddy Sullivan is."

CANDIDACY APPROVED

In his letter Kountz accepted an invitation to join the Pennsylvania Elections Association, and he went on to ask:

"Do you take active steps to prevent election of men who have been indicted, prosecuted and sentenced for election frauds?

"I am not running for office nor representing any part or faction now contending for office, in fact, have no ax to grind, but am carrying out a policy to which I have always adhered, that is, opposing anyone for public office who has been guilty of election frauds. A case in point is that of P. J. O'Malley, whom I do not know personally and against whom I have no personal feeling."

$9,000,000 INVOLVED IN RAIL CASE

P. R. R. Alone Asking Refund Of $6,709,693; Disputes Taxing of State Holdings

HARRISBURG, May 14.—(AP.)—More than $9,000,000 taxes is at stake in transportation companies alone in a case to be decided in October by the Dauphin County Court, it was revealed today by the State Department of Revenue.

The case is the outgrowth of an appeal by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company on the ground that it is entitled to a tax deduction for its investment in stock of other Pennsylvania corporations and that the amount invested in leased property outside this commonwealth should not be subject to the capital stock tax.

The amount disputed by the Pennsylvania Railroad is $6,709,693. The Reading Company disputes $2,124,111; the Lehigh Valley $249,625; the New York Central $167,157; the Pittsburgh and West Virginia $78,019, and the Philadelphia Rapid Transit $10,711.

The revenue department holds that the Pennsylvania Railroad is a particular class of corporation and that any decision in this case would not hold in the cases of the numerous other Pennsylvania corporations, such as public utilities and insurance companies, which hold stock in other Pennsylvania corporations.

The revenue department denied that the state would lose interest on taxes in dispute.

ACCLAIM BYRD IN CANAL ZONE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, May 14.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, homeward bound from his South Polar exploration, arrived at Balboa today at 9:31 a. m.

The rear admiral and his small group of companions who had remained at Dunedin, New Zealand, longest, came into port aboard the liner Rangitiki to an enthusiastic welcome. It was the Canal Zone's greatest day since the opening of the interocean waterway.

This afternoon's ceremonies included calls upon the United States minister to Panama, Roy Davis; Foreign Minister J. D. Arosemena and President F. H. Arosmena.

The rear admiral's arrival marked the first time that he had set foot on American territory since his departure a year and a half ago.

Rear Admiral Byrd, who was clad in a white uniform, said he had no immediate plans for the future.

He said:

"The expedition was most successful in scientific explorations. I am mighty glad to come here and will go on the nineteenth for a stay in the interior.

"We were more or less of a football team, every man doing his part. We discovered no habitation on our flights, but found a new range of mountains.

"The fight to get over the polar plateau was the most exciting part of the expedition. The heavy weight we carried made it a perilous trip."

U.S. Debs Make Bow Before British Rulers Tonight

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES
Universal Special Cable

LONDON, May 14.—The first of four high moments in British social life of the year will occur at 9:30 tonight, when King George and Queen Mary will receive the elect of British, American and Continental society in the gorgeous-hued throne room of Buckingham Palace.

For breathless debutantes from across the Atlantic, as well as for their elated sisters of Britain, tonight's ceremony will take precedence over similar ones last year, because the King will be in his old place before his throne chair. In 1929 he was slowly recuperating at Bognor from his almost fatal illness.

At the court tonight eight American debutantes will be presented. They are the Misses Frances Hutchinson, Philadelphia; Griselda Forbes, Boston; Charlotte Dorrance, Camden, N. J.; Katherine K. Todd, New York; Isabel Henry, Philadelphia; Eunice Bennett, New York; Eleanore Edwards, Cincinnati, and Elizabeth Kent, Philadelphia.

Ambassador Dawes will present America's honored debutantes, and other ambassadors will present limited lists.

At tomorrow's second court, those who will meet the royal family are:

Mrs. Clark Howell, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Louis Brugiere, San Francisco; Mrs. John K. Davis, Wooster, O.; Mrs. David C. Hanrahan, New York; Mrs. Hoke Smith, Atlanta; Mrs. R. P. Scripps, Detroit; Mrs. Robert Appleton, New York, and the Misses Doris Duke, Durham, N. C.; and Carley Robinson, Louisville, Ky.

TAXI STRIKERS TO COMPLETE VOTE ON PEACE TONIGHT

MRS. CAGLE IN N. Y. TO JOIN 'RED'

Flees Camera Men; Denies Marriage; Ousted Grid Star Still in Hospital

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Miss Marian Haile, indicated by Gretna (La.) records to be the wife of Christian Keener Cagle, resigned West Point football star, arrived in New York today still insisting that she was "just Miss Haile."

Nobody met Miss Haile at the Pennsylvania terminal, when she stepped off the Crescent Limited alone, although Cagle was said yesterday at West Point to have planned to leave the military academy this morning and join her in New York.

FLEES CAMERA MEN

Covering her face with her hands and fleeing from pillar to pillar in the train sheds to avoid cameramen, the young woman dashed through the concourse, and jumped into a taxicab and was soon lost in traffic.

Reporters who boarded her train outside the city showed Miss Haile newspapers containing the story that Cagle had admitted his marriage to military academy officials and had resigned his cadetship.

"I don't know that," she blazed.

SHE'S WINSOME

A winsome young woman, with gray eyes and reddish blonde hair, Miss Haile was wearing a green crepe dress, green sandals, a green hat and a tan camel's hair topcoat with a fur collar.

Meanwhile Cagle still was in the hospital at West Point, recovering from a tonsil operation, but military academy officials said they expected the formalities of his discharge from the service to be completed in time for him to leave this afternoon.

Reports had been circulated that knowledge of Cagle's marriage in 1928 existed at West Point long before the record of it was made public yesterday. This was denied.

BRING NEW SUIT AGAINST LEWIS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 14.—(INS.)—The civil courts were asked today to dig a grave for the John L. Lewis faction of the United Mine Workers of America.

In a supplementary bill containing further pleadings, counsel for the "reorganized" Miners' Union today asked the Sangamon County Circuit Court to enlarge an existing injunction to oust Lewis and other international officers from their positions.

If granted, it would permit the full airing of claims of the two factions when the case is argued on its merits Monday, May 19. The injunction now in effect merely prevents Lewis from interfering in affairs of District 12.

Mrs. Freda Roberts, 19, of 5722 Walnut street, testified in Morals Court today she had surprised her husband in an automobile with a girl last night after trailing him three hours.

She told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones she found her husband and the girl in a parked car near Shadeland avenue and summoned police. The husband was arrested, but the girl fled.

Magistrate Jones referred the case to social workers to attempt a reconciliation.

Car Towed, Autoist To Make Complaint

George Cooper, district representative for a box lunch company, today said he would complain to City Council because his auto was towed from private property to a city garage.

Cooper said he had been permitted by a transfer company to park on its property in Western avenue and after he left his car there police removed it to a private garage. He was forced to pay $8 for towing and storage, he said.

RIOTERS BLAME DRY SNOOPERS

CHICAGO, May 16.—(AP.)—Order had been restored on the University of Chicago campus following a riot on the campus last night in protest against activities of a new detail of night watchmen who, student leaders said, have endeavored to curb the rights of the students.

Just what inspired the demonstration was not made clear, some shouting that dry snoopers had been searching students, others that the Black Friars' theatrical caste had been molested and still others that ordinary campus activities had been interrupted by the special watchmen. Much stress was laid on the wet and dry phase by a large group.

The protest meeting was held around a huge bonfire. Stones and sticks were used into play before police and firemen succeeded in quelling the demonstration. Several of the student leaders were taken into custody, but later released.

The Daily Maroon, official student paper, today criticized the "officious attitude" of the night watchmen.

Students Escape Riot Punishment

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 14.—(AP.)—West Virginia University authorities and United States Army officers stationed at the university contemplate no disciplinary measures against 500 men students, mostly members of the cadet corps, as a result of disorders in front of a theater here Monday night.

The students peppered the theater with vegetables and eggs when they were not allowed to enter the playhouse because it was packed to capacity, and police were forced to use tear gas bombs to disperse them.

RADIO MERGER ATTACKED IN U. S. SUIT

Giant Corporation Accused Of Violating Anti-Trust Law; Injunction Sought

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The federal government has asked the United States District Court at Wilmington, Del., to enjoin the several giant radio corporations from effecting a "combination and conspiracy" to create a monopoly, and declare all agreements for patents and equipment exchanged among the companies unlawful and void.

The government's petition, made public today by the Department of Justice, also asks the court order the following subsidiaries of the corporations to be dissolved and be held as "parties to the unlawful combination" to create a monopoly and be restrained from interstate and foreign commerce:

The Radio Corporation of America, Raditrone Company, Inc.; R. C. A. Photophone Company, the R. C. A. Victor Company, Inc., and the General Motors Radio Corporation.

NAME GENERAL ELECTRIC

The suit to test the legality of the mergers and exchange of patents for the manufacture of radio receiving sets were filed against the R. C. A., the General Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Radio Corporation and its associates own or control 4,000 patents on radio equipment, the petition sets forth.

The government contends that the defendants dictate terms upon which competitors may use its patents in the production of radio receivers and vacuum tubes.

DILL PLEASED

A minimum royalty of $100,000 a year by manufacturers of receivers and $50,000 for tube manufacturerers is required, it was charged. The government declared the Radio Corporation royalties from this source in 1929 amounted to $7,000,000. Ninety-five per cent of the value of the 4,500,000 receiving sets sold in 1929 were produced by the defendant or their licensees, it was stated.

In the Senate, Dill, of Washington, said he was "satisfied now that the air is to be cleared" by the anti-trust proceeding.

Dill, a Democrat, has made several demands in the Senate for the Justice Department to proceed against what he termed the "radio trust."

TARIFF SPLITS HOUSE, SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS.)—The tariff conference between the House and Senate broke up today with the two branches of congress in disagreement over the repeal of President Hoover's flexible tariff powers and the debenture plan of farm relief which the Senate wrote into the pending tariff bill.

The Senate conferees were to report back to the senate later in the week that they could not compromise the debenture or flexible repeal. They hoped to secure the Senate's permission to compromise both items.

The Democratic tariff leaders meanwhile will meet to determine whether to stage an immediate battle against any compromise or to wait until the compromise is negotiated and then fight its adoption. In either event if they command a majority of the Senate by blocking adoption of the compromise, they will be able to defeat the bill.

Man Jailed After Rescue From Death

Ten days in jail is the price George Pinto, 42, no home, is paying for being saved from almost certain death last night. Within five minutes of the time Special Patrolman J. R. Thompson found him lying asleep in the yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, both legs across the rails, a switch engine passed over the spot where Pinto had been, Thompson says. In Police Court today, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg sentenced him to 10 days of sleep in the workhouse.

CAPONE PLEADS FOR RELEASE

MIAMI, Fla., May 14.—(AP.)—Habeas corpus proceedings, seeking release from the municipal jail of "Scarface" Al Capone and three companions will be heard by Circuit Judge Thompson this afternoon.

Attorneys for Capone presented a petition for a habeas corpus writ to Judge Thompson this morning. Capone and his companions, arrested with him at a boxing bout last night, were held through the night and morning on an "investigation" charge.

Judge Thompson last week granted a plea for habeas corpus writ when Capone, his brother and two of the men arrested with him last night were held on a similar "investigation" charge.

Local police are not restrained by the federal injunction forbidding sheriffs to harass Capone, and Chief Guy C. Reeves declares he will continue arresting Capone until he and his followers leave the city.

Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, decided the first lady had sufficiently recovered and sent her for a ride through the parks.

Mrs. Hoover is still getting about the executive mansion in a wheel chair. She rolled herself out to the auto in it. She was sufficiently recovered, however, to get into the car by herself.

At her present rate of progress, Dr. Boone indicated, Mrs. Hoover might be in condition to accompany the President to Gettysburg on May 30, where he will make a Memorial Day address.

CENSUS BLOCKS CUPID HERE

Cupid and the census are at odds in Pittsburgh.

Miss Belle Finesilver, of 2219 Shady avenue, ready for her marriage, can't proceed until the census of the Thirteenth District is complete and the tabulations sent to Washington.

There is only one difficulty. She has promised her employer, A. D. Levy, supervisor of the Thirteenth District, that she will not take the ring until the work here is cleared up.

Since Miss Finesilver, secretary to Mr. Levy, won't break her word, she can only urge the enumerators to greater speed and hope that her fiance, Albert Farber, of New Kensington, will not lose his temper with the census takers.

POLL SHOWS MAJORITY OPINION

Police to Continue Guard At Church Until Ballots Are Counted Tomorrow

Striking taxicab drivers will complete their vote on the latest settlement proposal at 9 o'clock tonight.

Enough ballots have been received already at Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Baum boulevard and Liberty avenue, to assure that, whatever the result, the balloting will be an expression of the majority of men on strike.

The police guard placed at the church will be continued until after the vote is counted and the result announced tomorrow.

The tally will be made by a committee of 10, including representatives of both the strikers and the companies. Two representatives of the minority which has protested holding the vote by mail will be on the board.

BALLOTS HELD UP

The Postoffice Department has been unable to make delivery of about 250 ballots due to changes of address. All drivers who did not receive ballots by mail can get theirs in person at the church, the Rev. Albert E. Day, the pastor, has announced.

A meeting of drivers is said to have been called for 7:30 o'clock tonight at Walton Hall, Stanwix street, by Patrick McCann, who heretofore has not appeared as a leader in the strike.

TO ORGANIZE UNION

Officials of the Parmelee Transportation Company said the only McCann they have any record of is J. P. McCann, 55, of 5627 Broad street, whom they said formerly was employed as a dispatcher but was discharged in February.

McCann, reached by telephone at his home, said he is a union member and the meeting has been called by a petition presented to the executive committee of the strikers. He said:

"We expect to properly organize the local union, elect officers and make the committee responsible to our lodge."

None of the executive committee could be reached last night.

LABOR FAVORS ROBERTS

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS.)—Virtually the last chance of any serious opposition being offered to the confirmation of Owen J. Roberts as an associate justice of the Supreme Court faded out today when the American Federation of Labor approved him.

It was labor opposition, combined with that of Negro organizations, that accomplished the defeat of John J. Parker for the court.

"Such information as we have," William Green, president of the Federation, said, "leads us to the conclusion that Mr. Roberts is eminently fitted to serve as a member of the Supreme Court."

The nomination is now before a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and will be reported out next week for what is expected to be speedy confirmation.

Body of Suicide Sought in River

Police Chief J. W. Flocker and Fire Chief A. G. Fisher, of Ambridge, today planned to drag the Ohio river in the vicinity of the Aliquippa-Ambridge bridge in an endeavor to recover the body of an unidentified man who jumped from the center of the structure last night. U. S. Musicians Fighting Influx of Alien Artists

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS.)—English lecturers, Italian sopranos and German musicians all may have trouble getting into the United States if proposals made to the House Immigration committee are adopted.

The subject was opened when American musicians demanded amendments to stop the influx of foreign saxaphone and violin players. The "talkies" have put 6,000 musicians out of work, they claim, and still foreign musicians come in and get jobs.

"This measure before us applies to musicians but it doesn't protect vaudeville actors, chorus singers and others," remarked Representative Schneider (Rep.), of Wisconsin.

"Why not require lecturers to come under the provisions of the contract labor law?" asked Representative Johnson (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Husband demurred, saying the labor department would have to decide whether the lecturer was good or bad, or the musician a skilled workman or an artist, exempt from the provisions.

He disclosed that American singers protested recently against a German opera company bringing its own chorus to this country, saying chorus singers could be hired here.

Citizens Injured, Bellevue Drops July 4 Fete

There will be no Fourth of July celebration in Bellevue this year, the borough Board of Trade decided last night at its monthly meeting.

Complaints that citizens were injured by fireworks displays were said to have prompted the board not to undertake the observance, formerly an annual event.

Last year the celebration was called off following a squabble of the trade organization and the school board over use of the high school grounds for baseball games.

Leaders of Three Faiths Meet to Plan Harmony

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—(AP.)—Leaders in the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths met in a Seminar here today to discuss their differences and misunderstandings.

The Seminar is the third of its kind held in the United States and its prime purpose is to seek closer cooperation between religious groups.

Four questions were up for discussion at round table conferences under the leadership of Prof. Harrison E. Elliot of Union Theological Seminary, New York. They were:

"What are typical examples of situations causing difficulty and misunderstanding in the relations of the Roman Catholics, Jews and Protestants? Which are most serious to friendly relations and why? Which are the most important for discussion at the Seminar? Which are situations involving religious beliefs and practices; which involve community relations and which need exploration in some other way?"

In sessions continuing throughout tomorrow these questions are to be frankly discussed.

RECORDS BURN, INQUIRY ON

BENWOOD, W. Va., May 14.—(AP.)—The Benwood City Council, in a resolution adopted last night, called upon the prosecutor of Marshall County to investigate the burning of city records, the papers having been destroyed at West Alexander, Pa., on May 8, when the automobile of former City Clerk John W. Edwards, Jr., was burned there while housed in a private garage.

The records destroyed, according to the resolution, included the payroll book and tax receipt book, and the Council demanded that a reason be given for removal of the records to West Alexander, where Edwards was said to be still visiting relatives.

The resolution also called upon Leonard Morningstar, former mayor, and Joseph Morningstar, former treasurer, to furnish itemized accounts of all the city's funds, and requested State Tax Collector T. C. Townsend to conduct an audit of the city's tax affairs.

The present city administration took office the first of May.

Blessed With Arm Of Saint Dead 1,500 Years

BONE, Algeria, May 14.—(AP.)—Twenty-five thousand persons last night received a solemn benediction from the arm of a saint dead for 15 centuries, at the close of the fifteenth centenary celebration of the death of St. Augustine of Hippone.

The saint's right arm was brought from its resting place in the Cathedral of the Algerian town of Hippo, where St. Augustine preached and wrote in the Fifth Century. Cardinal Verdier, clad in scarlet robes raised the sacred relic aloft and called on the saint to bless the kneeling crowd.

ROSS, LAST KIN OF CHIEF, DIES

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 14.—(AP.)—Robert Bruce Ross, 85, a grandson and the last close descendant of John Ross, famed chief of the Cherokee Indian Nation, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fannie Duncan, near Tahlequah, following an attack of acute indigestion.

He had returned home last Friday from Chattanooga, Tenn., where he attended the unveiling of a marker at Ross Landing, named for his grandfather and located on the site marking the beginning of the city of Chattanooga.

Ross was treasurer of the Cherokee Nation for 12 years. He also served as a member of the first constitutional convention of Oklahoma.

NEW RATES HIT INDUSTRY

dustry has been outlined in statements made by a large number of traffic representatives of manufacturers here. The companies which are joining in the fight range from the United States Steel Corporation down to many smaller manufacturers of articles made from steel.

MAY MAKE SOME MOVE

Many of these companies came to Pittsburgh to be near their sources of supply. The new alignments of rates may force many of them to move to other districts.

An example of the change being brought about by the new rates can be found in the altered position of Youngstown competitors.

Under the old rates it costs 11 cents a 100 pounds to ship steel from Youngstown to this city. It costs a steel mill at Aliquippa 3.5 cents to make deliveries in the Pittsburgh district plants on the Pennsylvania Railroad. This gives local mills an advantage of 7.5 cents a 100 pounds, or $1.50 a ton in reaching customers in this district.

LOCAL ADVANTAGE CUT

Under the new rates it will cost 12.5 cents to ship over the full distance from Youngstown to Pittsburgh but 8 cents to make deliveries from Aliquippa to the same points. This will leave local consumers of steel a benefit of only 4.5 cents a 100 pounds or 90 cents a ton resulting from locating close to their sources of supply.

Similar companies in other districts will not have their relationships with mills disturbed.

co-operation to prevent corruption at the primary.

Senators Nye and Wagner were in Philadelphia today making an informal survey of conditions there and they have also sent investigators to Harrisburg, it was learned.

Nye's visit to Philadelphia followed hard on the heels of an interview with Webster Garfield Drew, Republican senatorial candidate. Nye told Philadelphians:

"There have been charges of large expenditure here, but we do not expect to look into them before the primary is over. Then we can have full evidence."

PINCHOT DELIGHTED

LANSFORD, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Personal investigation of Pennsylvania's primary election campaign by Senator Gerald P. Nye and other members of the Senate committee is pleasing to Gifford Pinchot, candidate for Republican nomination for governor.

Pinchot, informed here of the visit of Senator Nye and fellow committee members to Pennsylvania, said he welcomed their coming with keenest satisfaction. He declared:

"While it is true that technically and legally the Senate committee has nothing to do with the contest for the governorship, nevertheless tieups in this most complicated campaign as such, and continued reports of large expenditures on behalf of my opponent are so convincing, that I welcome with keenest satisfaction the coming of the committee. It can do nothing but good."

is advanced as a reason. The final decision is not expected today. It is likely the "T" ordinance will be sent to the city solicitor, the Department of Public Works and the railroad company before a final decision is announced.

LAND SOUGHT

At the same time there is a possibility that the city will take the steps necessary to secure land needed for the "Z" plan if Council at some future time should find the needed funds. "T" plan will cost, according to estimates, $600,000. The other would cost from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000. Estimates vary greatly.

The ordinance was accompanied by 11 companion measures. They provide:

Widening of Eleventh street and the changing of its name to Grant street between Penn and Liberty avenues.

Widening of Eleventh street from Penn avenue to Duquesne way.

Widening of Penn avenue from Eleventh street east to near Seventeenth street.

OPEN LIBERTY AVENUE

Opening of Liberty avenue to conform with the general plan. This means what amounts to a new street, Liberty, joining Penn avenue near Twenty-first street.

Opening of Nineteenth street southwardly from Penn avenue; opening of Twentieth street in the same direction; vacating of Grant street for 93 feet south of Liberty avenue; vacating of Liberty avenue from Grant street to about Twenty-first street; vacating of Spring way from Eleventh street to Twentieth street; vacating of Slocum way, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets from Liberty to Penn avenues; vacating of a part of Twentieth street.

ASSASSIN PLOT FAILS

LONDON, May 14.—(INS.)—An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Gen. Sir Robert A. Cassels, adjutant general of the British Indian army, last night at Lahore, according to a dispatch received by the London Daily Mail today.

Attackers fired several rounds at the general's bungalow. Sentries returned the fire. Gen. Cassels was absent at the time of the raid.

Bullets shattered windows of the bungalow and pierced the walls, but no one was injured.

India Poetess Leads Raid Like Modern Joan of Arc

LONDON, May 14.—(INS.)—Characterizing herself as a "modern Joan of Arc," Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, Indian poetess and successor to Mahatma Gandhi as leader of the Nationalist independent movement, set out from Allahabad this evening with a group of followers to raid the British government salt depot at Dharasana, according to dispatches to the London newspapers.

Addressing a gathering of Nationalists before she set out on her journey, she declared:

"I go to death or victory. I feel as Joan or Arc must have felt when she led her army centuries ago—under the guidance of divine inspiration.

"We shall ask no quarter and we shall give no quarter."

Arrest of Mrs. Naidu is a virtual certainty, and if she carries out her daring plan, there seems little hope she can avoid punishment such as has been meted out to Gandhi and his numerous lieutenants.

Mrs. Naidu expressed her determination of marching at the van of the salt raiders. The volunteers, armed with pliers as their sole weapons, plan to rush the police and military and cut their way through the barbed wire entanglements surrounding the salt depot.

Mme. Sarojini Nadiu was in Pittsburgh in April, 1929, when she addressed a meeting in the William Penn ballroom under auspices of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, speaking on "Interpretation of the Modern Indian Renaissance." She appeared in native costume.

An Open Letter To Mayor Kline

Hon. CHARLES H. KLINE,
City-County Building,
Pittsburgh, Penna.

DEAR MR. MAYOR:-

As Chief Executive of Pittsburgh, we are sure that you will be interested in any project which has for its purpose promoting the general welfare of the people. Your official acts indicate that you have a very understanding and sympathetic appreciation of the problems that confront the average man and woman.

Therefore we take the liberty of inviting your consideration of a proposed PITTSBURGH DAY, next Saturday, May 17th to be sponsored by FRANK & SEDER. As you are perhaps aware, we are now celebrating the anniversary of our twelfth year in our present store.

We recall with satisfaction that when this building was dedicated to Pittsburgh, one of your honored predecessors took occasion to pay a tribute to the service that Frank & Seder were rendering to the people of this city. That through our initiative and progressive ideas, together with our desire to cater to the needs of the average family, we were doing our share to ease the economic burden resting upon them.

All that we have, all that may accrue to us in the years to come, all the progress we have made, what ever success we have achieved we owe to the generosity and loyalty of the public of this great industrial center. Therefore we want to express our gratitude in tangible form, by designating next Saturday, May 17th, as PITTSBURGH DAY, the outstanding day of our Birthday celebration.

On that day we will authorize every department buyer in our store to distribute a certain amount of merchandise to the public at prices that will barely cover the actual operating cost of doing business. The total amount to be distributed on that basis will be approximately $250,000.00.

In doing this, we have four things in mind, which we are sure must commend themselves to you:

(1)— Important savings that increase the buying power of the average purse, at a time when everyone wants to economize.

(2)— Creating additional employment—due to the capacity business which will require hundreds of additional salespeople.

(3)— Creating an outlet for manufacturers, thus helping to keep the wheels of industry going.

(4)— A personal goodwill tribute to the people of Pittsburgh.

We promise you, Mr. Mayor, that our intention is to carry out the purposes of this event in spirit as well as in letter—perhaps you may find a moment from the multitude of cares of your important position, to pay us a visit on PITTSBURGH DAY, Next Saturday, May 17th.

Yours respectfully,

FRANK & SEDER

GUILTY IN SALE OF RUM FLAVOR

PHILADELPHIA, May 14 — (INS.)—What is believed to be the first conviction in Pennsylvania under the recent edict of the United States Supreme Court, holding sellers of materials and equipment for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors are violators of the prohibition laws, occurred here yesterday.

A jury in Municipal Court before Judge William M. Lewis held that juniper berry flavoring (used in making gin) and rye coloring and flavoring extracts were contraband and convicted a father and son, grocers, for dealing in such commodities.

The extracts were alleged to have been sold by Barney Hudow, 40, and his son, Elmer 24. Judge Lewis informed the jurors that if they decided the extracts were used in making illicit liquor then the defendants should be found guilty. After two hours' deliberation the talesmen convicted both men and upon their appeal for a new trial sentences were suspended.

STUDY MARKET IMPROVEMENTS

Council is considering plans to remodel the Diamond Market to meet modern merchandising conditions. The tentative plans were submitted yesterday by Richard Neff, city architect. They include the changing of the walls to permit the installation of 26 plate glass windows and the construction of an auditorium on the second floor.

The proposed changes would cost $44,000, according to Neff's estimates. Improvement of the heating system, against which complaints have been made, would cost $16,000 additional.

Other changes proposed by Neff include the dismantling of the present refrigeration system, the replacement of two elevators by stairways and the construction of two comfort stations in the basement.

HORNE'S dedicates this week to Sports. In observance of the season just now beginning, when practically all America lives and plays outdoors, we are making a store-wide exposition of sports needs and fashions.

If your interest in sports confines itself to a gliding expedition on the porch, or if it leads you to the links or the bridle path, Horne's—through the Sports Week displays—shows itself in accord with your sports inclinations, and ready to send you forth fashionably and correctly clad and equipped.

Stroll through Horne's this week, and see the many suggestions each department contributes to the observance of Sports Week.

COURT HALTS BONDED DEBT INCREASE

Action to Prevent City From Proceeding to Push Several Public Projects

Pittsburgh has been restrained from increasing the councilmanic bonding debt by $1,200,000, under a street improvement bond ordinance passed in 1924, through a Supreme Court decision handed down by Justice Robert S. Fraser.

Assistant City Attorney Thomas M. Benner says that the decision is important in that it will prevent City Council from actually increasing its bonded power by $6,000,000.

The decision hinged on the meaning of the word "construction" as used in Section 15 of the state constitution. It was claimed that councilmanic water bonds for $1,481,902 should be excluded in making computation of the net councilmanic debt. This would have made it possible for the city to have issued $1,200,000 in water bonds.

The court below held that these bonds should be included in arriving at the city's valuation for the purpose of enabling the city to calculate the city's bonding power. In this decision the lower court was sustained.

Before the bonds were issued, Adam Hoffman brought a taxpayer's equity action to prevent the issuing of the bonds, claiming the issue would be an unlawful increase of the bonded debt beyond the 2 per cent of valuation, allowed by law.

FIRE HOSE BID HEARING SET

City Clerk Robert Clark stated today that he plans to give a hearing at the earliest possible moment to representatives of the Quaker City Rubber Company who charge that Director of Supplies B. L. Succop refused to accept the low bid for fire and street hose.

The request for a hearing was granted yesterday by Council on motion of Harry A. Little. R. T. Brown, president of the company, asked the hearing. He maintained that, although his company had turned in the low bids on three items, the contracts were awarded to higher bidders.

All fire and street hose, Brown wrote, is manufactured according to specifications prepared by the city and one company can furnish as good material as the other. In business for 45 years, Brown said, their materials never have been turned back as defective.

Life is "pretty tough" at best, so why not be comfortable. Find a nice cozy room through the Classified Ads. There are many to choose from.

Bowling Green Plan Bobs Up Again

Another effort is being made to make open-air bowlers out of baseball fans and golfers.

This time Councilman C. B. Connelley is sponsoring an ordinance to construct a bowling green in Schenley Park.

The cost would be $2,000. The ordinance has appeared in Council as regularly as the first robin appears on the lawns of suburban Pittsburghers.

TRY TO KIDNAP CAREY'S SON

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.—(INS.)—A close guard was being maintained over the home of Harry Carey, film actor, today following an asserted attempt to kidnap Dobie, his 10-year-old son.

Carey's Negro chauffeur, J. W. Weaver, told police he suspected a kidnaping plot when another car swung in behind him as he was taking Dobie to school. Weaver said he told the boy "to jump from the car and run for it."

After the boy leaped from the car and ran into the school, Weaver said he was forced into the curb by the other car. Then, he said, two men in the car asked him where the youth was. While he argued with them a third car drove up, Weaver said.

GRAPE JUICE For Breakfast!
Physicians Recommend It

Here are seven of the reasons why Welch's is fast becoming the favorite breakfast fruit juice in many thousands of homes:

1. Welch's is the pure, unadulterated juice of luscious Concord grapes, Pasteurized.
2. Welch's is rich in fruit nourishment and mineral salts, and so perfectly adapted to the human system that it is taken into the blood-stream without digestive effort, releasing quick new energy. It's non-fattening.
3. Welch's is already squeezed. No fuss!
4. There's no squeezer to clean, no machinery to sterilize. No muss!
5. There's not a particle of waste!
6. In every pint there are six liberal portions, making Welch's only 5¢ a glass—costs even less if diluted with one-third water, and many prefer it so.
7. It's ready instantly. And temptingly delicious. You simply dilute to suit taste, pour and serve.

At your hotel or club, ask for grape juice on your "club breakfast," and insist on Welch's. For "Ways to Serve Welch's," Free, write to Welch's, Dept. B, Westfield, N. Y.

Marriage Problem In Town Divided By 3 Counties

EMERSON, Neb., May 14.—(AP.)—The census has revealed to the world that Emerson is really a town divided against itself—divided three ways.

Emerson is in three counties. The schoolhouse is in one county, the postoffice in another, and the railroad station in a third. There are three polling places at election time, all within a radius of 150 yards. Whenever a young Emersonian decides to marry, the parson has to be very particular to ascertain what part of town he is from, for in marriage licenses it is the county that counts.

For a community of 1,100 persons, Emerson is very complicated.

CALLIOPE MAN HELD IN FIGHT

Robert Swain, former driver of a calliope advertising a downtown theater, was held for court on a charge of felonious assault and battery today by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Station.

Swain admitted he had stabbed Anthony Harding, occupant of a houseboat at the foot of Pennsylvania avenue, during a quarrel. Harding is in St. John's General Hospital.

The case resulted in the suspension of Wagonman Herbert Aiken, of the North Side Station. Ordered to "kick in" the door of Swain's home at 1309 Juniata street and get Swain, the policeman refused. Inspector Charles Faulkner broke down the door himself but Swain had fled.

Wagonman Aiken resigned following his suspension.

So much is offered in beauty, pleasure and performance at so low a price that almost every demonstration is followed by a sale. The Norge Rollator waved the magic wand—just a roller turning smoothly within a cylinder in oil—thus producing cold. TRACE THREATS IN LYNCH QUIZ

SHERMAN, Texas, May 14.—(AP.)—Efforts to discover the authors of warnings threatening to burn Negro buildings today temporarily halted other activities of a military court of inquiry seeking information relative to last Friday's anti-Negro riots.

Bennett Hogue, 30, of Denison, Texas, was arrested last night and charged with "posting notices against Negroes, a felony," in connection with the threats. He was arrested by Texas Rangers.

After being questioned, Hogue was released under $500 bond. He denied he posted the typewritten warnings.

The confessed Negro attacker of a white woman was slain and the county court house burned during the riots last week.

Determined to conclude its sessions as soon as practicable, the court held its first evening meeting last night, quizzing suspects. State and Federal grand juries will be convened Monday.

TURNER AGAIN MAY TRY HOP

NEW YORK, May 14.—(INS.)—Capt. Roscoe Turner was undecided today whether he would again attempt to set a new transcontinental airplane record. An announcement on his decision was expected later today.

Capt. Turner arrived here last night from Los Angeles, nearly an hour behind the record coast-to-coast flight of 14 hours, 23 minutes and 27 seconds, of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. He was out of gas when he reached Curtiss-Wright Airport at Valley Stream, Long Island, and his plane went into a ground loop, but the flier, as well as his lion cub mascot, escaped injury.

The aviator said he encountered bad weather in the midwest and New Mexico, and strong head winds interfered with his race against time.

Turner followed the tactics of Lindbergh and flew at great height, maintaining an average altitude of about 12,000 feet.

CARS COLLIDE TWO INJURED

Patrolman Charles Stewart, of 200 Dilworth street, attached to the Mt. Washington Police Station, today was in South Side Hospital, suffering from a fracture of the left leg, and his son, Charles, Jr., 17, was in the same institution, suffering from lacerations of the eyes and face, sustained in an automobile collision in the Babcock boulevard, three miles north of Millvale, last night.

The driver of the other car, Frank Tetekhoff, 37, of 178 Chestnut street, North Side, was uninjured. Tetekhoff was arrested by a state highway patrolman of the Perryville barracks on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of liquor. He was given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, of Millvale, and held for court.

Policeman Home Too Much, Wife Asks Decree

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—Too much police protection is Mrs. Pearl Hulock's complaint against her policeman-husband, Gus.

In her separate maintenance action heard by Judge Charles A. Williams yesterday, Mrs. Hulock said that almost any time she looked out the window, there would be Officer Hulock cruising by.

Mrs. Hulock suggested that Officer Hulock might be better employed guarding the lives and properties of other persons, and not spending so much time watching her.

Pending hearing of the suit, the court allowed her $15 a week.

NATION MOURNS DR. NANSEN

OSLO, Norway, May 14.—(INS.)—Norway paid tribute today to the memory of Dr. Fridjof Nansen, famous Arctic explorer, who nearly became king of Norway. Dr. Nansen, 68, died suddenly from a heart attack yesterday afternoon.

Plans for an impressive funeral were in progress and flags were at half-mast in honor of the passing of a Norseman who will occupy brilliant pages of the nation's history.

Newspapers were published with black borders and ran many columns extolling the explorer's achievements in the fields of humanitarism, peace work and statesmanship.

"Clear up your skin, dear, and you will be popular, too"

If you desire a clear skin you must keep your blood in good condition.

Skin trouble and sallow complexion speak of body weakness — a deficiency in the red-blood-cells.

A lovely, clear skin is within your reach

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends, more invitations—more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely, clear skin is within the reach of all. To you who have lost it, hope is offered, that you, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

The natural way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood nourishes the body and works against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders, take a few bottles of S.S.S.

S.S.S. may be found in every good drug store in America. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy which is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. Sold in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

WINE GROWERS FINED, RIOT

GERMERSHEIM, Germany, May 14.—(AP.)—This little city of the Rhineland was put under martial law last night after 5,000 indignant growers of the American hybrid vine stormed the district courthouse in protest against fines imposed on 400 wine growers for raising the hybrid vines.

To check the demonstrators, the authorities summoned 150 police from various points in the Palatinate and in Baden, who were armed with carbines. The demonstrators, however, broke through a police cordon and attacked the courthouse.

Bloodshed was averted through intervention by their leaders, and martial law was proclaimed. The demonstrators then telegraphed to the minister of agriculture of Bavaria, at Munich, threatening that they would not leave Germersheim until the right to raise the hybrid vine had been guaranteed.

The American hybrid vine is alleged to be disposed to the plant disease known as phylloxera, and its cultivation was recently prohibited.

BROWN CHAPEL CRITIC OUSTED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 14.—(AP.) — Under-graduate protest against compulsory chapel attendance at Brown University was answered yesterday by the suspension from classes of Rollo G. Silver, New York, a junior, because of a letter, written by him and published last Thursday by the Brown Daily Herald, complaining of the poor quality of chapel speakers.

Among the speakers who failed to meet Silver's approval were Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Prof. William Lyon Phelps, of Yale; Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, O.; Dr. James Gordon Gilkey, of Springfield, Mass.; Dean Charles W. Gilkey, of the University of Chicago Divinity School, and Dean Willard L. Sperry, formerly of the Harvard Theological School.

According to Dean Samuel T. Arnold, of Brown, commenting on Silver's suspension, the university "it not willing to have its students treat impolitely and in an ungentlemanly fashion those who should be treated with respect."

LOSING HEALTH GRAVE PROBLEM

Fear of the Future Overcome By Treatment With World's Tonic.

"Repeated colds that I caught coming out from the hot mill into the foggy, chilly open air around where we work did not alarm me much. I threw them off regularly, and then caught another. But it did seem to me that my head was never clear. When my stomach began to act up I did get a little alarmed and began a course of treatment. Somehow it did not do any good. I felt weak, and began to be all in after a few hours' work. Occasionally I would get dizzy. These spells kept on for months. Everybody said they were due to my stomach, and yet I could find nothing that did me much good.

"One of my neighbors told me one day that he thought all of my grief came from catarrh. I did not think much of that. While my head was stuffy all the time, it was my stomach that bothered me, and it got so bad that I feared I would have to give up my job. That worried me greatly and I got so nervous I could not sleep, which made matters worse.

"I had read of World's Tonic, but regarded it as a treatment for catarrh, and I did not think that was what ailed me. My wife was insistent that I try it. Finally I did. The result has convinced me that catarrh was at the bottom of my troubles, for that medicine certainly cleared them up quickly. My head was freed of its stuffiness; I have not been dizzy since the first three doses, and my stomach now digests good food that brings me strength. Somebody told me World's Tonic overcame catarrh by working on the blood. I don't care how it does it. The great and glorious fact is that it does it, and I am becoming a well man again. I have lost all fear of losing that job, and my wife and I are happy instead of nervous now."

This is only one of very many stories of how this remarkable tonic has overcome conditions that were caused by impure blood from catarrhal conditions. You may safely take it for stomach, bowel, kidney and other troubles, depending on that fact that with pure, rich blood nature will do the rest. You may obtain World's Tonic at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, or any other first class drug store. (A-28)

TENER PRAISES GRUNDY STAND

Former Gov. John K. Tener broadcast a speech last night over WJAS and Attorney Ira Hurwick spoke over KQV in behalf of the candidacy of Senator Joseph R. Grundy to succeed himself.

Senator Grundy will deliver an address through a state-wide hookup over KDKA at 7:30 Friday night after an introduction by Attorney Sarah Soffel, according to Ralph C. Davis, chairman of the Grundy committee on meetings and speakers.

Other Friday night broadcasts will be delivered by W. L. Munro at 9 p. m. over WCAE and by Attorney E. T. Houlden at 8:15 over WJAS.

State Senator James J. Coyne, county chairman of the Grundy campaign, will deliver an address tomorrow night in Garfield school, Tenth Ward. Other speakers scheduled are Councilman M. J. Muldowney and Attorney John P. Egan. John Mahoney will preside.

Former Gov. Tener said last night:

It has always been my belief that real statesmanship in a Senator is evidenced by what he stands for and accomplishes or tries to accomplish for the lasting benefit of the people of his country and his state and certainly not for one who tries to ride into office on the temporary waves of impulse or opportunity.

"Were I asked to name, in my opinion, the dominant characteristics of Mr. Grundy, I should say, steadfastness to sound principles and friends; capability in all that he undertakes; courage to fight for his beliefs. In him you have a competent, fearless representative."

PINCHOT TWITS JOHN L. LEWIS

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 14—(AP.)—Amid large and enthusiastic receptions through the Anthracite regions, Gifford Pinchot yesterday gave his first reply to the indorsement of John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, of Pinchot's opponent for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, Francis Shunk Brown.

Pinchot at Shamokin, Mount Carmel, Ashland, Shenandoah and Frackville and Pottsville, said he was "greatly surprised" at the pledge of support Lewis gave to the Davis-Brown ticket.

"I never expected John L. Lewis to go up and down the anthracite coal counties trying to beat me for governor after what he said about me four years ago."

During the course of his speech the former governor was interrupted several times by cries from his audience of "We'll beat Lewis."

HELEN GRIMES HITS DRY LAW

The American people are awakening to the necessity for the repeal of the prohibition enforcement laws because of the increase of crime and the spreading power of the bootlegger, according to Representative Helen Grimes, speaking in behalf of her candidacy for re-election at a meeting last night of the Women's Civic Club of Mt. Oliver n Legion Hall.

Miss Grimes has indorsed the Republican candidates on the anti-dry ticket, including Thomas W. Philips for governor, Francis H. Bohlen for United States senator and Charles Dorrance for lieutenat governor.

In her address last night Miss Grimes said:

"Leading women throughout the country, aroused by the nation-wide corruption and the killing of their sons and daughters, are organizing to bring about the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act."

Congressman Fiorelo H. La Guardia, of New York, will campaign in Pennsylvania this week for the anti-dry candidates, according to F. E. Shaughnessy, western manager for the Philips-Bohlen-Dorrance ticket.

SPEAKERS LAUD DAVIS, BROWN

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, manager of the late Judge Richard W. Martin's mayoralty campaign, broadcast last night over Station KDKA a speech in support of Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for governor on the Davis-Brown ticket.

Referring to Brown's opponents, the speaker declared he did not believe that support for Thomas W. Phillips would represent the anti-dry sentiment of the state or that support of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot would represent the dry sentiment. He said:

"There are too many other issues involved. Too many personalities have been injected into this primary fight. Too many tie-ins were made before this issue was introduced and became prominent."

Charles G. Lane, Jr., head of Allegheny Chapter, Isaac Walton League, has indorsed Brown for governor and expressed his opposition to Pinchot.

The women's Republican organization of the Twenty-seventh Ward is expected to indorse the Davis-Brown slate at a meeting tomorrow night in John Morrow School, Davis and Fleming avenues.

Scheduled speakers include Mrs. Laura Hannau, Mrs. Harry Love, Mrs. Frank Slater and F. T. Robertson, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

A Davis-Brown mass meeting will be held tonight in Homewood Carnegie Library, Lang and Hamilton avenues. J. Scott Morgan will preside. Other speakers will include County Commissioner Armstrong, Mayor Kline, Councilmen Herron and English, and Robertson, of the mine workers' union.

The Negro Baptists Conference of Pittsburgh and Vicinity has indorsed the candidacy of Secretary Davis for United States senator, according to a resolution submitted by C. E. Askew and M. A. Talley.

2 Pittsburgh Men Accused in Holdup

QUINCY, Mass., May 14.—(INS.)—At pistol point, in the center of a line of motor traffic in Brockton's business district, police yesterday captured three men from Pennsylvania and brought them here on a charge of having robbed Walter Pinell of $20 in his Quincy store. The trio said they were Edward J. Wilson, 46, 508 Alexander avenue, Pittsburgh; Daniel Stack, 35, 18 Rose street, Pittsburgh, and John Murphy, 44, Harrisburg, Pa.

The ships sailing include the Europa, Majestic, Berengaria, Vulcania, Ile de France and Republic.

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—Two weeks ago Miss Ethel Swanson, 19, jilted Henry Darin. Early today Darin, 22 years old, stood in front of her home and killed himself.

PINCHOT FORCE BUSY HERE

Former President of Council James F. Malone is scheduled to address the mass meeting in the Davis Theater Saturday night at which former Gov. Gifford Pinchot will make the last speech of his campaign for another term, according to Frank I. Gollmar, county chairman of the Pinchot committee. The speeches will be broadcast over KQV.

Previous to the theater meeting, Pinchot will speak at 7:45 p. m. over Station WJAS.

Attorney E. C. Trott, former burgess of Carrick borough, broadcast a speech last night over KQV asking that Pinchot be returned to Harrisburg as governor so that he might duplicate the achievements of his previous term.

Malone presided today at the noon-day meeting in Pinchot headquarters, Magee Building, 336 Fourth avenue. Speakers were Mrs. E. E. Houghtelin and Attorneys Ralfe O. P. Silverman, H. P. Eberharter and William J. Blakeley, Jr.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, field marshal for Pinchot, will make his first radio speech of the campaign at 8 p. m. today over station WJAS.

Attorney Ralph H. Smith, chairman of the Pinchot committee on meetings and speakers, is to deliver an address at a meeting tonight in Moose Temple, Penn avenue, of all Pittsburgh district lodges of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the members of the women's auxiliary.

A Pinchot rally will be held tonight in Fraternal Hall, 591 Carriers avenue, McKees Rocks where the speakers will include James A. Fox, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; W. O. Taylor and Attorney W. K. Hodgkinson.

Faces Charge Of Kissing, Not Murder

William Costas, 39, who said he resided in Homestead, today faced the charge before Gary, (Ind.), authorities, of kissing a strange girl on a train, instead of being sent back home to face a charge of murder.

The girl didn't like his caresses and had him arrested. He told police he had slain George Tatsatas, a Homestead restaurateur, Sunday, following an argument. Homestead police were advised of the "confession."

They telegraphed that Sunday was a quiet day in the borough; that they had no record of a murder of a restaurauteur by the name Tatsatas, that no body had been found and that none had been reported missing.

Dailey Is Elected Martinsburg Mayor

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., May 14.—Councilman Chris H. Dailey, Republican, was elected mayor of Martinsburg over W. C. Morton by a vote of 2,938 to 2,341, a majority of 597.

He succeeds Mayor George W. Appleby, Jr., whom he defeated in the primary.

BROWN TELLS LIQUOR STAND

Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for governor, has written to the Pittsburgh organization of Crusaders, anti-prohibitionists, a reply setting forth his position on the liquor question. The reply, written in response to a query by the Crusaders, said:

"If the people desire any laws changed or others passed, they can select members of the General Assembly to do it, but for a governor, or a candidate for that office, to attempt to force them is not only unconstitutional in my judgment but morally wrong.

"It is well that the will of the people should be ascertained. To this end, I favor a referendum to ascertain the sentiment of the people, whether they wish the Snyder act or other similar laws in Pennsylvania to be continued or repealed. When such a referendum is taken, I will make every reasonable effort as governor to carry into effect the will of the people thus expressed."

Ministers Told Davis Favors Enforcement

LANCASTER, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Answering a challenge made at a Philadelphia Methodist Episcopal meeting that he state his position on the prohibition question, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, campaigning in Southern Pennsylvania for the Republican nomination, last night said he was for enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment.

The ministers, who threatened to withdraw their previous support of Davis unless he made a "satisfactory explanation" of his stand on the liquor problem, adopted a resolution Monday in Philadelphia alleging that William S. Vare, Philadelphia organization leader, was making "wet" appeals in behalf of the labor secretary.

"I have made my statement on the prohibition issue and there has been no change in my attitude on the question," Davis declared as the Davis-Brown caravan reached here after a trip through five counties.

GRUNDY TALKS TO WOMEN

ABINGTON, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Necessity for an adequate tariff to safeguard the wages and the living standard of the American workman was stressed by Senator Joseph R. Grundy yesterday before members of the Abington branch of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania.

The meeting was held at the Baederwood Country Club, and was preceded by luncheons. Mrs. James B. Marshall acted as chairman, more than 200 women being present.

"There is one great issue in the country," Mr. Grundy said. "Under the existing law, and under the proposed tariff law, now before the Senate, we do not have the proper tariff provision.

"There has been increased industry under the protective system, which has meant increased labor wages, and a higher standard of living than ever before. However, the return on industry today is so small in many cases that it is not as much as an investment in good securities.

"We need an economic adjustment through the tariff. Vast sums of American capital have gone abroad because the situation here is so bad."

HOOVER TO SEE NAVY 'BATTLE'

WASHINGTON, May 14 (AP)—Next Tuesday President Hoover is to see the United States fleet divided against itself, the battleships and seaplanes fighting off a mock attack by cruisers and destroyers.

The President announced that with the secretary and assistant secretary of the Navy he would review the fleet off the Virginia Capes.

For his first review President Hoover will be aboard the first of the new 10,000-ton cruisers in active service, the Salt Lake City. He will watch eight cruisers and 27 destroyers attack 10 battleships and two aircraft carriers.

The United States fleet has not been reviewed by a President since Calvin Coolidge witnessed maneuvers in June of 1927. The review for President Hoover, the Navy said, will be the first in which ships have staged a mimic battle for a commander-in-chief.

The battle fleet, ordinarily in the Pacific, and the scouting fleet, usually in the Atlantic, united early this year for maneuvers off Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

At the conclusion of the review the former will go to Hampton Roads and the latter to Newport News, Va., before returning to their stations.

FIGHT, NOT RUM FATAL TO VET

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., May 14—Evidence has developed that Isaac A. Miller, 41, Tippecanoe war veteran, came to his death Sunday by violence and not by poison liquor. One suspect is held in jail here while police check up on his story.

Residents of Brownell told police that Miller and another man had fought. Miller was found dazed and died three hours after he had been taken home. His eye had been blackened and there were scratches about the jaw. Police believe Miller had been drinking prior to the altercation.

Pittsburgh Post To Elect Officers

The annual election of officers for Pittsburgh City Post No. 59, American Legion, will be held tomorrow evening in the William Penn Hotel. The nominating committee has submitted several names to be balloted on. The post will hold a luncheon at 12:15 o'clock today in the Nixon Restaurant. Louis Victor Eytinge will speak.

WINS $50,000 GIVEN OTHERS

JOHNSTOWN, May 14—Vartan Mardigian, of France, who was named heir three years ago by Zack Wartanian, dance hall proprietor of Johnstown, to $60,000, and who turned up a few weeks ago to claim the fortune, after disposition of the estate had been made two years ago, was awarded $50,000 by the Cambria County Court.

Mardigian could not be located after his uncle's death and the will called for the disposal of the estate to Mr. and Mrs. John Barclay in the event his nephew could not be located in a year.

Mardigian had been held a prisoner by Armenians for three years and was unable to come to this country to claim the fortune.

ASK LATIN AID IN DOPE WAR

GENEVA, May 14.—(AP.)—Measures for strengthening the forces fighting the illicit opium traffic by calling up help from the "victim" countries, including Latin-America, were taken today by the council of the League of Nations.

It was voted to invite Mexico, Uruguay, Spain, Poland, Belgium, Austria and Egypt to sit in the league's advisory committee on opium traffic.

The council tentatively set December 1 for holding an international opium conference.

Members today were told by Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, of a mystery ship now at sea with 250,000 pounds of opium, all destined for the illicit traffic.

20 on Giant Plane For German Tour

DESSAU, Germany, May 14.—(AP.)—The Junkers airplane, G-38, claimed to be the largest land plane in the world, started early today on its first extended cross-country flight, with 20 passengers aboard.

Landings were scheduled for Magdeburg, Hamburg, Bremen, Munster, Cologne, Coblenz, Frankfort and Berlin. After the flight the Lufthansa Company will use the plane as a freight carrier.

Over Tempelhof Airdrome, near Berlin, a bag of mail was dropped from the plane.

'Auxiliary Aids Wounded Veterans

The Women's Auxiliary of North Boroughs Post, No. 116, American Legion, has presented apples and a box of cigarets to each of the 80 ex-service men in the United States Veterans Hospital at Aspinwall. Mrs. J. W. Stoup, Mrs. J. H. Benson and Miss Irma Locher represented the auxiliary in presenting the gifts.

Wife Insists Dog Sleep in Her Bed, Asserts Mate

His wife insisted that her pet dog sleep in her bed, Gus Miller, of Morningside avenue, told Judge Ambrose B. Reid at a hearing of his divorce suit against Mrs. Victoria E. Miller, 117 West Ohio street, today.

The husband also testified that two months after their marriage she struck him over the head with a broomstick. He asked a divorce on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment.

2 NORTH SIDE STORES ROBBED

Two shabbily-dressed robbers held up two stores within 10 minutes on the North Side today and fled with $100.

Entering the grocery of Nick Bruck, 1312 Sherman avenue, the robbers asked for cakes. When Bruck stooped to get them one of the intruders pointed a gun at his head and told him to remain kneeling. His accomplice took $50 from the cash register. They escaped in a red coupe.

Shortly afterward, the same pair entered the P. H. Butler store, 1534 Buena Vista street, robbed Joseph Morrison, of Bellevue, manager, of $50 and fled.

Gang That Robbed Envoys Captured

BUCHAREST, Germany, May 14.—(AP.)—The entire gang of bandits who attacked and robbed Charles S. Dewey, American advisor to the Polish government, and Carlos A. Davila, Rumanian minister at Washington, recently near here, was captured near Mogosoaia during the night.

Most of the jewels belonging to the Countess Czoembeck, wife of the Polish minister to Rumania who was also with the two men, were recovered, as was also part of the money taken from the party.

KILLS FATHER BEATING WIFE

LEWISTOWN, Mont., May 14.—(AP.)—Firman P. Housel appeared sullen at breakfast.

After the meal he began abusing his wife and nine children, culminating his tirade by striking a daughter in the face and hitting Mrs. Housel with a stool.

A rifle stood against a wall. Herschel Housel, 17, son, raced his father to the weapon. The youth reached it first, levelled the gun, and shot and killed his parent.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated the youth after three minutes' deliberation.

That New Cereal

a "VEGETABLE EFFECT"

. . . Let your children try it. See how they like this new creation by HEINZ of "57" fame

Probably you've heard that the exercise likely to be most beneficial is the kind people enjoy. That's true, frequently, of foods. HEINZ new, delicious Rice Flakes are a good example.

In rich, brown, crunchy, oven-toasted flakes of rice, HEINZ has included a fine, cereal-cellulose, a natural food-substance which is part of rice itself. But its volume increases four to six times when moisture is absorbed after eating.

NOT BRAN

This is important:

This new food-substance isn't bran, but is soft and fluffy—not harsh or irritant in any way! High in efficiency, it forms the mildest, gentlest, natural bulk and roughage that Science has produced. HEINZ includes it through a patented process after 8 years of development and more than 60 years' experience in food making.

Think, Mother, what this means to children who don't like vegetables—here's a food they do like with a "Vegetable Effect" plus all of the usual energizing food value of rice! Don't use it to supplant vegetables, but in addition to them. See how much easier regular health-habits are developed in this new, attractive way—unique in foods!

LET CHILDREN DECIDE

We will rest our case with a jury of children on the point of flavor only! We ask merely that you make a test for one week, serving twice daily to start the benefits; once daily thereafter to maintain them. If the children aren't delighted or if their health-habits are not definitely improved, your grocer will cheerfully refund the purchase price.

But remember, no other cereal of any type provides this extraordinary feature. To get it for your children, therefore, you must insist on HEINZ Rice Flakes. Just as good for grown-ups as for children.

ASK YOUR PHYSICIAN

He will tell you of the importance of the effects of cereal-cellulose in the absorption of moisture and the resulting bulk.

NEWS FROM HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Bebe Daniels to Ban Film Cameras When She Weds Ben Lyon

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 14.

When Bebe Daniels marries Ben Lyon on June 14, there will be no motion picture cameras concealed within the church. Neither will there be a microphone within the church to record the ceremony. I report this with delight. The custom of intruding camera and celluloid into wedding ceremonies has been growing in Hollywood. At one wedding, the camera perched in the choir balcony and clicked a strange accompaniment to impressive vocal numbers.

But Bebe will have none of this. Her wedding is not to be fodder for news reels. Any photographing to be done will be done later at the reception or home or outside the church or in the minds of those present. Bravo, salutes this department.

Bebe Daniels

Mrs. Phyllis Daniels, Bebe's mother, is busily attending to the multiple details involved in a wedding. I met her at Billy Radigen's studio, tother day, whence she went, accompanied by Marie Mosquin, to see the final sketches for the bridesmaids' gowns. The color scheme will be charming. Bridesmaids will be Marion Davies, Lila Lee, Betty Compson, Adela Rogers Hyland, Constance Talmadge, Diana Fitzmaurice, Miss Mosquini and May Sunday, with Mrs. Harry Martin (Louella O. Parsons) matron of honor.

Bebe's farewell to single bliss is being highlighted with numerous teas and showers. Last night, the local fem scribesters—with whom Bebe is that popular—gathered at Louella Parsons' apartment. Buffet supper. After which Bebe had to brave a barrage of eyes and good natured taunts and open sundry packages, all of which were paper gifts of some sort or other. A chuckly time, 'twas had by all."

BEN BERNIE IN FILM

Over at the active R K O studio, production begins soon on a song-ster comedy of the war, yclept "Present Arms." One Ken Murray, described to this colyum as a popular voodvilist, will be starred with Irene Dunne, an unknown to me, his heroine. Of particular interest will be Ben Bernie's debut into the talkies. Ben the w. k. maestro of the jazz moguls, is a modest sort of fellow. He and his band came West under an agreement with the Montmartre. This, however, does not interefere with pictures, or even stage engagements. Next Sunday, when Maurice Chevalier opens at the local Mayan Theater for a special one week engagement, Bernie and band will lend a hand in the festivities. But Ben, despite his popularity, is still the same little chap who played his way into the limelight of New York years ago. Which is unusual enough to merit comment.

STAGE FOR ONE WEEK

Appropos of Maurice Chevalier's plan to appear in a week's stage engagement here. I understand this is because no immediate story awaits him on the Famous lot. Chevalier was supposed to make a talky version of "Brewster's Millions," but turned this down as not suited to his type role. Some talk now about "The Little Cafe," one time stage play but a question mark to this department.

Irene Rich's first part in pictures was as an extra in Mary Pickford's silent film, "Stella Maris." Miss Rich received three dollars for her day's effort.

Dick Leibert Comes Back to Penn Organ

Dick Leibert, popular organist, will return to the Penn Friday. He has been absent, due to illness, for several weeks. He will present his usual organlogue, preceding the new stage revue, "Days o' Yore." This show also will mark the return of Wesley Eddy to the Penn in the role of guest master of ceremonies.

SINGS FOR SALESGIRLS

Helen Kane, who is appearing in person in the Stanley, entertains Pittsburgh Victor Record salesgirls. She sings "Dangerous Nan McGrew" and "I'd Go Barefoot All Winter Long For You," two numbers which she has recorded for the Victor Company. The songs are from her picture, "Dangerous Nan McGrew."

SOCIETY GIVES MUSIC FEST

Formal opening of the convention of Saint Gregory Society of America, was celebrated with solemn pontifical high mass and appropriate music in St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday. This society devotes its activities to furthering the cause of Gregorian music in the churches, and the delegates were given opportunity to hear a very beautiful work of that period, the "Fons Bonitatis" and "Credo III."

The music was sung by 1,000 school children under the direction of Father Carlo Rossini, choirmaster at the Cathedral, and was subject of great commendation by specialists from all parts of the country, as well thrilling religious music for all of us who were fortunate enough to be present. Not only was the procession of these choristers a most uplifting spectacle, but their singing of this pure music was of unified precision and sweetness for so large and so young a chorus.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. John Mark Cannon, Bishop of Erie, extolled the relation of the church and music. Lectures concerning Gregorian music will be read during the convention and this morning Father Rossini's Mass, "Factor Orbis" was to be sung.

I don't suppose that he'll come back again,
A dump like this was never meant for him;
His kind don't have to worry 'bout a Jane—
Who wouldn't fall? So clean and brown and slim.

We waltzed just once—he didn't hold me tight
Or have a line—just sort of smiled at me.
Gee, I'd have danced on that way all the night,
But breaks like that don't happen often, see?

It sure is strange—the difference in guys,
I hate the gang that clutters up this place;
The clammy hands—the beady little eyes—
It's pretty hard to find a decent face;

Each night they play that waltz my heart's a drum—
I wish—I wish to God he hadn't come!

—Jackson Hites.

Observation

Among other little things that make big paragraphs is discovering that John the Barber's place on West Forty-fourth, has a diverting past. The place was once the scene for "Honest" John Kelly's famous gambling house—where one night a Wall Streeter dropped $400,000, and where Nick the Greek made his first huge winnings. Later on the location was where one of New York's night clubs prospered—Cire's, a typical sucker rendezvous, and they clipped the chumps in style. Then it became a "steer" joint speakeasy, and now it is a barber shop, where (you just took the words out of our mouth) they are still being trimmed.

How!

Niles Bruce, former reporter on the Morning Telegraph and the Times, was fired from the New York staff of the Christian Science Monitor because he was caught taking an aspirin tablet during working hours.

The New Version

Albert Cass overhead it on a train away up in St. John, New Brunswick. Two lovely ladies (apparently from New York) were discussing a "dear" Scotch friend.

"That one! She is so close she wouldn't give a dime to see Walter Winchell executed."

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Polyphonic Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

One of the most enlightening choral programs ever given in Pittsburgh was sung by the Polyphonic Choir in Carnegie Music Hall last night under the direction of Father Carlo Rossini.

The music was chosen from all church vocal music from the earliest Greek fragments to the elaborate works of contemporary writers. The earliest and latest had organ accompaniment, but most of the choir's performance was a capella, and consistently of higher standard than they have ever sung before. But we are wondering how Father Rossini ever omitted the name of Bach from among all the great writers who are the milestones of musical history. Had he not founded the boy's choir and written those inimical motets in the century that was otherwise so barren of great religious music?

J. Fred Lissfelt

This concert was like a musical pilgrimage through the ages. How the simplicity of worship among the earliest Christians is exemplified in their first hymns was marvelously illustrated. It was easy to follow the elaboration of the musical figures with the glorification of the ceremonies in the great chapels, and then came that outburst of magnificent melody and tone in the music of Palestrina, who still holds the high place among church musicians. The influence of popular tunes was gently suggested in chorus of Jacobas Da Bologna, which found real favor with the singers and audience. Seldom do we find so many names of the great polyphonic composers so juxtaposed that we may realize their various characters. And when we finally arrive at the station of contemporary writing, how barren of the simplicity of religion does it appear against the simple strophes of those who worshipped in the catacombs.

The educational importance of this concert was vast, while it was a delight to listen to such good singing.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

PAIN
so easily relieved!

How to treat
Headaches
Neuralgia
Neuritis
or check a Cold

WHY are some women so patient with pain? Shopping with a head that throbs. Working when they ache all over. Sometimes it's hours before they take Bayer Aspirin and get relief! Most men take these tablets the moment that some ache or pain threatens their comfort. So should you. Genuine Aspirin is perfectly harmless; cannot depress the heart. The tablet stamped Bayer is always genuine Aspirin; always the same, always safe. So it isn't sensible to suffer with a headache, a cold, neuralgic pains, or anything else that these tablets relieve almost as soon as swallowed. Buy by the bottle and save money. Any drugstore has the 100-tablet size.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

IRVIN S. COBB will recite humorous anecdotes of the Kentucky Derby in the WCAE program at 10:30 tonight.

A Mobiloil Orchestra of 55 pieces will visualize a "Musical League of Nations" as the 8:30 presentation of WCAE. Royal Dadmun, a name new to radio but well recognized as a soloist with many large symphonies, will lend his baritone voice to "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," "Up From My Tears" and "Song of the Flea."

Irvin Cobb

We recommend again the entrancing music offered by Jo Tyler's Orchestra on WJAS at 7:30. This program, of network caliber, tonight will take listeners "on location" with a motion picture company. The stars run into a forest fire at Great Bear Lake.

"Contraban..." on WJAS at 8:30, has been rated highly. Two splendid programs at 9:30 will be the Grogan Organ Recital on KDKA and the Palmolive Hour, WCAE.

Charles Marshall of the Chicago Opera Company has been substituted for Edith Mason in the initia. Pittsburgh performance of the Westinghouse Salute.

Other changes may be made. Louis Kaufman is scheduled to a nounce.

* * *

The announcing of a network feature is the ambition of most mike-men. Lou has done network before, principally when President Calvin Coolidge talked at Tech on Founders' Day a few years ag.

Glenn Riggs' voice has been on the daytime network several times.

Dick Ridgely, 19-year-old xylophone player at KDKA, is the composer of another new song, "Dreams That Can Never Come True." A clever young artist, Lloyd Drake, who does portraits of folks around the studios, has drawn a nice cover for the piece.

At WCAE there's been composing, too. Allen Thrasher, witty announcer, and Ralph Federer, pianist, have collaborated on the song, "Forever," which will be sung by King Dough-Dough tonight at 8.

* * *

G. Herbert McGee is to return to WCAE this Sunday, succeeding Allen Thrasher, who will devote his full time to bonding. At night time thereafter McGee will alternate announcements with Fred Weber.

* * *

Frank Mulloy, of Pittsburgh's Fourth Estate, is now on the regular payroll at WCAE.

WEAF is to remodel its transmitter.

TODAY'S TID BIT:
Pittsburgh's contribution to radio was voiced over the world today when the five Westinghouse stations and auxiliary short wave stations broadcast the speech of H. P. Davis, "Father of Radio Broadcasting" from the Advertising Club luncheon in New York. His subject was "Pioneering in Broadcasting."

The bishop coadjutor will have the right of succession to the bishopric. Bishop Partride, who has been in ill health recently, requested that a bishop coadjutor be selected.

Easel painting is a thing of the past, says this famous New York critic. Today it's the mural, it alone is functional; it alone can survive the museum. KAUFMANN'S

Pasteboards To The Big Show Cost Less Where Many Buy Them

¶ Under the "Big Top" the acrobats are ready, the tight rope walkers poised for the big opening. And thousands buy the gay red pasteboards that say "Admit One to the Big Show."

¶ Now, suppose, instead of an audience of ten thousand, the public stayed away in large numbers. What would happen to the price of the pasteboards? Well, there'd be a hurry call for the printer, to print some new, shiny tickets at advanced prices—or else part of the elephants would be shipped back to Hoboken, or the show would disband.

¶ In plain words, the fact that your neighbors on the right and your neighbors on the left throng the ticket seller's window permits YOU to get in for less. And it's that way with a great store, too.

¶ More people buy "Little Red Pasteboards" at the Kaufmann ticket window than at any other in this part of America. And it's BECAUSE they do, that this store can, in so many cases, give you MORE for your money. Or ask LESS for the same goods.

¶ Over the period of a year pasteboards are quite an item.

FIRE DRILLS NOT HELD AT POLK ASYLUM

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

This is the season of woe for the new driver. He finds that he must take the driver's test. Dozens of would-be motorists line Washington boulevard, alongside Highland Park, to face critical masters—the state highway patrol—and in their hearts (the motorists' hearts) there is fear, if not trepidation.

We have never talked with a driver who regarded one of those Washington boulevard patrolman with warmth in his eyes. Rather, there is fire. We have heard many drivers say that if all the state highway patrolmen who gave drivers' tests were laid end to end, what a grand country this would be.

Inasmuch as the day may come when we will be forced to take the test, we do not agree with this sentiment.

The picnic season is creeping nearer every day, which means there will be more news of lost kiddies. No picnic is a success unless a few youngsters stray away from their mothers' strings, and we are glad to report that in this respect Pittsburgh stands high on the lost-kiddies list. If, indeed, the figures were available, you would probably find that Pittsburgh has enjoyed more lost kiddies at picnics than any other city in the country—and we submit this to the Chamber of Commerce for its Boost Pittsburgh program (we decided, just a second ago, that the Chamber of Commerce should have a Boost Pittsburgh program).

Cities are forever boasting of their many, varied industries, their climates and their good traffic systems. All this makes dull reading, which should be replaced by neat booklets which tell modestly just how many kiddies were lost in 1929, how many arrests were made for drunkenness and how many persons didn't know it was a one-way street.

We made an earnest attempt to obtain the exclusive lowdown on the gold leaf situation, but we failed. Attorney Elmer Ecker has moved from one office to another and when we saw the gold leaf man taking down the gold leaf letters which spelled Counsellor Ecker's name on his door we pounced upon him. He said the letters cost 70 cents each and that a W cost no more than an I, that he didn't know whether more E's were used than X's. Little as we learned from the gold leaf man, we deduced that Attorney Ecker, having fewer letters in his name, was more fortunate than Attorney Cunningham, for example. There are five Attorney Cunninghams—you can take your choice.

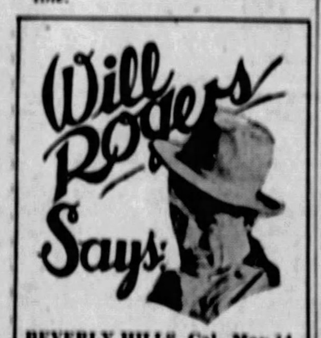
The telephone company, for some reason or other, has established that 30 words account for almost half of all the words used over the phones. The most popular word is "I," which indicates that actors, policemen and columnists are frequent users of telephones. The thirtieth word is him.

Eighty per cent of the telephone words are monosyllables because, we suspect, most of us stumble into confusion before we reach the second syllable. Monosyllables itself is a pretty hard word to pronounce, although not so difficult as Schenectady. And as for Nazimova, you might just as well get a busy line.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 14.

Mr. Hoover is to visit our National Parks this summer. He announced it at 9 o'clock Monday morning. At 9:30 (same morning) the Democrats denounced it.

They claimed he was fishing for votes instead of black bass. What the Democratic party has always needed is some smart, broadminded man, whose business it is to inform other Democrats "what to denounce, and what not to denounce." They are where they are today by picking on the wrong things. Let the poor man go wherever he wants to. After all we only elected him we didn't marry him.

Yours,
Will.

Board of Trade Leads Drive, Citing Steep Grades; Plan Swimming Pool Celebration

A protest meeting against the operation of one-man street cars on the Center-Lincoln route will be held by residents of the districts served by this line tomorrow night in the Lemington School.

The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Lincoln District Board of Trade. Howard F. Walker, chairman of the street railway committee of the civic body, contends that the many steep grades along the route make the one-man car operation dangerous.

The board also is planning to celebrate the completion of the Paulson avenue swimming pool and bath house which city officials expect to open July 15. Contract for the pool was let yesterday and work is to begin at once. The board also will discuss means of getting more night police protection for the Lincoln district.

SMALL STORES PRAISED

The welfare of the small merchant is of extreme importance to the department store in that the very existence of small stores keeps the larger organization on its toes to give better service to the public, Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., told the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board following a luncheon yesterday at the William Penn Hotel.

He declared that if the small independent merchant is forced out of business, the entire community suffers a distinct loss. He pointed out that other retail establishments do not profit by the absence of intelligent competition.

Concerning taxes, Mr. Kaufmann said: "The tax burden is coming very near to the line where it will become confiscation. Soon the owner may not find it to advantage to retain real estate holdings. The remedy is not in antagonizing public officials or in opposing worthwhile public improvements. It lies, I believe, in a constructive study to determine other sources of revenue."

File Motions for Two New Trials

Motions for new trial were filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday in two cases. They included those of Sam J. Wynn, Adelaide street, for injuries sustained by his wife, Eva B. Wynn, when shocked while using a telephone and the other in the case of Walter Schnabele, of the North Side, bitten by a German police dog owned by Michael Griffin. In the former case, against the Bell Telephone Company, the jury awarded $3,600 and in the latter $1,500.

Pitt Women Singers To Give Concert

Rankin, soprano, and Earl Mitchell, organist, will be the guest soloists. Miss Georgia Orwig will also sing a solo number. Harvey Gaul is directing the club.

Class to Present Play at Bellevue

The dramatic class of the First Presbyterian Church will present a play, "A Regiment of Two," tomorrow night in the social rooms of the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, under auspices of the Westminster Guild.

All-Day Services At West End Church

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Ken Will Marry Cecil to Please Dying Mother

CHAPTER XXXI.

In the first three days after her return to the city Ardeth had no word from Ken. What meager news she could glean from Jeanette did little to relieve her mind. Mrs. Gleason was close to death. Cecile was constantly at the apartment.

This last—a cold hand placed on Ardeth's heart.

She tried to reason her fear away. Of course she could not expect Ken's attention at a time like this! She must not be petty.

Ah, but if she could only be near him—to comfort him, if she could! To help him bear this wearing anxiety. A wave of bitter anger went over her at her own helplessness. She could not even have the dubious comfort of suffering with him. That place was reserved for Cecile.

At night she was afraid to leave her hotel room lest Ken should call her on the phone and miss her. She snatched a hasty dinner on her way up from the shop, and spent the long nights in her little aerie perched high above the city, waiting for the telephone to ring.

She could not read, much less settle down to sewing. Impossible now to work on those precious pink things which were to form her trousseau.

She spent the hours pacing the small room. Five steps brought her to the window . . . For the most part she sat looking out over the dark roofs to where the upflung lights of downtown painted the low-hanging clouds ruddy.

A Late Call

Phone Ring Arouses Ardeth From Bed

The Christmas rush in the stores was far removed—alien. Strange that it should be near Christmas. There was no holiday in her heart. All things were swept away by this strain of waiting.

Eleven. Eleven-thirty. Silly to wait up any longer. He would not phone tonight. Slowly she prepared for bed, her hands Lstless, her heart heavy.

She was awakened out of troubled dreams by the shrill appeal of the phone.

She was there, clinging to the transmitter, speaking nervously, without any recollection of getting there.

Ken's voice coming over the wire—such a strange, tight voice.

"I have to see you, Ardeth. Just have time for a few minutes. My only chance. Will you meet me downstairs if I drive around to the hotel?"

"In 15 minutes," she promised.

She hung up. Snapped on the lamp. Two-thirty. Her heart leaped. What could have caused Ken to call at such an hour?

Meets Ken

Great Change Has Come Over Him

Suddenly she began to shake with a nervous chill, her teeth chattering, hands so cold and clumsy that she had trouble putting on her clothes. She slipped into her heavy coat. Pulled her hat on, regardless. Across the room her own figure moved in the depths of the mirror; a glimpse of a white face and wide eyes as she let herself out of the door.

She winced at the creak of the automatic elevator as she pressed the button. A strange, frightening time to be going out!

The street before the hotel was cold and deserted and she huddled in the doorway until Ken's car shot around the corner.

He did not greet her. Nor did he get out. Just leaned over and opened the door, barely waiting until she slipped into the seat beside him before he started the engine again.

The girl's arms clung to him in alarm as the dark streets reeled by. A bleak change had come over Ken in the last few days. The whole outline of his face had sharpened and something of a gallant youth had been wiped away.

She was tremulously aware of something tragic lying between them. Aware—and afraid. Don't speak . . . words would bring it out of the shadows. Words would bring disaster.

She put out a hand and touched the sleeve of his overcoat as though to convince herself of his nearness. Without taking his eyes from the street ahead, Ken snatched that hand and held it hard against his lips for a moment.

"Ken, how—"

"Not here. We can't talk now. I want to look at you." He steered painstakingly about a taxi.

"But—your mother—"

"She's still alive."

Silence.

She could only wait, anxious eyes devouring her set profile.

Shocking News

Says He Is Going to Marry Cecile

A small, dark place suddenly loomed in their path. Ken swung the machine into the drive. The headlights gleamed on glossy shrubs, seeming a theatrical green in the glare. Then blackness rushed about them as he stopped the engine and snapped off the current. The watching girl could barely make out his face by the dim glare of an arc light some distance away.

"Well . . ." he turned to her, speaking still in that new tight voice, "now we can talk. But we mustn't take long; I have to get back. I had to see you, though. To tell you—to tell you—I'm going to marry Cecile."

She sat as still as some small, stunned animal.

He drew in his breath in a whistling sigh. "Tomorrow—at 5, in St. Matthew's Church. The church my mother was married in." He was painfully precise.

"Oh." Then, sharply as the news sunk in. "Oh!"

She was crying in his arms, her face pressed hard against the rough weave on his overcoat. Dreadful tears. Tears torn out of her heart. Scalding tears.

"Don't sweetheart . . . Ah, don't. . . . " His husky voice came smothered against her hair. He had pulled off her hat, pressed his face down on her head.

Madness bursting in her brain like a flash of red light. She had snatched his face down in an agony of defiance, her words came fiercely smothered against his lips.

"No! You can't! You're mine. . . . Mine . . . Mine . . . "

"Sweetheart, listen—" Gently he thrust her away. Holding her hands down in her lap with one of his own. Still he spoke in that tense, unnatural voice.

Mother's Wish

Ken Can't Refuse Her Last Request

"My mother is dying." He gulped. "She knows it. She asks only one thing. That I marry Cecile. What can I do?"

No answer but her torn sobs.

After a moment he burst out. "Don't you suppose I've gone over this and over it—all today—all tonight! I'm going mad. I think! To give you up—and I love you! God, I love you, Ardeth. It's wicked to marry one girl loving you the way I do! She—so little—and all. And lying there—dying!" His voice was tortured. "If you'd seen her eyes when I said I would. She tried to smile . . . "

"Oh, it's wrong!" rose her muffled wail. "No one can live another person's life!"

"Of course it's wrong!" his voice broke. "But what can I do? It's that, keeping her alive. How can I wipe that look off her face. Dying—she is! All my life—to know I'd refuse the last thing she asked . . . Oh, I can't! I will have killed her—you see that?"

"But . . . we love each other! Oh, I love you so! I'd die for you! God meant people to love each other when they married. Ken—you can't give me up!"

Straining her gaze up to his chalky face and shadowy eyes. A look in his eyes which turned him to a stranger. Bitter . . . withdrawn . . .

She gave a little broken cry.

ILL GIRL SHOT, MOTHER HELD

While 14-year-old Lillian Padubanis, of Treveskyn, lay in a critical condition in St. Francis Hospital from a bullet wound in the head, her mother, Mrs. Anna Padubanis, 37, was held in the county jail today, charged with the shooting, county detectives said.

The girl, suffering with a severe cold, was lying in bed when she was shot. The father, John Padubanis, and two children were sitting on the front porch of their home yesterday when they heard a shot. When he went into his daughter's bedroom, Padubanis, according to detectives, found his wife standing over Lillian's bed with a revolver in her hand.

A physician ordered the girl removed to the hospital. The mother was arrested by Detective Robert McMillen on a charge of felonious assault. Mrs. Padubanis was said to have been released from the Woodville Hospital, where she had been undergoing mental treatment.

Robinson Silver Exhibit Includes Rare Pieces

By PENELOPE REDD

That silver speaks a universal language whether it be minted into coins of the realm or fashioned into a caudle cup for a king, is evident in the James Robinson collection of silver now on view at the Kaufmann gallery.

The caudle cup with a boldly engraved design of strawberries and daisies is completed by handles formed in the favorite Renaissance device of women's figures. Molded in 1663, during the reign of Charles II, it is less restrained than the later Georgian items.

Penelope Redd

A fashion of Georgian days in England of the eighteenth century is found in the four Gothic candlesticks made in 1766, which inevitably suggest Horace Walpole and his Gothic mansion of Strawberry Hill.

The Robinson collection also includes examples of the famous silversmiths such as Paul Storr. His group of four covered dishes with the royal crown and cushion used as a decorative feature is one of the impressive examples in the exhibition.

Douglas Lorie, from Mr. Robinson's London establishment, in reply to a query concerning the quantities of Georgian silver which has appeared in the United States within the last decade said.

"Of course, it is a situation which is not likely to be repeated, inasmuch as the death duties have forced English families into the necessity of selling their ancestral plate.

"The majority of the silver in Mr. Robinson's collection was never out of the possession of the families for whom it was originally designed in the eighteenth century until now.

"In great houses, it was usual to have complete silver service for 200 or more guests which meant 400 silver plates with flat ware progressively increasing. In the United States today six dozen is considered a lavish number for 'dressing' the table.

"Fashionable tables are always Georgian, because the coffee pot found in London, may be mated to a cream jug discovered in Chicago, or a sugar basin picked up here. The overtone of the patrician is definitely stated in the character of his family silver."

BEDS TOUCH AS INMATES SLEEP

Overcrowding at Hospital Reaches 48 Per Cent; Disaster Possibility Seen

(Editor's Note — The recent fire at the Ohio state penitentiary at Columbus, in which more than 300 prisoners lost their lives, has led the Sun-Telegraph to inquire concerning conditions in Pennsylvania's penal and welfare institutions in which large numbers of persons are confined. The following article is the second of a series.)

By MAX HENRICI

Staff Correspondent.

POLK, Pa., May 9.—The State Hospital for the Insane at Warren, visited yesterday, is badly overcrowded, with patients sleeping in corridors and the beds in the dormitories so close together that there is scarcely room to pass between them. But the situation at the State School for the feeble-minded at Polk is far worse.

Here, the beds are so close together that they touch. There is literally no room between them. And not only that—some beds are double-decked, with one child sleeping above another. The inmates have to climb over one another's beds when they retire.

DEVOID OF CHAIRS

Since the dormitories are utterly devoid of chairs, hooks on the walls and everything else except narrow beds, the question was asked what the boys and girls did with their clothes when they undressed at night. The answer was that they laid them on their beds.

With standard bed capacity for 1,706 patients, based on an allowance of 50 square feet for each inmate, the Polk State School today houses 2,528, an excess of 822 or 48 per cent! And this in the face of the fact that a new building called "Sunnyside," which accomodates 400, was opened only last autumn.

Moreover, there is a "waiting list" of 241 meritorious applicants

CABBY INJURED, $50,000 ASKED

Charles F. Schaffer, Etna, taxicab driver for the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, has brought suit against Roy T. Parsons for $50,000 damages for a dislocated spine, the result of an automobile collision.

The accident occurred November 30 last at Station street and Collins avenue, the plaintiff alleging that Parsons' car was being driven so recklessly that Schaffer was jammed against the steering wheel of his own machine. Schaffer also suffered several fractured ribs and was otherwise injured about the body. His counsel is Ben L. Steinberg.

SINKING FUND BODY REJECTS OFFER OF BONDS ABOVE PAR

COUNTY SELLS 9 MILLIONS TO BANKS

Meeting of Commission First to be Held Since McGovern Controllership

At a meeting of the County Sinking Fund Commission, the first held since the hectic days of Commissioner Charles C. McGovern's administration of the county controllership, three of its members were authorized by resolution to purchase county bonds at par value or less to the amount of $100,000 at a time.

The meeting was called at the adjournment of a commissioners' meeting held yesterday at which the Mellon National Bank and Union Trust Company with two New York banking companies were awarded $9,050,000 worth of commissioners' and peoples' bonds.

Immediately after the award the bankers offered the county $800,000 worth of the bonds, at slightly more than par, for sinking fund purposes. The offer was not acted on. Controller Robert G. Woodside and Commissioner McGovern asked for time to consider it. Woodside suggested that the sinking fund commission meet yesterday afternoon. When it did, the offer was rejected and the authorization given to the controller, the treasurer and the chairman of the board of commissioners to buy bonds in the future at par or less.

The Sinking Fund Commission is composed of the three commissioners, the controller and the treasurer. Commissioner McGovern did not attend the meeting. The resolution was presented by Commissioner E. V. Babcock.

ASK ATTITUDE ON TOWNSHIPS

In an attempt to determine the attitude of the upper and lower house of the Legislature in regard to legislation dealing with townships, the Allegheny County Association of Township Commissioners has mailed a questionnaire to all candidates of both house in Allegheny County.

The first question reads:

"Would you favor legislation prohibiting the annexation of a portion of a township without first securing a majority vote of the residents of the township?"

The second question:

"Would you favor legislation prohibiting the establishment of a borough within a township without first securing a majority vote of the residents of the township?"

According to William E. Armstrong, president of the association, about 75 per cent of the questionnaires distributed have been answered. These show most of the candidates as favoring such legislation.

When the count is complete it will be made public, according to Mr. Armstrong.

NO FIRE DRILLS AT ASYLUM

for admission, for whom room cannot be found in the school at the present time.

In the absence of the superintendent of the institution, Dr. Harvey M. Watkins, the assistant superintendent, Dr. William J. Steward, was interviewed.

NO FIRE DRILLS

The school receives its inmates, he said, from 33 counties in Western Pennsylvania, and the majority are imbeciles and idiots. He was asked if the children were occasionally given a fire drill, and replied that they were not, as their intelligence was of too low a level to make such a drill worth while.

The children are not kept under severe restraint except a small group of chronic runaways, who are confined in a farm colony at some distance from the main buildings of the school.

While the school structures at Polk are built of non-inflammable materials, and there is an absence of the locks and bars so much in evidence at the State Hospital for the insane at Warren, the question of what might happen if a blaze should break out cannot but raise misgivings.

FIRE PERIL GREAT

With the institution 48 per cent overcrowded and the inmates of so low an order of intelligence that it is regarded as futile to attempt to teach them how to behave in he event of fire, there seem to be possibilities of disaster in the situation.

One thing that can be done is to have the Legislature provide more buildings and relieve the congestion.

Yet Dr. Steward said Polk would ask no appropriation to permit the erection of the new houses so badly needed because there is another State school for the feebleminded in the Eastern part of Pennsylvania whose need is much greater.

Citizens will inquire why the Commonwealth cannot make proper provision for its unfortunate defectives wherever they may live.

SNELL RESIGNS AS CHAMBER MANAGER

Friendly Disagreement on Policies Cited; Officers Of Organization Renamed

Friendly disagreement upon fundamental policies relating to the work of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has caused the resignation of Arthur V. Snell as general manager. Snell, who has been manager for five years, tendered his resignation to the board of directors at their annual reorganization meeting yesterday.

Snell's resignation, according to his letter, followed a conference with President James Rae and members of the executive committee. The resignation is to take effect this fall.

TO QUIT IN FALL

Snell's letter of resignation follows:

"Following a conference with President Rae and your executive committee, due to friendly disagreement upon fundamental policies relating to Chamber of Commerce work, I herewith tender my resignation to take effect this fall, as per understanding with the executive committee.

"I wish to express at this time my sincere appreciation of the cordial co-operation of all the members of the board and officers of the chamber, extending over a period of five years, during which I have been associated with the Pittsburgh Chamber. My relations have been most friendly with each and every member of the Board and I am forced to take this action with greatest regret."

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

After tendering his resignation Snell issued a statement to the public, calling upon local business men to support the chamber which he said was one of the best bodies of its kind in the country. He said he proposes to give his entire time to commercial organization development.

Snell refused to comment other than in his statement on what the "fundamental principles" mentioned were, but they were understood to mean expansion and expenditure.

Rae, secretary-treasurer of the Arbuthnot - Stevenson Company was re-elected president of the chamber at the reorganization meeting. The board also renamed Thomas A. Dunn, first vice president; Frank J. Chesterman, second vice president; Lloyd W. Smith, third vice president; W. S. Linderman, treasurer, and D. S. Kerr, assistant treasurer.

GRADUATIONS AT P. C. W.

The Rev. Dr. Miles H. Krumbine, of Plymouth Church, Cleveland, will be the speaker at the commencement exercises of the Pennsylvania College for Women June 9 at 11 a. m. in the assembly hall of the school.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Should a child be named at birth or should it be given the right to select its own name upon reaching the age of discretion?

Ralph C. Davis

ATTY. RALPH C. DAVIS, Downtown: Yes, the child should be named at birth. It is obvious that this be done both for family and sentimental reasons. No child should go through formative years without some identification. A name is the answer.

D. Lee Pryde

D. L. PRYDE, Downtown: I do not agree with those who contend a child should be named at birth. The child should be permitted to select its own name. I was permitted to choose mine, and I know I'm well satisfied.

Mrs. Bulger, Jr.

MRS. MILES G. BULGER, JR., Mt. Lebanon: If parents agree to call their offspring sane and sensible names, then I am heartily in favor of naming babies at birth. If not, then I say give the child the privilege of selecting his title.

Mrs. Charles

MRS. KATHERINE CHARLES, Razlewood: I believe in baptism in infancy. Through baptism the child must be given a Christian name. Aside from this a name serves as a convenient title throughout those formative years when otherwise the child would go nameless until he had become old enough to have reached a decision.

Mrs. Haddock

MRS. WILLIAM HADDOCK, Dormont: I don't believe in waiting until children have reached five or six years of age before giving them a proper name. However careful consideration at birth or shortly afterwards seems to be the most plausible solution.

Miss Coniwell

MISS MARY M. CONIWELL, Oakland: There is a possibility that some children, when named at birth, in later years wouldn't select the names their parents have given them. However, if the common, old-fashioned names are used, I don't think the children would have any objection.

CITY OPPOSES NEW MOTOR TRUCK LINE

Three Hearings Held Here By Public Service Board; Clash on Station Agent

Three sets of hearings were conducted by the representatives of the Public Service Commission here today, with Charles Young, New Castle; W. E. Best, Pittsburgh, and Samuel Walker, of Butler, sitting as examiners. Commissioner James Benn, of Philadelphia, was also here for a conference with Interstate Commerce Commission representatives.

Commissioner Young's first case was that of the E. H. Scott Transportation Company, which seeks to operate motor vehicles as common carriers between here and Erie. The application was opposed by railroad company representatives, and by the City of Pittsburgh. City officials said the company's heavy trucks would damage the streets. A decision will be announced later.

WOULD CLOSE STATIONS

The application of the New York Central Railroad in which it sought authority to remove the station agent from Starford, Indiana county, was heard before Commissioner Walker. P. M. Barrow, train master, told the commissioner that Starford has a population of only 275, according to the 1930 census.

E. E. Nupp of Starford denied the statement and asked permission to question Barrow.

"Where did you get those figures?" he asked.

"That's no concern of yours," Barrow replied.

After some altercation, Barrow finally admitted he got the figures from census workers.

"Those figures are not right," Nupp told the commissioner, "I know because my son is the enumerator in Starford."

BUS LINE OPPOSED

The Sauers Brothers Company, operating a bus line from the Pennsylvania-West Virginia state line at Chester, made application before Commissioner Walker for permission to extend the service to Pittsburgh.

Pennsylvania Railroad and Pittsburgh Railway representatives opposed the application. It was brought out under cross examination that three years ago, John Sauers, one of the owners, opposed a permit sought by the Pittsburgh-East Liverpool Bus Company, allowing them to operate on the same route, on the grounds that such a service was not needed.

The wedding took place at Butler, September 23 last. Following dinner, Mrs. Derr says her husband, who was a widower, said he was going home to get some clothing. At 11 o'clock that night he called up and told her he would not be back. Mrs. Derr was a widow before her marriage to Derr.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Sister to Be June Bride's Attendant

Bridal-minded young women are now beginning to think of all the many fascinating details for their weddings in June. And some of the June ceremonies will be as simple as early spring weddings, and others will be attended by all the smart world. And some brides will have one attendant and some may have as many as 10 or 12. There was a girl in New York recently who had 20 maids to precede her to the altar.

One of the most charming of the smaller weddings will be that of Eleanor Tiers, daughter of Mrs. William N. Ogden and of Clarence Van Dyke Tiers of Oakmont, and granddaughter of Mrs. Harry S. Paul of Oakmont which is set for June 5. And the bridegroom-to-be is George C. Quelch, Jr., son of the George C. Quelches of Oakmont. The wedding will take place in the Oakmont St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, built in memory of the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. Jacob Paul.

Eleanor will have only one attendant, her sister Alice. And Ralph Quelch will be his brother's best man.

POPULARITY OF FLOWERED CHIFFONS IS INCREASING

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 14.—Flowered chiffons continue to grow in popularity each successive season. At first, rather fewer flowered chiffons than usual were shown in the various collections, but the demands of women everywhere for their favorite warm weather ensembles have resulted in quite a representative showing of alluringly smart chiffon ensembles printed in various designs, both delicate and bold. So far, the honors seem to go to the delicate, hazy, indefinite pattern, although the opposite type may gain in favor later on. Leaf and floral patterns offer a cool and refreshing appearance and so, it is no wonder that these prints maintain their popularity for summer wear. The printed chiffon ensemble that will be shown later in the season have mostly straight and short little jackets, worn with sleeveless frocks, and we think that you will enjoy their cool charm when you get around to wearing them.

THE CHIFFON afternoon ensemble depicted is from the very good looking and comprehensive summer collection of Augustabernard. It is of beige chiffon printed in rather large but delicate floral design done in red. A scarf and a rather large, shaggy flower of the chiffon trim the short, straight jacket. The bodice, plain and sleeveless, is belted at a conservatively high waistline, and the skirt has double tiers of flounces with circular godets placed at regular intervals, and is of sensible length.

BERETS IN straw are of vast importance here, because of their chic and soft comfort. Fine Milan straw is especially favored for these berets as it is so supple and can be so easily manipulated and draped. The model shown here is by Madame Jose, who makes it of the finest Milan straw, very soft and flexible in quality. It is drawn down at the nape of the neck, and bound in place with a bow of black satin ribbon.

The average American breakfast is killing more people between 40 and 60 than whisky ever did, George E. Harter, founder-director of the Defensive-Diet League of America, told an audience in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church last night. Mr. Harter was speaking on "Foods That Feed and Foods That Kill" under auspices of the local committee of the league, and tonight he will give the third and last talk in his Pittsburgh series.

He declared that the incorrect use of otherwise perfectly good food is the predominant factor producing ill-health today, and that food is the primal factor in the preservation of health and the causation of disease. His facts, Mr. Harter stated, were arrived at through the actual feeding of human beings. He discussed at length the proper proportion, combination and selection of foods and said meat and bread are the two foods that human beings can do without.

Tonight Mr. Harter will speak on "The Correct Selection, Preparation and Combination of Our Common Foods."

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXXXV.

On a spring day a year and a half ago there had been a different seal on Chickie's finger. That was the day of promise. They sat under their tree. He told her, not impulsively as he had the months previous—but with a dark, intent glory in his eyes he told her that he loved her. But they'd have to wait—wait and wait.

Pooh—she laughed. Years weren't so long. What of five or six and hearts are young! She had taken his face in her palms; she had pressed the fourth finger of her left hand against his lips making him kiss it, murmuring with a radiance of joy. Now! Do you see what you have done. Oh stumbling, isn't it!

She told him, he had put a seal on her finger. It was his now—that finger. They were each other's—always. Nothing would alter that. Just then a bird winged upward with such rhythm to the sky that tears and songs ran all together in her thoughts. Oh—love was pure and beautiful—a thing of music and of dreams——

Chickie looked at the wedding ring, letting the storm and bitterness shake her. Her spirit wasn't changed. She could yet fancy life garmented in silver, yet muse with tender yearning for the sweetness and the youth that was passed. She half wondered in a baffled way, like a child that has been cheated, how all this had come about, why she should be standing here in her room crying.

Jennie came to her door. An excited flush stained her cheeks. "That same young man phoned, Chickie. He phoned twice."

Chickie steadied herself on a chair arm, not then cold with indignation. "Persistent, isn't he?"

"His voice is so like Barry's."

"Ho—was the phone call from out of town, Jennie, dear?"

"Now, I don't know. He didn't say. He's to call again." Jennie had a letter in her hand. Now she remembered it. "For you, dear—special delivery."

Barry Leaving

Chickie came forward with affected indifference. "That's from the office, mother. My check—I told them to be sure and send it."

It was from him. Chickie closed her door and stood against it. She was shaking with anger—with a sudden pity for herself. Why need he make it harder—why should he write—

"I waited till midnight for you on Thursday, Chickie. Then I got your enclosure back on Friday. I half expected this—but will it do any good now to act so rashly?

"Perhaps you can think more calmly at a distance from me; perhaps you can realize that only the utmost caution and foresight will carry you through this. So I don't know what you're going to do if you won't look at things sanely. Why let this bitterness against me hurt you still further? There's been tragedy enough.

"To meet the future you'll need money. However hard it may be to take it from me, it is surely better to endure this than to run the risk of open disgrace. Look at it that way.

"You ought to leave now. Go to some other place and take a small apartment. It will be better to tell your folks you're going on a vacation. Later write to them that you've been offered a good job and you want to work where you are for a few months. That will be easier than a sharp break. When it is over you can return. And if you plan well, no one need ever know of this. It has been done before.

"I'm leaving today. I'm forced to. You can reach me in care of the company. Just send me your address and I'll see that you don't lack for funds."

Burns Letter

She struck a match and held the folded letter in her hand, letting the flame lick along the edge; watching the white, thin spiral of smoke. The tips of her fingers burned. But the charred paper held together, moulding itself—a great, black lily.

She felt a twisting—then a shiver as when a thing dies. It was the last pulse of her love. She wept because it was so still.

Yet her caution seized his advice. Go away blithely—pretend it was just for a vacation—later write and tell of some glowing job.

She was afraid of a big city—afraid of any place where many people gather. Her instinct sought remoteness—some far, deserted spot without enchantments—without lures to bring visitors. So she had fastened on the idea of a farm distant from any town.

Wednesday and Thursday she went down to the post office seeking an answer to her letter. She had given her address as "General Delivery" and her name as "Mrs. John Clayton."

Standing in the wide corridor, she glanced about furtively and hurried to the window. Friday the letter came. She rushed from the building, walking swiftly. The strong, regular handwriting reassured her. Then the signature, "Agnes Robbins."

She liked the name of Agnes because of "David Copperfield" and his beautiful love. People with that name had a kindness and a charm for her.

Mrs. Robbins was a widow, and since the death of her husband the previous year she had managed their farm. She did her own cooking. There were no other women about. It was lonely. She advertised for a boarder more because she wished company than for the money entailed.

If Mrs. Clayton wanted a rest, if she didn't mind solitude then the widow was certain she would be pleased. It was an old farm house, but the room was airy and latticed with grape vines. The rate was $9 a week for board and room.

Chickie bit her lips, reading all this—such a sparkling vacation—so gay—

Draws Savings

Fever sped through her. She could feel her eyes burn. She wrote her acceptance. Agnes Robbins might expect her on the train Monday evening.

She went to the bank and drew out all her money. She didn't need to take funds from him. There was pride in that.

That January when she had received the raise and had so jubilantly said to him: "I'll save—why, in a year I'll have $300—enough to furnish the living room—" he had frowned.

But she had saved. Later after her return from the Sound and she had waited with such passionate unrest for the day when they might marry, she had saved more. She thought: "I'll have $1,000, and that will be a gift to both of us!"

In all she had $813.

As she walked out of the bank she said to herself grimly: "Well,—shroud and coffin all bought! Bring on the corpse!" She was shaking—a burning hand at her throat—a weakness in her knees.

She was afraid that she was going to scream—that she was going to rush against that stone building there and beat her hands; or that she was going to sink down in the street and cry.

When she went home and all Saturday, she went about, tremulous—starting with bitter impatience at the slightest sound. Jennie said: "Chickie, dear—why, you're all upset! And you going off on such a fine vacation!"

Prepares to Leave

They were both in Chickie's room and she was gathering her clothes—putting them in a trunk. Jennie kept running to the kitchen to press out a dress, to get tissue paper. Chickie hid her face now in the folds of silk. She had a wild impulse to say: "Mother—oh, mother—I'm not coming back—do you know that! Tell that to Jonathan! Oh, yes—"

Sunday she followed Jennie to the garden. She helped her train the vines. Afterward she combed Jennie's hair. She tied a blue ribbon at Jennie's neck—"To match your pretty eyes, mother darling. I got my eyes from you, didn't I?"

Jennie blushed. She looked up shyly and smiled. "Your father says you did."

She made a great fuss over Jonathan. She manicured his nails to "keep him dashing for the fair ones" while she was gone. She sat on his lap and held her face near his. But when she tried to speak, no word at all would come. He felt her tears and said: "Chickie, girl, you make believe. Ah, you'll not be thinking a bit of your dad tomorrow night."

She said, pleading and quiet: "Oh, never think that, Jonathan—Jonathan, darling—"

She lay awake all night. She got up once and stood outside their room. Her father snored. She listened until her trembling made her teeth chatter. She wanted to go in and kneel at their bed—kneel there and kneel. If she might die like that—

Household Hints

Bathing caps and other rubber goods can be kept fresh and new by giving them a "bath" in talcum powder, when dry, after use.

Strengthen gas mantles before using by saturating them in vinegar to which a teaspoonful of salammoniac has been added. Allow to dry thoroughly.

* * *

Turning a true hem for handstitching is not always an easy task, but the success of it depends on the sartorial precision. If the linen or other fabric, is run through the machine hemmer without using any thread in the needle, the fold will be made evenly and definitely. There will be a sureness in the hand stitches that will lend an attractive quality to the finished piece.

"COME ON IN, THE WATER IS FINE!" -:- DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

Cast of Characters—The mermaid, a professional, sits on a brown sea-rock thrust up from the sun-drenched sand. She laughs. She has a jimp little figure, strong and proud. Webs between her fingers. I was going to say, dear me, between her toes, too! Down to her waist she is a lovely pearl color. But from there she deepens through palest shades of green to a rich velvety and jeweled blue-green of the angel fish. And she ends—oh, name of lost Romance—in a fine, strong fluke that can make civil the rudest wave! Just now she is flapping it idly on the sand, flicking off sea water in diamond sprays. Around her neck she wears a necklace of kelp and red seaweed with a shell or two gleaming among the greenery. Her hair is a silken, bright green.

The girl, an amateur, lounges on a water-proofed silk rug in the lee of a brown old bovine rock and a gay parasol. Her swimming suit is brief and ties in bows in the latest manner. Her nails glitter in the sun. She, too, has a jimp little figure. She is quite a way from the water and, though she CAN swim, she is not wet. Her hair was made curly with hot tubes while she smothered in a big white sheet. She has two pretty white legs and no tail at all. Her jewelry is pearls out of the first character's home—the sea. Her hair is bright golden.

The first character is smiling at the second, and her line is:

"Come on in; the water is fine!"

Love's Reawakening -:- Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Expedition Starts for Bank With 'Fortune'

Involuntarily my eyes followed the absorbed gaze of Jim and Jerry Tiger to the other side of the road. I was femininely curious to see what had so engaged their attention as to make them oblivious of my father and me as we came down the steps to the car. But my father's annoyance was greater than his curiosity. Even as I looked across the road I heard his voice in crisp displeased accents.

"Jim! Jerry! Do you not see Mrs. Graham?"

Both the man and the boy jumped—distinctly, but only Jim was abashed. With a muttered "excuse me," he hurried to the side of the car and threw the door open. But my father motioned to the front seat.

"Mrs. Graham will drive," he said. "Jim, you will sit beside her, Jerry get in the back with me. Are you ready, Margaret?"

For the fraction of a second I did not stir, but kept my eyes fixed on the opposite side of the road. Why I did so I do not know, for the sight which Jim and Jerry had been watching was a most prosaic one, that of a bald-headed man, with the hood of his car opened, inspecting some refractory bit of mechanism.

But that look made me catch my breath with a vague sense of having met the man somewhere under distressing—even terrifying circumstances. Yet my common sense told me that I never before had seen this unoffending—and unfortunate motorist.

I came back to myself with a jerk, and climbed hastily into the seat behind the wheel in obedience to my father's dictum that I should drive.

"Don't speed, Margaret, but drive 30 unless there is traffic."

Heroically I suppressed a smile at his persistent conversation where my speed rate of driving is concerned, and sent the car along with meticulous obedience to his orders.

"That sure is one patient feller," Jerry proclaimed a minute later with his irrepressible tendency to talk at any moment, propitious or otherwise upon any subject that happens to engage his volatile attention.

"Why?" To my surprise my father put the question with a most comradely air.

"Because he's been at that car so long," Jerry returned. "When Pa and me come down awhile ago, he had it up in the yard yonder behind those trees tinkering on it. He must have got it to going good enough so he could get it down in the road here, and then it must have went bad on him again. He's either awful dumb or else he's flat broke. If he wasn't he'd have come and asked to telephone a garage long before this. He's kind of a mean-tempered cuss, too. I shouldn't wonder, for when me and Pa started into the yard to ask him whether he didn't need any help, he just stuck his old bean down and pretended not to see us coming.

"I only hope he stays out there and the cops pick him and his car both up."

"That would be retribution indeed, Jerry," my father said.

"Yeah?" replied Jerry, plainly uncomprehending, and I choked back a laugh at the boy's naivette.

But two minutes later when we were well along the turnpike, any mirth in my system was swiftly dispelled by Jerry's excited announcement:

"Well! what do you know about that? The feller's got his car fixed and is coming along the road fast. He turned that corner as if eight cops was chasin' him, and he had only one chance! to get away."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, May 15.

A day of rather peculiar developments, with unusual or singular events or experiences is predicted from the strong position with regard to the moon of Neptune—the erratic, eccentric and intriguing. The aspect favors new projects, especially those in negotiations with large corporations, mergers or secret societies. New undertakings may be pushed, with due precaution as to deception, fraud or misrepresentation in either verbal or written agreements. Personal matters are also of intriguing aspect.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of peculiar or eccentric occurrences, with stratagem and intrigue dominant in affairs. New projects, especially those in connection with corporations, trusts or secret orders.

A child born on this day should be clever and shrewd, inclining perhaps to make large deals of a subtle or strategic character.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

When Marriage 'Takes'

The astonishing thing, today, is not that so many married couples separate or divorce, but that so many of them go right on living together after the ties that bind have sagged in the middle and come apart.

Long after love or duty or public opinion has ceased to hold them, many a disillusioned pair jog along cheerfully side by side, without knowing why.

Habit, convenience and community property are bonds between husband and wife, which will outlive the rosiest romance and strengthen with the years.

A little wire-haired terrier or a little motor car have held many a man and woman together until their marriage has jelled.

Who is going to have the moral responsibility of deciding which shall have the custody of the pet Peke or the toy bull? No impersonal judge can determine whether a man or his wife is more fit to bring up Mimi or Chou-chou in the way it should go!

As for the car. A man NEEDS a car, and a woman just can't get along without one. So there! The thought of giving up the dear old limousine has made many a woman think twice before filing divorce papers. And any humane man shudders at the vision of turning over the helpless machine, which he has spent so many Sunday mornings keeping in perfect repair, to a woman who has no sense when it comes to driving a car to death, and can never decide between a ditch and a telegraph pole.

Then, there is the radio. A woman needs it in the morning to work by. She gets positively addicted to running the vacuum cleaner to the rythm of "South Sea Rose," or rattling the dishes to the notes of "Just a Dreamer." She shudders to think how still and lonely the house would be without an announcer. And what mischief would a married man get into without a little radio to greet him in the evening? It's really a MORAL issue!

* * *

And, there are the community sandals, and the family shoehorn and the bath-sponge you brought from the tropics. And his pen-knife, and her cold-cream; his warm, wooly bathrobe and her manicure scissors; his big, soft handkerchiefs for removing the make-up; and her hair-pins for cleaning his pipe. You SEE how it is!

Who is going to dry his safety razor and fix his spinach and put his boots on the right trees and make him gargle his throat with aspirin? Who is going to bring in the evening papers and set the clock by his watch and take the dog out for a walk and carve the fowl and mix the punch?

Some other man? Some other woman? Perish the thought! Thus do so many marriages pass safely over the breaking point—until they "click" again, and go on securely.

When two lives have become intertwined, it's just too much exertion to untangle them.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Blackheads can be removed by a process of dry cleaning. Dip a soft cloth in benzine (not benzoin), let most of it evaporate and go over the skin lightly. Clean the skin surface as you would clean the surface of a soiled glove. Keep benzine away from flames. Seems silly to say that, since everybody knows it is inflammable, but one can't be too cautious. Bathe the face afterwards with warm water and a bland soap, then apply cold cream. The benzine digs oil and dust from the pores.

All manner of influences demolish the soft under tissues of the face, causing the outer casing to fall into wrinkles. Malnutrition does it. Dissipation and late hours are beauty wreckers. Ill health is a common destroyer of the elasticity and tone of facial tissues. Emotional excesses and the bad habit of twisting the face into knots when talking are swell little wrinkle makers. Prevention is easier than cure. Every woman should keep in her mind's eye a picture of herself as she would like to be 10 years hence. It will spur her to action.

Decaying food lodged between the teeth sets up a state of fermentation, creates destructive acids and breeds bacteria, all of which is bad for the health and beauty of pearly fangs. Brushing must be of the kind that makes a clean sweep. It must include the side walls of the teeth and the bases close to the gums. After the brushing, it is advisable to use a mouth wash, swishing it between the teeth, cleaning the mouth and tongue thoroughly.

Facial gullies, streaking from the nostrils down to the mouth ends, are sometimes inherited, sometimes due the bony structures of the face, and some times are created by the individual who wears the lemonated phiz. They are disfiguring and make the upper jaw prominent. If they aren't old settlers, they can be effaced to a certain extent by applying a heavy cream, holding the flesh flat between the first and second fingers of the left hand and given a circular motion of the first finger of the right hand. Begin at the bottom of the line and work upward. Follow a gentle tapping and patting. Finish with an ice rub.

How to Keep Well

Your Vacation Time

DR COPELAND

Now is the time when everybody is thinking of vacation time. Some of our friends will be flitting to foreign shores. Others will be off to the country, the seashore or the mountains.

For those who cannot get away for any extended stay, a day now and then or an occasional weekend in the country can be planned. Every opportunity should be taken to get a change of environment and to be out-of-doors.

Summer is the very flower of the seasons. America is particularly fortunate in its varied and beautiful countryside, mountainside and shore. Travel is made easy. Almost everyone has a car, a boat, or perhaps travels by air. Pretty soon the airways will be filled to over flowing with trippers through the skies.

When you go on vacation it is very wise to go where you can best recuperate your physical and mental self. At least, that is what a vacation should do for you. It is best to put in those vacation days having all the pleasure and all the recreation you possibly can. But one must not lose sight of the fact that sleep and rest are needed, too. Do not come home more tired than you began your vacation.

Health is the most important thing in life, and it is most vital to happiness.

Hundreds of years before the advent of the white man, the American Indians recognized the health potentialities of climate, air and water, sunshine and seafood. They made long pilgrimages to the shores of sea and lake, hoping that their sick might regain health, strength and vigor.

For those who are recovering from illness, the vacation should be a time of long hours of sleep or rest in the out-of-doors and in the sunshine if possible. A change of scene, good food and some temperate recreation, do wonders for one who has been a shut-in.

The babies and children should live and play joyously out-of-doors these long summer days of vacation. Many of the poor children of the cities are now sent to camps, to playgrounds, to the parks and near-by country places. The little child who has suffered from rickets, malnutrition, whooping cough, or any of the diseases of childhood, will need to be out in the sunshine long hours in order to build up the health. The curative powers of the sun's rays are yours for the asking these summer days. Make the most of them.

These brief periods of rest are wonderful tonics for tired men, women and children if rightly used. There are wonderful things to see in this beautiful world. We all need vacations. We are living in a strenuous age and for those who have but one vacation in the year, the most should be made of it. I hope that everyone may have a happy and most beneficial vacation this summer.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Condolence

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We have recently lost our mother and wish to write cards or notes of thanks for flowers sent. Will you please tell me how to write it?

2. We are both married. If a note is sent how should we sign it? READER.

For every note of sympathy that is sent to you and for every box of flowers, you or your sister should write a note of thanks. It need not be long, one or two sentences is enough—and it need not be sent at once. But it should be written, a note, not a "ready-made" card of thanks.

For instance:

"Dear Mrs. Worthington:

It was most kind of you to send us such a comforting note of sympathy, and we are most grateful to you. Thank you, too for the beautiful flowers that brought us your friendliness and sympathy.

Best wishes from us, and our deepest thanks.

Most sincerely yours,

MARY ALLEN GRANT,

(Mrs. Nathan Grant)."

Dear Marie:

Thank you and Bob—from us all—for your most kind and thoughtful sympathy, and for the beautiful roses that brought us such a friendly message of devotion and courage.

Devotedly yours,

MARY GRANT.

2. If you and your sister write to very close friends, you would probably sign only your first name:

Lovingly yours,

MARY;

or your informal married name:

Devotedly yours,

MARY ALLEN GRANT.

If the friends to whom you are writing perhaps do not register your formal married name, you add this in parenthesis:

Most sincerely yours,

MARY ALLEN GRANT,

(Mrs. Nathan Grant.)

POWERFUL BACK MUSCLES

Battling Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., who, at 22, is the featherweight boxing champion of the world, is training in the gymnasium of the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A., in Oakland, for his 10-round battle with Vic Burrone, of New York, which will serve as the windup feature of the opening show of the season at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tomorrow night. Above are three typical views of the champion. He is a hard hitter and it is no secret where he gets his punch when his shoulder muscles are observed. He uses 16-ounce gloves to protect his hands and spare his sparring partners in the gymnasium. The champion possesses both stamina and punch, being able to take it as well as give. His title will not be at stake in the bout here.

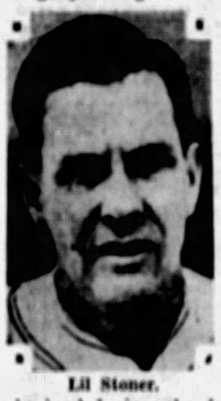
WEAK FLINGING MAY BRING SHAKE-UP

THE SHIPPING OF Lil Stoner back to the Texas League may be only the first step in a general shakeup of the Pittsburgh pitching staff if there isn't a marked improvement very soon in the work of some of the Pirate flingers. And there is no question that the Buc management will be warranted in taking such measures in an effort to put the local team on the winning road again, for the long slump of the Rovers has been due to unsteady and ineffective pitching more than to any other cause.



Lil Stoner.

Illness and injury have put the club in a sorry state, it is true, and it cannot be expected to play up to normal with Pie Traynor and the Waner brothers missing from their posts. But the other players have been hustling and fighting hard under the severe handicap, the home fans have been patient and loyal, and far better results would have been obtained during the last two weeks if some of the flingers counted upon to hold up the defensive end had delivered even a fair grade of slab goods.

BUT UP TO date, Ervin Brame and Steve Swetonic have been about the only members of the chucking corps to perform like major league pitchers or to come through with any degree of consistency. Even in its crippled condition, the club would have made a much better record but for the failure of some of the other moundsmen to hold the enemy to reasonable figures.

Just what the right sort of pitching would have meant to the limping but fighting Pirates may be judged from the fact that one game was lost in which the locals made 10 runs, one in which they scored nine times, another yesterday in which they registered eight tallies and still another in which they piled up seven markers. Out of a total of 135 home runs made in the National League up to today, 31, or almost one-fourth, have been hit against the Pittsburgh pitchers. Even in their full strength the Bucs would have a hard time winning behind that kind of hurling.

THOUGH CHUCK KLEIN, holder of the National League record for home runs made in one season, pinched a four-baser into the right-field stand at Forbes Field yesterday, he did not succeed in overtaking Hack Wilson in the race for 1930 honors.

Hack Wilson.

For Wilson turned in another homer for the Cubs during the afternoon and thus retained the major league leadership. Hack is still out in front with nine to his credit, followed by Klein with eight, and Bill Terry, Travis Jackson, Babe Herman, Chick Hafey and Jimmy Foxx with six each.

FORBES FIELD APPEARS to be a soft spot where slumping teams can get a new start. The Braves pulled themselves out of a rut by winning two games in a series of three here, though they have since skidded again to the extent of losing seven tilts in a row. The Giants had lost four out of six when they arrived in Pittsburgh, but since they first encountered the Bucs they have won six out of nine. The Phillies had lost nine of their last 10 games when they docked here yesterday and had won only one contest on the trip, that at Cincinnati on May 9, yet they were able to get going again as soon as they hit the Oakland lot, and the Pirates were bowled over for the tenth time in their last 13 engagements.

PITCHER LIL STONER came into possession of an odd record when the Pittsburgh management sold him outright to Fort Worth. He has been sent back to the same minor league club three times. Detroit released him to Fort Worth in 1923 and again in 1929, and now the Pirates have transferred him again to that team.

Stoner looked like a good bet when the Corsairs brought him back to the big show, but he was unable to get the right control of the splendid curve ball he owns. He finished three games for the locals and did a short relief job in one other contest. All told, he pitched only 5 2-3 innings, in which he allowed seven hits and three earned runs.

DEVELOPMENTS THUS FAR would appear to indicate that the

FROSH RECORDS BEAT THOSE OF VARSITY

By JESS CARVER

Pitt's varsity and freshmen track and field teams turned in triumphs yesterday in the annual dual meets with Carnegie Tech, but it was not the expected victories of the Panther teams that provided the other than ordinary.

Shea's varsity walloped the Skibo upperclassmen by a two to one margin, 90 to 45, and the Panther frosh engineered a 61-56 victory. No district records were broken, or even approached.

BOWEN WINS TWO

Pete Bowen accounted for only two of his usual three victories because he only competed in two of his specialties and Everett Utterback gave sterling exhibitions of the way a young man should get up and along in the world with two fine attempts in the high and broad jumps.

The real surprise of the varsity meet was the way in which Carnegie Tech cut into the first place rating. Tech, in years past, has been content to take one or two individual victories, but yesterday the Plaid captured no less than six, five of 'em coming in the field events.

FROSH MARKS BEST

What is worth some jabbering, however, is the fact that two of the freshmen marks, the mile and discus, were better than those made by varsity competitors. Ramsey, Tartan Plebe runner, turned in a 4:42 2-5 mile, as compared with the 4:44 made by Alberts and Jerpe, Pitt trotters, who ran a dead heat in the varsity event.

In the discus, Pitt's hefty freshman, Luch, heaved the platter 128 feet, six inches, while the best Seyboth, of Tech, could do in the varsity was 115, one and one half inches.

BUCS RECALL INFIELDER SANKEY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Ben Sankey, skillful young shortstop of the Pirate spring training period who was farmed out to Wichita of the Western League under a 48-hour option, today was recalled by the Pittsburgh club to help out in the present emergency. The recruit is due to join the Buccos Saturday.

Ben Sankey

Manager Jewel Ens, of the local club, made this announcement shortly after today's scheduled game between the Phillies and Pirates had been called off on account of rain and wet grounds. A steady downpour soaked Forbes Field, there being no tarpaulin on the infield during the night.

GAME OFF EARLY

The Pittsburgh management decided to call off the contest about 10 o'clock. The move was a relief to a club that is sorely pressed with sick and injured players. The contest will be played at Forbes Field as a part of a doubleheader on Saturday, June 28.

Injuries sustained yesterday by Infielders George Grantham and Stuart Clarke caused the Pirates to exercise their special option on Sankey. Grantham hurt his throwing arm in making a fast fling to third base in yesterday's game with the Quakers, while Clarke is on the hospital squad

GIANTS LOSE TO CARDS; LEAGUE LEAD CUT

CUBS PRESSED BY BOSTON; YANKS WIN

Associated Press.

The National League apparently is headed for one of the closest races in its long history if the results of the first month of play can be taken as an indication of what will happen during the next four. The eight clubs have been playing almost a month now and they are hardly further apart in the standing than they were after the first day or two.

The New York Giants still hold the lead with an average of .636 although they were defeated yesterday by the St. Louis Cardinals, but the Chicago Cubs are close behind and five other clubs are within striking distance of them. Pittsburgh, the seventh team in today's standing has an average of .500 the same mark as held by the New York Yankees who are fourth in the American League.

CARDS BEAT GIANTS

While the Giants were losing a tough struggle to St. Louis yesterday by a 6 to 4 score the Cubs lasted through a big rally to beat out the Boston Braves 9 to 8. Similar results today would leave Chicago only two points behind. The Brooklyn Robins and Cincinnati Reds kept idle by rain, remained tied for third place with 12 victories and 11 defeats apiece.

St. Louis ran its string of victories to seven by defeating the Giants yesterday but only after some difficulties. "Wee Willie" Sherdel weakened in the sixth inning and put enough runs on base for a Giant victor. But a recruit, Jim Lindsey appeared to hold the New Yorkers while the Cards came through with three successive doubles in the sixth to score the deciding runs.

Philadelphia pushed Pittsburgh's Pirates down into the second division with a steady hitting attack that brought a 14 to 8 victory.

A'S TRIBE WIN

Cleveland and Washington furnished the fireworks in the American League as the Indians opened a drive to take second place. The first three innings saw all the scoring as Cleveland won by an 11-to-6 score.

The Philadelphia Athletics strengthened their grip on first place by outslugging the Chicago White Sox for a 14-to-7 victory.

The New York Yankees reached the .500 mark for the first time this year and fashioned their longest winning streak by defeating the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 1, behind the pitching of Waite Hoyt. Art Herring of Detroit and Jack Russell of Boston hurled another close game as Herring kept the Red Sox hits spread over nine innings while the Tigers bunched theirs for a 4-to-1 victory.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, it looks like we'll have to call on Columbia or Wichita for infielders after what happened out there yesterday. We're still able to go along in the outfield. Gee, I wish I wasn't lefthanded and could play that infield. I'd like to help out somewhere, but a lefthanded bird around second looks funnier than some of the pitchers trying to hit.

If these home runs keep up, Pittsburgh is liable to have another strike on its hands — the pitchers will be walking out. Speaking about strikes, Ted McGrew, the umpire, pulled a good one yesterday. You know Ted was with us all spring umpiring the games, and we was all glad to see him come to Pittsburgh.

UMPIRE WARNED

Well, he came out to Forbes Field in one of them Yellow Cabs just as cool as if he was riding his own car. When we told him about the strike, he began to dodge. Ted said he didn't know they was a strike on, but during the rest of his visit in the city he's gonna watch his step. The gang thinks Ted is a dandy umpire.

That managin' job is no setup when things are the way they are now. Jule is takin' it all in the right spirit. When Burt Shotton came on the field yesterday, Jule went over to him and started to count his gray hairs, because the Quakers won only one game on their long trip before they came to Pittsburgh.

Jule would be gettin' grey, too, if he'd let all this tough luck get him down, but you gotta hand it to him—he comes up smilin'. I don't think there's any manager in the game that can make the Pirates stay in the first division with Pie and Lloyd gone.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

DERBY-BOUND

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP)—The Earl of Derby left here late yesterday for Louisville, to view the racing classic which is named for his family.

Sport Vignettes

They buried today in the South Side Cemetery, one of the best footracers of the "good old days" of the '80s, George Hamilton Smith, of Beltzhoover, who died Sunday night at the age of 73 . . . He was the father of George H. Smith, Jr., well-known local baseball umpire and basketball official, who also starred as a shortstop with the Pittsburgh Federals back in 1913 and later until the World War played for Montreal in the International League.

George H. Smith

In recent years, the younger Smith has umpired in the Mid-Atlantic League, but now he is the vice president of the Pittsburgh Umpires' Association and confines his diamond activities to officiating on the local sandlots. Memories of the halcyon days of foot-racing are brought back by the death of the elder Smith, winner in 1881 of the classic Sheffield Handicap at the Lillybridge grounds in England. The event brought together the leading sprinters of many countries and days were spent in cutting down the field in trials. . . . The semi-finals and final were staged on June 6 and 7. Smith was able to compete through the backing of the late Capt. Dave Shaw, later well-known figure in Grand Circuit harness racing circles, and the late Steve Newburn, of Bellevue, steel and iron men of the time. Smith's best distances were 125 and 150 yards. . . . He did 9 4-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash, 12 seconds for 125 yards and 14½ seconds for the 150. The mark for 150 yards still stands in the records as a standard for professionals. The one-time famous runner was born in the Borough of Birmingham, now known as the South Side, and as a young man worked for 10 years for the Chess-Cook Nail Company on the South Side. He began his running career in 1875 and continued it until 1892, and three years later went to work as a motorman for the Pittsburgh and Birmingham Traction Company, which later was absorbed by the Pittsburgh Railways Company. He was employed for 34 years as a motorman until pensioned a few years ago. He was a product of the famous old Emerald A. C., of the South Side, which turned out so many good boxers, oarsmen, runners and other athletes, among them Eddie Horne, Jack Lewis, Jack Finnegan, George Plant and John Carney, boxers; Nick Layberger, Alonzo Shaffer, Bob Sweitzer, Billy Sharff, Paddy Denmarsh and John Teemer, of McKeesport, oarsmen; Matt Campbell, the high jumper, who later joined the Barnum & Bailey Circus, and Joe Dashbach, Dick Burns, Marty Welsh, Charley Freeborn, Bob Beadling and Harmon Smith, a brother of George, who survives him, runners. Races for sidebets were the vogue in those days and there was much "planting" of stars in small towns, with big betting coups the rule. Often the winner of a big race would keep on running when he reached the finish line, to be picked up a short distance farther on by accomplices with a horse and buggy for the big getaway. Jimmy Dime, later a successful manager of boxers and still living in New Castle, Pa., was one of the best of the touring sprinters. One of George Smith's races that still is remembered was against Harry M. Johnson at 125½ yards at old Exposition Park, on the North Side, in 1886. Smith winning in 12 seconds. In 1886, at Youngstown, he set his world professional record of 14½ seconds for 150 yards in a special match race for $1,000 a side against Tom Dudley. Smith competed against many of the world's best professional sprinters, including Pooch and Piper Donovan, Maury Kettelson, Billy Mills, Coo-Coo Collins, Jim Quirk, Bill Boyd, Fred Stone, Steve Farrell, Dave Shean and Harry Hutchins and Jack Gibson, the last two of England. He often said Hutchins was the fastest man of his time. . . . The aged former runner made two visits to England to visit the scene of his greatest conquest, the first time in 1924 and again in 1927. He intended to pay another visit this year. . . . An ammunition plant now is located on the old Lillybridge grounds. . . . Smith when he died had been a widower for eight years. . . . He never lost his interest in track athletics and was a regular attendant at the local meets.—HARRY KECK.

Long's Sport Comment

Pirate management used good judgment in turning down a chance to buy Outfielder Smead Jolley from the San Francisco club.

Jolley went to the White Sox with a big reputation as a hitter, but the contention of the Buc bosses that his Coast League batting average of .387 would dwindle when he found himself up against big-league pitching is being borne out by the fact that the widely advertised slugger has already been benched by Donie Bush.

Smead Jolley.

JOLLEY DID NOT come up to expectations as a hitter, so Bush has taken him out of the White Sox lineup and sent Johnny Watwood to right field in his place. Watwood himself has been hitting only .250, but at least he can field. In his first game he caught a fly which Chicago scribes say would have been a triple had Jolley been playing the garden. When Jolley isn't hitting he is a total loss, and though Bush is hopeful that it is only a spring slump and that Smead will get going later, Windy City fans are beginning to fear that the player never will live up to what his minor league records promised.

EARL SANDE had so much confidence in his ability to come back as a jockey that he decided to gamble on it. Instead of signing for a flat retainer of $10,000, with the regular riding fees on the side, he contracted to ride William Woodward's Gallant Fox in all engagements this season for 10 per cent of the purses won.

If Gallant Fox wins the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, following his victories in the Wood Memorial and the Preakness Sande will have considerably more than $10,000 coming to him for the three races. Nor is that all, for the horse is also eligible for the Belmont Stakes of $80,000, the American Classic of $75,000 and other rich 3-year-old events. It is possible for him to win approximately $250,000, which would mean $25,000 for Sande.

AS THE TOURNAMENT for the women's British golf championship nears its final rounds at Formby, another big international competition will get under way tomorrow in the opening of the men's annual Walker Cup matches at Sandwich.

Bobby Jones will lead a team picked from among seven other American amateur stars—Harrison Johnston, George Von Elm, Francis Ouimet, Dr. O. F. Willing, George Voigt, Roland Mackenzie and Don Moe—in what shapes up as the hardest fight this country has ever been called upon to make in defense of the trophy.

Bobby Jones.

THE UNITED STATES won all five previous encounters, but on the Sandwich course the weather conditions are such as to make this year's contract one of new and greater difficulties. Golf critics here and abroad agree that it is the biggest job an American Walker team has ever tackled, and that only remarkable play can carry the Yankees through. However, it is when facing the heaviest odds that Jones and some of his mates have always shown to best advantage, and there is a fair chance that the outcome of the two days' competition will upset the numerous predictions of a British victory.

Rolling Rock Farm Horses in Big Show

The Rolling Rock Farm, of Ligonier, is represented by a string of equine aristocrats at the National Capital horse show which opened in Washington, D. C., today.

Holy River and Windsor, a pair of gray geldings that are timber toppers of the star class, held the Rolling Rock list. Royal Earn, imported from England last season, is making his debut in U. S. shows.

The Capital show is to be concluded Saturday.

METEORIC RISE BOASTED BY BATTALINO

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Battling Battalino, the world featherweight champion, who makes his local debut against Vic Burrone, of New York, in the 10-round main bout of the opening show in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tomorrow night, is one of the few boxers of note to sport the name of Christopher. Cuddy DeMarco was another. Both dropped the Christopher for ring purposes.

Battalino can lay claim to other distinctions as well as this one. For instance, he is only 22 years old and a world titleholder, is a former National amateur champion and won the world crown after engaging in only 24 professional fights. His rise was one of the most meteoric in championship history.

QUICKLY WINS TITLE

The Hartford Italian won the title from Andre Routis, the Frenchman, via the decision route in a 15-round bout at Hartford, Conn., last September. Since then he has boxed a number of good opponents, his two most recent victims having been Bushy Graham and Lew Massey. Shortly before boxing Routis, he upset the dope by defeating Al Brown, the bantamweight champion, in a 10-round bout at Hartford.

Battalino began boxing as an amateur in 1925 and won the Connecticut State championship the following year and also annexed the National amateur featherweight laurels, knocking out four opponents in a total of less than eight minutes to clinch the honors.

Burrone is due in town today for his match with Battalino, which will not involve the latter's title. Battalino got in his second day of work at the Y. M. H. A. yesterday, and will wind up his training licks there today.

Between Rounds

Ray Eberle, popular announcer of Aliquippa, who has been on the sidelines for a time acting as matchmaker for the Junction Park arena at New Brighton, will return to his old post as announcer at the Meyers Bowl tomorrow night, having received permission from the boxing commission to serve in both capacities. He will stage his first open-air show at Junction Park on the night of June 12, offering a 10-round main bout, a six-rounder, semi-final and six three-rounders, with all of the proceeds going to the American Legion post of the town.

George Panko, Homestead heavyweight, will go into strict training immediately for his match with Knute Hansen, the Melancholy Dane, in the windup of the opening show at the new local outdoor arena, Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night of next week. He has been working out lightly all along and is in fine fettle. A victory over Hansen would attract national attention to him.

Matchmaker Jules Bock, of the Meyers Bowl, has completed the preliminary card for the Bowl opener tomorrow night by signing Jimmy Engel, of Youngstown, to box Dan Billick, of Duquesne, in the six-round second bout at 122 pounds. Andy Andronis, of the East End, boxes Ralph Lenny, of New York, in the eight-round semi-final, and Johnny Warner, of Clairton, boxes Young Nabel, of Swissvale, in the opener.

Mike Dundee boxes Maurice Holtzer at Youngstown tonight. Tony Canzoneri meets Johnny Farr at New Haven.

Benny Schwartz, who defeated Frisco Grenade in one of the 10-round bouts at Motor Square Garden last Monday night, yesterday explained why it wasn't a more interesting fight. "I was in fine shape and anxious to make it a great battle," he said, "but Grande would not fight with me. The referee kept warning me to cut loose and every time I led Grande would step back. It is a hard thing to make a fight when the other fellow won't do his share of the mixing."

MEDICOS O. K. PIE'S EYES

BALTIMORE, May 14.—Pie Traynor, third baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who came here suffering from iritis, has practically recovered from the trouble and will be able to be back with the team by the end of the week, according to physicians at the Wilmer Clinic of the Johns Hopkins Hospital here.

The physician in charge of Traynor's case said that the third-sacker had come here for a thorough checking up, fearing a possible recurrence of attacks of the disease that had threatened his sight before.

There is no danger of this, he said, and Traynor's sight is perfectly normal. He expects to leave the hospital tomorrow or Friday.

GUS COPULOS LEADS

CHICAGO, May 14.—(INS.)—Gus Copulos, of Detroit, today held a lead of 200 to 179 in 176 innings over Johnny Layton, world three-cush-ion billiard champion, after having two blocks of 50 points each yesterday in a 300-point match. Copulos now has won three out of four blocks.

Carnera Stops One of Four Opponents

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 14.—(AP.)—The knockout average of Primo Carnera, huge Italian, fell here last night when he stopped only one of four heavyweight fighters who faced him in as many rounds on an exhibition card.

Primo dropped the first man, Hyde Lyndell, Salt Lake City, in one minute of the first round. The Ambling Alp showed a willingness to put the other fighters to sleep, but found it difficult to get within striking distance.

Jack Lewis, California; Steve Strilich, Bingham, Utah, and Tony Clawson, Salt Lake City, each stayed in the ring with the Italian giant for one round.

ROBINS AMAZE, GIANTS PUZZLE BABE RUTH

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Well, the East has seen the West and the West has looked over the East in the two big leagues and the result is that every club has a lot more respect for the others. There has been a general improvement right down the line; a general tightening up—and it's a cinch both races this summer will be good ones.

Babe Ruth

In judging the winning power of the various teams a lot of people look first to their strength. Personally, I figure that the weakness is the thing to look for. And in sizing up the various clubs I've come to the conclusion that there are mighty few clubs in either league that are well balanced all the way round.

For instance:

The Athletics, strong in pitching and powerful in punch, have a decided infield weakness that already has cost them several games and will cost them many more.

The Browns, with probably the best balanced pitching staff in the league, lack punch and run-getting power. They're a hard team to score on, but they can't score much themselves.

The Tigers, with a world of batting power, are weak in pitching and defensive play, while the Yankees with general strength outside the pitching box, are doubtful in that department.

STRONG PITCHING LACKING

The same thing goes in the National League, where there is a lot of batting punch and a lack of any real pitching caliber. The Cubs, with a good pitching staff, and more than average punch are as near being a well balanced team as any in the league. And the Cubs have an infield weakness that is sure to cause them trouble.

Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and St. Louis to a more or less degree are clubs that depend on punch and lack pitching ability. Clubs like the Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds, on the other hand, must win by pitching if they win at all, for they lack the general power that the other clubs have.

The most amazing club in a lot of ways, in either league, is the Brooklyn Robins. Here's a team that has great possibilities. There are days when the Brooklyn pitching is unbeatable and the club has a punch that always is dangerous. But Brooklyn nor any other team can expect to win pennants so long as they are as defensively weak or so long as they continue to play thoughtless, stupid baseball.

ROBINS PULL DUMB PLAYS

The Robins, I think, make more errors and more bad plays than any club in either league. As one Brooklyn writer told me the other day:

"They always pull the unexpected and usually it's wrong."

The Giants are the toughest club in either league to dope. They have a weakness in the pitching box and at second base. The outfield is makeshift. Yet they start out like a house afire toppling over opponents like ten pins. Then just as it looks like a breeze they begin to lead with their chin—dropping games to clubs like Brooklyn and Cincinnati.

Given one good strong pitcher the Giants would win. Even without that pitcher they could pull through nicely if they were strengthened at second base and in the outfield. But the way they stand—well it's doubtful. But I'll say this for the New York clubs, the closer the race the better chance they both have. Neither the Giants nor Yankees can win in a walkaway race—but if this year's pennant is decided by one of those close affairs in which the winner gets by with a percentage of .580 to .600 look out.

Either New York team is good enough to win in that sort of going.

By TOM BIRKS

The Steel City League will hold the spotlight this evening in the number of games up for disposal, two games in the Eastern and two games in the Western divisions being carded.

This is becoming one of the most popular leagues in the Pittsburgh district, and the class of baseball on display is excellent. In the Eastern division, the East End Cardinals, after two hard reverses will hook up with St. Elizabeth at Leslie Park. Prata probably will shake up his lineup for this game, in hope of checking the losing streak. The other game finds the Crimsons, of East Liberty, clashing with Lincoln Place on the latter's grounds.

In the Western division, Dom Mazzie travels to Pleasant Valley to try conclusions with Observatory Civics. With the Perrysville Avenue boys going at a sensational clip, Joe Renner's South Hills team will have to step at a lively gait to win. The other game finds Clover A. C. meeting Fox at Arlington Park.

W. O. W. FACE SHOEMEN

Two big games in the City League find Book Shoe still in the undefeated ranks, meeting W. O. W. at Woodmen Field. W. O. W. is going to be a tough one for the Shoemen to overcome. The Woodmen have a habit of fighting hard at home, and Roscoe probably will face his old mates on the mound. At Sullivan Field, St. John's will clash with the North Side Civics.

One game will be played in the Central circuit. Y. M. H. A. travels to Etna to meet the Imhoff outfit. The Bellefield aggregation will have Losman opposing Imhoff for this important game. Immaculate Heart meets the North Side Lafayettes in the Twilight League, and Verona travels to Wilkinsburg to meet the Heeps in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

UNIVERSAL BLANKED

In games played last evening, Wilmerding beat Verona 6-3; Homewood nosed out Homestead Aces, 4 to 3 and Dormont blanked Universal, 2-0 in the West Penn League. Pleasant Valley defeated W. O. W., 3-2, and the Jimmy Smiths defeated St. John's, 7-4, in the City circuit.

The Collegians defeated the Cosletts, 11-4, in the Central League and Fairhope downed Daisytown and Monessen turned back Dunlevy in the Monongahela Valley loop.

In an independent game, the Homestead Grays slugged out a 14-2 victory over the North Side Civics.

In the opening tussle of the Philadelphia Company League, Bylleshy defeated the Pittsburgh Railways nine, 4 to 2, at Mellon Field. Immaculate Heart beat the North Siders, 4 to 2, and Ingomar and Pineview tied in the North Side Twilight League.

Iroquois and the Lineys tied at 4-all in the Major circuit and Kokinos Cards took over Coraopolis, 6 to 1, in the Ohio Valley League. Raybestos won from National Union, 6 to 2, in the Commercial loop.

Bunts

The Y. M. H. A. has been notified by the Bureau of Recreation that a change in its playing night has been made. The Bulldozers had Monday, but have been shifted to Thursday. This has necessitated changing the schedule, and a revised program will be drawn up and sent to the Managers.

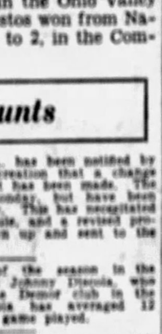
The sensation of the season in the younger leagues is Johnny Dimola, who is pitching for the Demor club in the Steel City. Dimola has averaged 12 strikeouts in every game played.

Reliance Life is looking for games with first-class teams. Manager George Miller would like to hear from clubs in Ohio. He can be reached at Atlantic 0626.

Jimmy Arrigo kept up his wonderful mound work last evening by beating Soho Board of Trade by a 2 to 0 score.

Mellon field certainly looked bumpy for that opening game in the Philadelphia Company League last evening. If it is not taken care of in the near future, some infielder is going to be badly hurt. Ruts and ravines are numerous, especially behind the pitchers box.

Nick Altrock Says:



WASHINGTON, May 14. — The trouble with the Pirates is that doctors and nurses are managing half the team. Barney Dreyfuss has got a sick list that looks like a roll of wallpaper. His boys have everything from asthma to eczema and John McGraw had better pray they don't all get well at once. Well, there's always a horsefly in Boston's dessert. When the Red Sox start going good the Braves always manage to go to pieces. You can't blame those Hub fans if they have lost faith in everything but gin labels. Why, the Braves couldn't lose any more games if they were managed by Sir Thomas Lipton.

WALKER CUP TEAMS SET

SANDWICH, Eng., May 14.—(AP.)—Hoping for their sixth straight victory in the team series, Bobby Jones' American Walker Cup golf team begins a two-day battle with Britain's picked amateurs on the Royal St. George's course tomorrow.

Great Britain never has beaten the United States in Walker Cup competition, inaugurated in 1929, but the Britons' chances this year are considered much brighter than they were, for instance, in 1928 when the competition last was played.

The series consists of four two-ball foursomes and eight singles matches. The foursomes will be played tomorrow and the singles on Friday.

Jones has made the following pairings for the foursomes: George Von Elm and George Voigt, Donald K. Moe and Roland Mackenzie, Robert T. Jones, Jr., and Dr. O. F. Willing, Harrison R. Johnston and Francis Ouimet.

It is expected that Sir Ernest Holderness and J. A. Stout will pair and that the other British combinations will be William Campbell and J. A. Lang, Robert Harris and T. A. Terrance and Roger Wethered and Cyril J. H. Tolley.

MAX TO SIGN TWO CONTRACTS

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—The last word in proclamations, superseding all others and reversing most of them, was issued yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission in the case of Max Schmeling, who seeks a license to ply his trade as a journeyman heavyweight in combat with Jack Sharkey for the world championship, June 12, at the Yankee Stadium.

The commission decided that Schmeling, before he gets a boxing license, must sign two sets of contracts. The first will bind him to box Sharkey for the Milk Fund June 12, but the second will force him to defend the title he may win within a year under the auspices of Madison Square Garden only.

Last week the commission forbade Schmeling to sign any contract except for the Sharkey bout until after the Teuton's contract with Arthur Buelow, the manager who now has become his legal sparring partner, expires, October 13, 1930.

ANOTHER NIGHT GAME

DECATUR, Ill., May 14.—(AP.)—The Decatur and Quincy clubs tonight will play the Three-Eye League's first game of night baseball.

for at least a week with a sprained left ankle, sustained while chasing balls in the outfield before the game started. Clarke spent the night in St. John's hospital where his ankle is being treated.

SANKEY HERE SATURDAY

As soon as Clarke was hurt, the local management began to move toward the recall of Sankey. The Wichita club at present is playing in Denver, the western outpost of the league, so that much time will be required in bringing the youngster back to the big-league fold. The Pirate officials eventually were in touch with the Wichita directors who were informed of the decision of the Pirates to exercise their option. Sankey is expected in town in time to take part in Saturday's game, provided his presence in the contest is necessary.

STONER RELEASED

Manager Ens yesterday resorted to somewhat drastic measures to improve his club, especially his pitching department. He announced last night that Pitcher Lil Stoner was released to the Fort Worth club of the Texas League. Stoner was purchased by the Buccos from the same team last fall, and Ens and all others concerned figured the former Detroit righthander would help the Pittsburgh entry, but Stoner was unable to turn in any acceptable performances. He showed a lot of class in the Spring training period, but in his short visits to the mound he was unable to strike his good stride. Lil, nevertheless, did not get the opportunity to start a game.

Stoner spent most of his major league career with the Tigers. At times he pitched cleverly for the American League team, but on the whole his results were no better than fair. Eventually he drifted back to the Texas League where he found himself before being purchased by the Pirates.

The departure of Stoner may have a beneficial effect on some of the other sharpshooters who have failed utterly since the season opened. Ens realizes that the club hasn't got much chance to stay in the flag fight with the Waners and Pie Traynor out of action, but he is not satisfied with the behavior of his pitchers.

PHILS SWAMP BUCS

The Pirates were overwhelmed by the Phillies, 14 to 8, yesterday in the first meeting of the two teams this season. The setback given the locals threw them into sixth place, with 12 games won and as many lost.

Jess Petty was shelled hard by Burt Shotton's gunners. Petty left the scene in favor of a pinch-hitter after Chuck Klein's eighth homer of the season had added to the big total of Quaker tallies. Erickson, Jones and Spencer finished for the Buccos.

Pinkey Whitney and Virgil Davis also nicked the Sliver Fox for round-trippers. Invading batters, it seems, are able to fatten their home-run larders while performing in the Oakland Orchards, despite its faraway fences.

Petty was unsteady through most of his tenure on the mound. Opposed to him was Ray Benge who slowed down the home team to a canter by the use of a clever slow ball. The Pirates got to Ray for four runs in the final inning, but he was so far ahead by this time that he could afford to let up.

JAYS VICTORS IN TWELFTH

A 12-inning battle in which the Jeannette Jays defeated Fairmont, at Fairmont, 8-3, to retain the lead in the standing featured yesterday's play in the Mid-Atlantic League. Butler and Kendall waged a southpaw duel until the latter wilted in the final inning, Gibson going to his rescue. The issue was decided with Berka, first batter up for Jeannette in the twelfth, hitting a home run, Casares misjudging his fly ball.

At Scottdale, Charleroi defeated the Scotties, 7 to 4. Stricklin's two home runs bringing the victory.

Clarksburg pounded out a 13-to-4 victory over Cumberland at Cumberland. Johnstown defeated Wheeling, 8 to 3, at Wheeling.

GALLATIN CLUB QUITS TITLE SOCCER PLAY

The Gallatin Soccer Club, winner of the western eliminations in the National Amateur cup play and which played the Raffles, of Fall River, to a 3-3 tie at the Westinghouse High School Stadium two weeks ago in the grand final of the national trophy competition, has scratched and will not participate in the replay game scheduled for Fall River next Sunday. Manager Harry Sickles, of the local club, says that the club cannot stand the big expense which taking the team to Boston for the game entails.

Secretary John J. MacEwan, of Cleveland, tried to keep the locals in for the replay, but Sickles said that injuries to Peckovitch and Benick and the suspension of Broggi had crippled his team and that the expenditure would be too great.

DECISION SOON

Sickles suggested that both teams be awarded medals, but MacEwan said that the disposition of the game, together with the cup and medals, will be decided at a meeting of the National amateur cup committee to be held in the near future.

MacEwan said that because the Raffles had borrowed on the guarantee to come to Pittsburgh, the Gallatin club should have done the same. The game at Pittsburgh, as the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph forecasted, was a financial flop. A big counter attraction was at Forbes Field and the national committee was badly advised to bring the game here so late in the season.

GALLATIN IN DEBT

Gallatin went deeply in debt on that game and that is why Sickles does not want to take another chance so late in the season.

It is probable that the national body will award the game to the Fall River club.

NO. 40.
FRED LOEFFLER.
Ellwood City Country Club.

He's got a real man-sized job on his hands at the Ellwood City Country Club as golf professional, greenkeeper and club manager, but Fred Loeffler, who is another member of the famous golfing family of that name, doesn't let it worry him. He sticks on the job, keeps plugging—and there is general satisfaction among Ellwood City's 200 members for his services. Fred, like most of the Loefflers, started as a caddie and also worked on the Oakmont course for Emil Loeffler. That was 14 years ago. He then became assistant to his brother, Archie Loeffler, who was pro at the Brackenridge Heights Country Club. After three years in this capacity, Archie left to go to Hill Crest in New Kensington and Fred carried on for four more years as pro at Brackenridge. Then he went to Ellwood City as pro and greenkeeper, serving a year in that job, the second year adding the duties as club manager as well. While his record-breaking golf has since been bettered, Fred originally set a course record of 67 at Brackenridge, now a 66, held by Dave McKay, of the Field Club, and Tony Factor, present Brackenridge pro, and a 72 at Ellwood City, later bettered by two strokes by his brother Archie. Fred's a real fellow.—VERN SWARTSFAGER.

U. S. SELECTS CUP LINEUP

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—(AP.)—George M. Lott, of Chicago, and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., will play number 1 and number 2, respectively, in singles, and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and Van Ryn will be paired in the doubles for the United States in the first American zone Davis cup tennis tie against Canada at the Philadelphia Country Club tomorrow, Friday and Saturday of this week.

MEET POSTPONED

Because of the inclement weather, the annual Allegheny County independent high school track and field championships, scheduled for today at the Homestead High Field, has been indefinitely postponed.

INITIAL GROGAN CUP MATCH TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The greatest inter-club competition of the year is being played today at the Highland Country Club, in the Wellington district. It is the first 18-hole round of the annual 36-hole fight for the Grogan Cup, emblematic of supremacy between the country clubs of Highland and Shannopin.

Almost 200 linksmen representing both clubs are driving from Highland's first tee this afternoon, the first foursome having been scheduled to tee off at 12:30. The last quartet will not be on their way until 4:15, although officials have set the starting times at intervals of only five minutes.

HIGHLAND CHAMP

Last year the Highland Country Club copped the competition—this year, Shannopin hopes to win it. The club winning today's honors will take possession of the c p until after the second match is played over the Shannopin links next month.

There is no local golf on the calendar for tomorrow, the start of the U. S.-Britain Walker Cup matches at Sandwich, England, taking up the day's international spotlight. Friday, however, is a different matter, with no less than three big events and an exhibition by Johnny Farrell carded.

The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania will inaugurate their team league at the Pittsburgh Field Club Friday morning when Section I's eight teams go into action. Anjeannette Hunter, of Oakmont, is captain in Section I.

At the Edgewood Country Club, members of the Official Departments Golf Association of Carnegie Steel will be playing their first of two tournaments. Dinner is to follow in the evening.

ALCOMA, KISKI CLASH

Alcoma's team will hook up with the Kiski school team on the Alcoma layout, and Johnny Farrell gives his exhibition at Joseph Horne's on the same day.

The Pennsylvania Golf Association will hold its first medal play tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club one week from today. Entries are being received at the P. G. A. office in 1101 Farmers Bank Building, Atlantic 0519, by Miss Miller, and an entrance fee of $1 is to be collected at the tee. All contestants must have state handi ap cards, or they will have to play from scratch. It is requested all contestants select their own partners.

Academy Trackers Defeat Aspinwall

Shady Side Academy captured a 90-25 win over Aspinwall High in a dual track and field meet on the academy field yesterday. Bassett led in the scoring with 13 points.

STOCKS FEEBLY STRUGGLE TO ADVANCE

Professional Operators Turn to Industrials and Rails—Public Apathetic

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—The stock market continued to struggle forward rather feebly today, with professional operators turning their attention to the rails and some of the leading industrials. Oils and some of the utilities, which were urged upward yesterday, were permitted to lang until after midday, when renewed strength appeared in those groups. Trading was slightly more active than during the previous session, but the public remained apathetic.

The movement in the rails was aided by a more favorable weekly report of freight car loadings than has been received of late, although it held to the low levels of 1934. Reports of April railway net operating income will begin to appear shortly, and are expected to show little or no improvement over March, but Wall Street is hopeful that the downward movement has been arrested. Loadings, as reported for the week ended May 3, totaled 942,899 cars, 35,725 more than the previous week, but 109,836 less than the like week of 1929.

STEEL OUTPUT CUT

The weekly steel trade reviews reported a further falling off in steel mill operations, and substantial price reductions, but it was reported in trade circles that large producers are determined to support prices at current levels. Iron Age stated that U. S. Steel is holding operations at 80 per cent of capacity, while the industry as a whole has slumped to 75 per cent, against 77 last week. Iron Trade Review pointed out that prices for plates and shapes are now the lowest since 1915, having declined $4 a ton this year.

Radio was pushed forward despite the filing of anti-trust proceedings by the Department of Justice, and U. S. Steel sold up moderately to the best levels for the recovery. Shares gaining 3 or more points included New York Central, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Lackawanna, Texas and Pacific, Eastman Kodak, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Vanadium and Worthington Pump. Some of the comparatively inactive rails made wide gains, Hocking Valley and New York and Harlem gaining about 20 points.

There was considerable profit taking in various groups during the morning. The coppers turned downward, as the recent covering movement appeared to have been completed. The American Tobacco issues, and Columbia Gas also sagged for a time. International Salt, which has had a spectacular rise, fell back more than 16 points, J. I. Case, after an early rise, sagged under realizing. Credit conditions remained stationary, with call money holding at 3 per cent. There was better demand for bankers acceptances but rates were unchanged.

SEEK HIGHER OIL RUNS

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 14.—Operators of the Oklahoma City oil field will meet with the proration committee of Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association in Tulsa on May 29 to ask aid in obtaining an increase in pipe line runs from the field. Pipe lines are now under an agreement to take 102,000 barrels daily, but average daily production is above 106,000 barrels daily, the field being limited to 16 2-3 per cent of capacity.

Operators will attempt to have pipe line runs increased so that the field will be producing to 25 per cent of capacity production, the amount allowed by the corporation commission. This would increase production to about 130,000 barrels daily.

Government Files Radio Union Suit

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Justice Department has filed an injunction suit to prevent the proposed unification of radio manufacturing facilities of the Westinghouse and General Electric companies with Radio Corporation of America. Other named defendants are General Motors and American Telegraph and Telephone, Western Electric, R. C. A. Photophone, R. C. A. Victor and General Motors Radio.

Columbia Gas in Deal With U. G. I.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Reports in Wall Street state that conversations are nearing completion between the Columbia Gas & Electric Corp., and the United Gas Improvement Co., for the delivery of substantial quantities of natural gas from Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia to Philadelphia and surrounding sections of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Machine Market Continues Quiet

The American Machinist reports quiet conditions prevail in machinery and machine tool markets throughout the country. Orders for replacement purposes comprise the bulk of transactions reported in the past week. Used tool demand shows improvement, but the volume of incoming inquiries is off.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 14.—Influenced by reports of cheaper Canadian offerings abroad and generally favorable weather in the United States and Canada, wheat prices today underwent an early sag. Immediate need of rain in some parts of Kansas was being emphasized, however, with more required in 10 days or two weeks and a great deal in the next three or four weeks. Opening ⅝ to ½c off to a shade advance, wheat later declined all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise easy, with corn starting unchanged to ¼c higher and subsequently declining somewhat.

Bearish reports from Winnipeg received particular attention at times today among wheat traders here. A sample message said no export business was in sight at Winnipeg this morning, that the Canadian growers' pool is selling wheat for export flat and that nobody could compete. New York also advised that export business overnight appeared to be almost nil, bids being considerably under the market.

Downturns in Liverpool closing quotations today on wheat tended further to give an advantage to sellers here. On the other hand, some Kansas advices said that cool favorable weather had not brought about the crop improvement that ordinarily could be expected from such conditions and that many growers are now looking for much below normal yields, as a majority of samples average two-inch heads and they will not lengthen.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

'Black Sheet' Is Now White Sheep; Biscuit Merger

By B. C. FORBES

AN EX-SAILOR and an ex-timekeeper have been conducting negotiations which have interested the whole country. They are Moritz Thomsen, who founded the Pacific Coast Biscuit Company, and Frederick Beers, president of the National Biscuit Company. They have been arranging a merger, and I am authoritatively informed that the deal is all ready for the final legal formalities.

In on the deal has been Charles Thomsen, who succeeded his father as president and who will continue to run the Pacific Coast business after the amalgamation. Years ago Mr. Thomsen divided his large fortune equally among his children and himself. This, however, did not influence his son to take life any easier. He works longer hours than any man in any of the various Thomsen enterprises. The veteran Moritz told me:

"When I left home to go to sea I carried all my belongings in a red handkerchief under my arm. My father thundered that I would never amount to anything. Deep down in my heart I vowed that some day I would prove to them that I would amount to something."

His first job was a cook's boy on a small schooner; pay, 50 marks ($12.50) for the whole summer and a promise to land him in some foreign country. His career at sea included shipwreck, desertion, an attack by armed Chinese pirates who first looted and then scuttled the ship, several days and nights drifting without food or water in a small boat, fights galore.

After years he had prospered sufficiently to pay a surprise visit home. He walked up to his father at the door and asked the way to a nearby place. His father didn't recognize him, but a young sister eyed him quizzically, then ran into the kitchen, shouting:

"Mother come and look at this fellow, he looks like our Moritz."

Mother promptly recognized him. Since then Moritz has done much for his native community. One thing they particularly wanted—and got—was a swell hearse! The "black sheep" turned out to be a very white sheep, the hero of his birthplace in Schleswig-Holstein.

Mr. Beers, born in New Haven, Conn., less than 50 years ago, has a much more promising start, having graduated at Yale. But his first work was humble enough—timekeeper during construction of the Uneeda Biscuit Works in New York. Step by step he rose to the presidency of National Biscuit, more than three years ago. He declares:

"I have from the first been in love with the business, the nature and the responsibilities of it. Second, I have been most fortunate in receiving the constant and faithful co-operation of all my associates. So my work has never been drudgery, but has been a keen delight. Realizing that there is always more to learn, I have ceaselessly been a student of the business. And still am."

Incidentally, those who bought Pacific Biscuit common stock when it was issued four years ago, are receiving $3 for each $1 they put up. While those who invested in the preferred will more than double their money. Official news of the consummation of the merger may be expected any day.

Somehow this old salt's hardships remind me of an international banker who became separated from his valet when in Europe at the outbreak of the war, and who, recounting his terrible experiences, emphasized that he had had to wear the same set of studs and cuff links for six days!

PRESIDENT M. A. Arnold, of the First Seattle Dexter Horton National Bank, who has been visiting New York along with his son Lawrence, vice-president, brings the news that the great lumber industry of the Northwest, which has long been suffering from gross overproduction, plans to go on a five-day week, with no night work. What the lumber industry most needs, in his view, is a series of important mergers.

There is not much unemployment in Seattle and surrounding territory. Building is fairly active. The salmon industry is reasonably prosperous. Last year's apple crop was all sold at fair prices, and prospects for this year's crop are very satisfactory.

Mr. Arnold's bank represents several mergers. The total resources of the group well exceeds $100,000,000.

Wall Street is resting on its oars. After a period of drifting, the next real movement should be upwards.

Title Changed by North Side Bank

The Second National Bank of Allegheny has changed its title to that of the Second National Bank of Pittsburgh. The Second National was organized in the old City of Allegheny, February 2, 1865, being one of the first banks established under the national bank act.

The change in title was prompted by the fact that the City of Allegheny has long since been taken into the City of Pittsburgh and a further desire on the part of the directors to have the title conform with the name of the city in which the bank is located.

RAYBESTOS NET LARGER THIS QUARTER

Profits of Second Three Months Showing Steady Gain Over First Period

NEW YORK, May 14.—As a means of reducing the fluctuations in operations of the two divisions of Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., concentrated in the manufacture of asbestos brake linings and clutch facings for the automotive market, company's future development will be directed toward diversification of asbestos products in order to reach a more varied and stabilized market in this field. Expansion along these lines will probably take the form of acquisition of new properties already established in the field.

Under the company's present set-up, close to 50 per cent of total volume of business is maintained by the Manhattan Rubber division, which manufactures a line of approximately 30 principal rubber products finding a sales outlet in a diversified list of industries.

BRAKE BUSINESS

Balance of the company's business is provided by the Raybestos and U. S. Asbestos divisions, with the major portion of operations centered in production of molded brake linings and clutch facings for original equipment and replacement purposes.

Operations of Raybestos-Manhattan since the beginning of the second quarter this year have shown a moderate uptrend, with indications that net profits for the period will show a gain over the initial quarter of the year, although still running considerably behind the record levels of 1929.

DIVIDEND COVERED

Net earnings for the three months ended March 31, last, of $450,975, or 67 cents a share on the 676,012 no-par common shares, showed a reduction of approximately 50 per cent from net income of $912,700 in first quarter of 1929, but were sufficient to cover the quarterly dividend requirement of 65 cents a share, and represented a substantial increase over profits during the closing quarter of 1929.

For the first six months of the current year it is likely that net profits will equal at least $1,000,000 or around $1.50 a share, with likelihood of even greater gain over first quarter results on any general improvement in business conditions.

STRONG IN PATENTS

During the first six months of 1929 net income was $2,098,530, or $3.10 a share compared with approximate combined net profits of the three companies of $1,286,000, or $1.90 a share on present stock in 1928.

Through developments by the three constituent companies during the last few years, Raybestos-Manhattan has acquired a strong patent position in the manufacture of molded brake linings and clutch facings. Its production is more than 30 per cent of total United States output of all types of these products.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

STEEL PRICES DIP LOWER

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

In a market characterized by price weakness, intermittent specifications, fluctuating mill operations and apethetic buying, raw steel output has declined from 77 to 75 per cent of capacity. The Steel Corporation rate remains at close to 80 per cent, but curtailment by independents has brought down the general average.

A further slight gain in releases from the automobile industry, improvement in fabricated structural steel awards, increasing demand for line pipe, a growing volume of civil engineering work and sizable contracts for ships and barges are favorable developments. On the other hand, railroad equipment orders are light, rail mill backlogs are steadily being reduced, tin plate output has receded to a 75 per cent rate and production of farm implements shows signs of tapering.

Prices have given further ground, with declines reported among all classes of products from finished steel to scrap and coke. Several hundred thousand tons of large-diameter line pipe are expected to be placed within the next few months. This accounts for the recent prediction of President Farrell, of the Steel Corporation, that pipe mills will soon be fully booked until the end of the year. Fabricated structural steel awards, at 45,000 tons, are the largest since February and far above the recent average. Reinforcing bar business is well sustained by public works projects. A decline of 50c a ton at Philadelphia brings the Iron Age composite pig iron price down to $17.58 a gross ton, the lowest figure since July, 1928. Last week it stood at $17.67. The finished steel composite is unchanged at 2.228c a pound.

DREAD NEURITIS YIELDS READILY TO NEW KONJOLA

"I Am Glad to Give My Endorsement of This Wonderful Medicine," Says Happy Man.

What a glorious thing it would be for all who suffer and who would be well again, if all the health and happiness that Konjola, the new and different medicine, has brought into the world could be measured. Like any worth-while treatment, Konjola must be taken systematically in order to work the toxic poisons and accumulated impurities out of the system. It is recommended that six or eight bottles be taken, and while the first bottle usually produces results, it should be continued to thoroughly cleanse the system. Daily many local people call to tell the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, of the amazing benefits derived through the use of this superremedy. Is it not wise, sensible, to believe that what Konjola has done for others, it will do for you? Just the other day Mr. Harry J. Schreiber, Route No. 2, Glenshaw, Pa., made the following statement about the work of Konjola in his case:

"I have been benefited so much by Konjola that I am glad to give my indorsement of such a wonderful medicine. I suffered terribly from neuritis in my right arm, shoulder and my back. I tried almost everything suggested but without relief. I even took special treatments but they were a waste of time. The pains were intense, I was almost frantic. Walking was difficult, I could not lift a thing, and I slept but little.

"My father recommended Konjola to me and I started on it. To be brief, I experienced something wonderful. The pains eased up before the one bottle I purchased had been completed. I felt that I owed a debt to this medicine and so I gladly make this public statement. I have since completed four bottles and feel fine. My appetite has increased, and I enjoy sound, restful sleep. The neuritis has vanished entirely. I have not felt it at all since I finished the first bottle of Konjola."

Konjola works with the important functionary organs of the body. Konjola drives the poisons from the system, regulates the organs of elimination and produces glorious and abundant relief. It is recommended that Konjola be taken from six to eight weeks for the best results.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

General Refractories May Take Special Action On Dividend.

Earnings of the General Refractories Company are understood to be running ahead of those for the corresponding period last year. The company reported net equal to $2.53 a share in the March quarter as against $1.97 a share in the first quarter of 1929, and in the second quarter last year reported net equal to $2.17 a share on the common stock. The head of the company several weeks ago reported that first quarter bookings had run some 15 per cent ahead of 1929 rate. In local financial circles belief prevails that special dividend action is likely to be taken at the next meeting of the board of directors, with the possibility of a stock dividend being declared.

March figures on tire production indicate that leading manufacturers are gearing their output closely to the pace of demand. Production of casings in March totaled 5,187,000, as against 4,589,000 in February and in contrast with the total of 7,579,000 casings made in March of 1929, when automobile production was breaking all records and naturally setting a heavy demand on the rubber companies for original equipment. That rubber companies have been moving to get their inventories down is evident from the fact that such stocks at the end of March totaled 13,468,000 casings, as against 16,351,000 on the same date a year ago.

Steady demand for Columbia Gas and Electric at the best prices on the recovery, showing a substantial net gain for yesterday, was accompanied by rumors of an early offer by the United Corporation for an exchange of shares. The latter corporation already holds a substantial block of Columbia, but in view of that company's exceptional position in the eastern utility picture, is perhaps, desirous of extending its investment. The story has also been around that Columbia officials have been making a survey of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey utility fields preparatory to closing contracts for the dispatch of natural gas into those areas through the medium of companies now operating therein. Columbia must ultimately take the latter step if it is to realize early profits on its substantial investments in pipe lines made over the last few years.

A substantial short interest, which has been dormant in U. S. Industrial Alcohol, was rudely awakened in the course of yesterday, as a new and powerful group began operating in the long side of that issue. Alcohol has been subject to no little bear pressure over the last few months, coincident with reports of growing competition in its particular field, and of late had been giving evidence of meeting strong support. The trend toward merger in the industry, as revealed in the move by several smaller units toward consolidation, apparently was looked upon as providing basis for a well-timed move against the short account at this time.

In scanning the list of dividend paying stocks selling between $50 and $100, which has been prepared for its clients by a leading wire house, the following group of 25 look very attractive: American Bank Note, American Rolling Mill, American Smelting and Refining, Borden, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Columbia Gas and Electric, Continental Can, Drug Inc., Foster Wheeler, General Foods, General Refractories, Loose-Wiles, National Biscuit, National Dairy Products, Pacific Light, Paramount Publix, J. C. Penney, Reynolds Tobacco B, Southern California Edison, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Stone & Webster, Texas Corporation, Union Carbide, Warner Brothers and Woolworth.

Wall Street is apparently satisfied that whatever the conditions which prevail in the meantime, much better and more active markets will be witnessed when the approaching summer is on the wane. At any rate that is the impression which must be drawn from the move by a number of the street's largest houses toward getting their vacation schedules over with at any early date this year. Several of such firms, some of them having handled substantial business in the utility shares in recent years, are understood to be anxious to have vacations over and a full staff on hand beginning with the early part of August. Unquestionably by that time we will have a well-defined picture of industrial prospects which are not any too clear at the moment.

Orders for Summer Merchandise Gain

NEW YORK, May 14.—Resident buyers report that somewhat cooler weather has brought no letdown in the volume of orders for summer merchandise. While women's apparel still is in most demand, within the last few days there has been an improvement in the call for boys' and mens' furnishings and to a lesser extent in clothing.

BIGGER MARKET DAYS SEEN BY VANDERLIP

Veteran Banker Predicts 10,000,000-Share Sessions Common in Future

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, May 14.—In times of economic transition, there is especial comfort in talking to seasoned financial veterans, such as Frank A. Vanderlip and Bernard M. Baruch, who have lived through numerous panics and booms and have consistently come out on top. Their judgment is maturer than the bull market brigade, whose experience and knowledge are limited to fair weather days.

Mr. Vanderlip, who retired 11 years ago as president of the National City Bank, chatting informally over the luncheon table, remarked to me:

"If business improves this summer, as well it may, the launching of the new and improved ticker service in the autumn may prove the occasion for the starting of a better stock market. The American people have developed a taste for stocks. In the course of the next few years, I foresee 8,000,000 and 10,000,000-share days."

As for business, Mr. Vanderlip recognizes that the rate of recovery thus far has been somewhat disappointing, and that the trend is somewhat mixed. However, he is inclined to believe that the worst is over, and that the next major economic swing in business will be upward.

Mr. Vanderlip insisted:

"The American people will protect their new standard of living. They will not revert to the lower pre-war standards. There is a tendency to view the 'new era' somewhat ironically at present, yet we are really living in a new era, with the output per man doubled. We are in an era of scientific production and research. We have stubbed our toe, but good times are ahead. I am not prepared to fix an exact date."

PHILOSOPHY HELD BAD

Mr. Vanderlip expressed the view that the philosophy behind the proposed tariff law is bad, and will throw obstacles around our development as a great exporting nation. However, Mr. Vanderlip believes that American gehius will find a way to sell the products of mass production across tariff barriers, and looks forward especially to a great long-term increase in exports of automobiles. From the short term standpoint, Mr. Vanderlip recognizes that foreign purchasing power has been crippled by the pronounced world-wide decline in raw material prices, which he believes has probably nearly run its course.

Mr. Vanderlip, recognizing that there are advantages and disadvantages in foreign lending, thinks that funds invested at home will do the most good to promote prosperity. He especially favors a program of vigorous road building.

From what direction will the impulse for a genuine trade revival come? Possibly from the automobile industry, which is accumulating a deferred demand as conservative individuals defer purchases of new cars which would have already been purchased if more prosperity were in sight. Another potential source of prosperity would be in a stimulus to the building and individual homes. To achieve the latter, improvement in financing methods must be found. The great corporations, supplying building materials, should not be inert in facing this problem. Hope lies in selling homes soundly on the installment plan, eliminating the wastes of the second mortgage racket.

Incidentally, Mr. Vanderlip, after a severe illness, has recovered his vigor and alertness. His basic medicine was the climate of California, where he has a ranch.

WILLARD GIVES VIEWS

Asked whether the 20 per cent drop in railroad net earnings in the first quarter was indicative of anything more than a temporary business recession, the able Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, replied to me:

"I think not. There is not necessarily any reflection in the situation of an inadequate rate structure, and I would make no recommendation in that connection at this time."

Queried as to whether mergers will help railroads to bring their earning power closer to the fair return intended by Congress in the transportation act of 1920, Mr. Willard indicated that undoubtedly they would. The Baltimore and Ohio and the Van Sweringen lines are the chief merger advocates in the East.

Asked whether the temporary shrinkage in earning power will lead to a curtailment of capital expenses, maintenance or operating charges, Mr. Willard answered:

"While I have no specific thing in mind at this time, we all know very well that in a time of reduced earnings we are more likely to reduce our expenses than we are to increase them."

A motive behind the stock market recovery from the recent liquidating spree has been largely technical in character, representing short covering. Until the market has become stabilized at a new level, the amateur will be wise if he avoids over extending himself.

Transcontinental Oil Profits Gain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

STEADY PROGRESS has marked the operations of the Transcontinental Oil Company during recent years. In the face of unsatisfactory market conditions and stringent proration measures the company has taken its operations out of the red, has improved its financial structure and recently placed the stock on a dividend basis.

The most interesting side of the growth of the company is not found in the income accounts and balance sheets. It can be found in the potential production which has been developed in the Yates field in Texas.

Recently the company has been producing about 110,000 barrels daily. The potential production of this field, in which Transcontinental has a half interest, was recently estimated at 4,956,000 barrels a day and the total amount of recoverable oil was placed between 200,000,000 and 500,000,000 barrels. The estimate of potential output is based on flush production. It is unlikely if such an output could actually be maintained for any protracted period but it is certain that the organization has developed a producing area which will last for a long period of time and which will make the company a big earner when oil market conditions improve and make it possible to let down the bars on output.

Profits Increase

NET PROFIT for the first quarter of this year after all charges including interest, depreciation, depletion and the cost of dry holes but before federal taxes was $1,173,869 which was equivalent to 35 cents a share on the new stock. It compared with $527,551 in the first quarter of 1929.

On March 4 the stockholders approved a plan by which the outstanding amount of common stock was cut in half. One share of new stock was issued for each share of old stock. This left a total of 3,339,150 shares outstanding.

In the full year of 1929 the company earned $4,723,991 or 72 cents a share on the old stock. This compared with a profit of $1,506,803 n 1928 and with a deficit of $1,380,146 in 1927.

Dividend Paid

AN INITIAL DIVIDEND of 30 cents a share was paid on the new stock on May 1. It is generally expected that the directors next month will declare another dividend of an equal amount payable on August 1 which will place the stock on an annual dividend basis of $1.20 a share.

With the improvement in earnings last year the company was able to start the work of improving its capital structure. The entire issue of $15,750,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, on which dividends were in arrears, was retired. Holders of the stock were offered $135 a share for the stock and accruals or $90 a share and five shares of the old common.

Stock Offered

THE RETIREMENT WAS FINANCED by offering common stockholders rights to buy one additional share of common for every two shares held at $9 a share.

The funded debt is being steadily reduced. Each year 20 per cent of earnings must be applied to bond retirement. During 1929 the funded debt was reduced from $12,000,000 to $11,745,000.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

COKE COMPANY GETS LAND

The Clairton By-Product Coke Company, subsidiary of the Carnegie Steel Company, has bought the plant of the Monongahela Tube Company at Wilson, in Clairton. The plant covers 10 acres and consists of two lap weld pipe furnaces.

The coke company does not intend to operate the plant, but will use the ground for other purposes. This follows the purchase of the Bailey-Farrell division of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company, an adjoining piece of property.

The Clairton plant is at present the largest unit for the production of by-product coke in the world.

An official of the Carnegie Steel Company stated today that the two pieces of property are between existing plants in Clairton and complete the organization's tract of land. Plans for the use of the property have not been completed.

Hugh H. Davis, president of the Monongahela Tube Company, stated that his organization is retiring from the pipe business.

POSTPONE BUS RATE HEARING

The Public Service Commission today postponed for 30 days the hearing against the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, brought about by George A. Young, who charges that the company's rates for service from Pittsburgh to Bellevue are excessive.

The regular rate of 25 cents, effective on all of the company's lines, is charged. Attorney W. G. Negley, representing Young, requested the postponement on the grounds that engineering conferences being held by both sides had not yet been completed.

Dives to Land Bass, Fisherman Drowned

LOAN TO AVERT U. S. DEFICIT

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(INS)—Further borrowing by the Treasury will be necessary to prevent a deficit June 30, it was learned today.

To meet expenditures of more than $100,000,000 by the Federal Farm Board, Secretary Mellon already has been forced to authorize a new loan of $100,000,000, which will be dated May 19. This will increase the public debt about $44,000,000, since the maturing issues of bills on that date is $56,000,000.

The June 15 income and corporation tax receipts will not equal the maturing block of 4⅞ per cent certificates, which totals $549,707,500. The tax collection was expected to total somewhat more than $500,000,000 in June, bringing the year's total to $2,400,000,000, approximately the Treasury's estimate.

As the result of abnormal expenditures during the last year the surplus will be small, in the opinion of officials.

Heavy expenditures also will mean a much smaller reduction in the public debt than during any year since 1919. It was thought the reduction would be at least $600,000,000, and that the gross debt at the end of the year would be close to $16,000,000,000.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Jazz!

When Giuseppe Blanco became 'cellist in the Milan Opera House orchestra he was the proudest man in all Italy.

Giuseppe Blanco was an artist, an artiste, let us spell it, of the old school.

Name an opera and Blanco could not only play the cello parts through to perfection but he could teach if a student had talent almost any instrument.

Giuseppe was again the proudest man in his sunny country when little Giuseppe arrived.

Now he had a son—a son who also would become a famous musician a master!

However much as his countrymen loved good music the musicians were not overpaid. Far from it.

And other little Blancos arrived: four others.

One cannot put his heart and soul into music and teach one's little son the violin when one is pestered by bills all the time when one cannot pay the expenses of a growing family. Giuseppe talked it over with old Venetto.

"There is always America," said the old man.

"A young country—do they know good music?"

"A great country," said Old Venetto. "I myself have been there. I have married grandchildren there living in palaces, with servants and automobiles. They pay well and they have many opera houses and many concerts. You will do well there."

Blanco hesitated long over this. And conditions became worse with him. Little Giuseppe had grown to a lad of 12 and could play the violin well. Not so well as his father had hoped. Little Giuseppe was no infant prodigy. But old Venetto solaced Blanco by telling him that infant prodigies did not mature well with their arts and crafts and that the boy would eventually become his pride and joy.

So Giuseppe Blanco saved and saved and worked overtime and taught at half price for a full year. Little Giuseppe played at festivals and elsewhere to help earn, he was eager to go to the great America, he had read about it, seen pictures of the amazing New York sky line.

Arrive in U. S.

Ultimately the Blancos arrived, stared at the Statue of Liberty, landed, were vouched for by relatives of Mrs. Blanco and established in poor quarters over in the Ghetto district.

Giuseppe senior looked about for employment.

There seemed to be plenty of opportunities, only not for 'cellists. His people thrived at divers things, from ice and bootlegging to trucking and great construction work.

But of course he found chances to play. There were many orchestras, there were many dances and also concerts. It was in some concert work that the elder Blanco seemed to do best.

There was the musician's union. Giuseppe at first couldn't understand it. Later he knew more about it.

Young Giuseppe went to school and was made to practice constantly at his violin.

He was a smart boy in school. Almost before his parents realized it, he was speaking English fluently, and with all the modern colloquialisms that so pestered his father, who learned much more slowly.

Blanco went out on concerts. He journeyed into the West and South and went so far that he feared he never would get back, this America was such a mammoth country.

Blanco did not attain riches speedily. He moved up town, away up, into a modest but neat apartment, but it was nothing like the palaces that old Venetto swore his married grandchildren lived in.

Young Giuseppe played well for a youngster, but his mother wrote to his father, when the old man was on his concert trips, that the boy seemed to like playing something called "Ball in a basket" and "kelley-spools" better than the violin.

When the elder Blanco returned from the tour he took the boy to task.

"You do not understand, Padre," young Giuseppe protested, "we play games in school, we make friends. I play in the school orchestra, vacation is coming and already I have a job to play in an orchestra."

The old man seemed satisfied at this, although he was not satisfied with his prosperity, or lack of it. It cost so much to live in America. One could live a year back in Milan for what it cost him a month here, although one lived better here.

Mr. Blanco was playing out in Youngstown with the concert orchestra when his son quit school and went to play in a cabaret orchestra.

Old Man Delighted

The mother wrote his father about it. The old man was delighted. The boy was earning good money—it was amazing, he was earning almost as much as his father! Such fools, these Americans, not to know the value of music by an artist, and by a young student!

However, the boy gave half of the money to his mother, and they needed it sorely.

But Giuseppe Blanco remained proud of his boy. Often to his friends in the concert tour orchestra he would say, "Well, I have a son, he is but 19 now, yet he plays mightily in a great orchestra. It is now on the roof of a great hotel he plays. Great people come there, like statesmen and such, to eat and to hear the music."

Giuseppe returned from his tour one evening. He got directions and went out alone. He was going to listen to his son's playing.

He found the place. He explained to one of the captains who was a fellow countryman. He was given a seat at a side table away down by the orchestra platform.

He saw young Giuseppe. He beamed with joy. His boy looked so handsome in his evening clothes, his violin at rest on his knees.

The leader gave a signal. They started to play.

It wasn't music!

It was a blare! A raucous blare!

So! His son, the son of Blanco, the great 'cellist, was just a fiddler for dancers.

This was a disgrace.

Blanco went home with a sorrowful heart.

It would have been better to have starved in Milan and made an artist of the boy. He waited for young Giuseppe to return.

The boy was glad to see him, but he had a hunch at once that the old man had been to hear him play. He knew it soon enough. His father raved.

"But, padre, it is the style—at all places they play like that—it is jazz!"

Argues With Father

"Jazz!"

"Jazz—it pays well. Padre, I earn now plenty and I shall earn more."

"Rather I would see you dead than making a mockery of music," the old man declared.

"Listen, Pop, speak English, we all do. Get wise, people want jazz and pay for it. I'm saving a little money and helping Ma and the girls. What difference does it make?"

"Jazz—I have heard of it—it is a disgrace; it is to music what sacrilege is to religion!"

"All right, Pop, stick to your piking concert tours and I'll be having my own orchestra soon and perhaps I'll be broadcasting. Think of that, over the radio, and the announcer saying, 'Mr. Joe White and his Famous Sibilant Syncopators.' That would be just too bad, what, Pop?"

"I am no Pop, like a bottle of beer; I'm your Padre," bellowed the old man, "and what do I care what this Joe White does; it's you I'm talking about!"

"That's me, Pop, Joe White; Guiseppe Blanco means Joe White!"

The old man tottered to the closet and poured a tall glass of wine. He waved his disgraced son away, and finally went to bed.

He seldom spoke to his son after this. He went again on a tour. In the midst of it he was taken sick and sent home. His son put him in a hospital. There was an operation and a long illness. The old man nearly died from fear that his family would starve. The boy called and assured him that he was taking care of them all right.

Mrs. Blanco went to the hospital to bring him home. He had been there more than six months.

"In time for our boy's wedding," she said.

"Who?" growled the old man.

"Rosa Ponzella, she sings in a theatre."

In a Handsome Room

The old man shuddered.

It was dark when they got him home. He didn't understand it. It had been a long ride. This wasn't the old apartment away up town. It was a great house in the country with stone lions at the gate and decorations like a nobleman's villa in the suburbs of Milan. They put him to bed in a handsome room. His good wife attended him. In the morning he was dressed and came out to a sunny big room with windows to the terrace and a grape arbor beyond. His oldest daughter, Vivia, turned on a radio.

"Listen," she said.

"Jazz! I should better be dead—"

"Hush, the name is 'Applesauce and Peppersauce.'" Joe wrote it six months ago, he composed three like this—they made records, they broadcast, two are used in shows. Joe cleaned up a fortune—he bought this house—he's got three orchestras—look—"

Vivia showed him clippings, pictures, all about the new Jazz King, Joe White.

Rosa Ponzella and Joe came. Rosa was beautiful. The old man granted that. There was a wedding at the church, there was a reception at the house with reporters and cameramen. Then there was just a family festival, with wine from Italy, and Rosa sang the old songs of home in her native tongue.

Joe played. He didn't play jazz, he played bits from old-time operas.

Old Giuseppe called Joe and his bride Rosa to him. He hugged them and kissed them.

"My children, I understand at last—with the head you make jazz to earn the fortune and buy this palace, but when it comes to this real music, this real singing and Giuseppe's playing, like a maestro, that comes from the heart. I didn't understand—America is a great country, I should have come here as a boy—play again that foolish crazy thing you composed, about the sauce of the apples with pepper—it is lively and jolly!

They played it. The old man, just to show them, did a few dance steps with his son's bride.

He drank much wine. His son put him to bed.

"This jazz, when you understand, it is pretty good thing," he murmured.

As the Twig Is Bent the Tree Inclines

The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of New York, an internationalist, attacks the Daughters of the American Revolution because of their declaration against foreign entanglements, made at their annual meeting in Washington last month.

This clergyman used for his attack the regular religious hour of a broadcasting company on Sunday, May 4. He said:

"I heartily approve Hoover's speech before the D. A. R. The United States should become a member of the World Court.

"The reactionary efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution will fail, and ought to fail. They are not typical of the actions of our intelligent citizenship. Let the D. A. R. leave statesmanship to the statesman."

Dr. Cadman urges the D. A. R. to leave statesmanship to statesmen and then proceeds to discuss the League Court. When did he become a statesman and what makes him think he is a good statesman?

Admittedly he is not a good clergyman, for a sincere divine would not use the religious hour on the radio to discuss politics. But a bad clergyman does not necessarily make a good statesman.

In fact a clergyman who takes advantage of a religious radio hour to launch an attack on patriotic American women is not only not a good statesman, but apparently not a good clergyman and obviously not a very high order of gentleman.

Let us compare the records of Dr. Cadman and the D. A. R. and see which is likely to be the more reliable guide in determining our foreign policies such as the question of the League of Nations.

1. Dr. Cadman was born in 1864 in Wellington, SHROPSHIRE, ENGLAND, and educated in LONDON. His turn of mind is indicated by the following incidents:

On Sunday, February 3, 1929, Dr. Cadman used the Sunday radio hour to oppose the building of the 15 cruisers authorized by Congress to make up part of the deficiency in our navy compared with the navy OF HIS NATIVE ENGLAND.

On September 1, 1929, he was preaching a sermon at Geneva to the assembled delegates of THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

On March 2, Dr. Cadman joined 1,200 other pacifists, internationalists and debt cancellationists in signing a telegram to the American delegation to the London Conference urging them TO SIGN A "CONSULTATION" OR "UNSECURITY" PACT to insure security for militaristic European nations at the expense of the United States.

That idea was promptly abandoned when the press and the Senate expressed their views on it.

On April 24, 1930, Dr. Cadman appeared as public endorser of a letter written to the Senate by Samuel Colcord, a publicity agent ,of 305 West One Hundred and Thirteenth street, New York City, who had been employed to try to convince senators that Mrs. McCormick's 210,000 victory over Senator Deneen WAS NOT A POPULAR MANDATE TO STAY OUT OF THE LEAGUE COURT.

Last Friday night Mrs. McCormick on the radio exposed the fallacies and falsities of the Colcord letter in such a way as to make it probably the most discredited document of the present year.

That is Dr. Cadman.

2. Now turn to D. A. R. It is to quote its charter:

"A society composed of women who are descendants of ancestors, any of whom with unfailing loyalty rendered material aid TO THE CAUSE OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE as a recognized patriot, as a soldier or sailor or civil officer in one of the several colonies or states."

The D. A. R. has a membership of 172,000. Since its origin it has given unwavering support to every measure safeguarding the Nation's defense and PROTECTING OUR SACRED NATIONAL INSTITUTIONS AND POLICIES.

The D. A. R. offense in the eyes of Dr. Cadman is that they insist now that America shall retain the independence their AMERICAN ancestors won from Dr. Cadman's BRITISH ancestors.

On April 16, at Washington, the D. A. R. adopted the following declaration:

"We must stand against involvement in European affairs and stand anew for AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

"In this time of unrest over the world, when work is being done to drag the United States into a tangle of European politics, by way of the League of Nations or by way of the World Court, or by way of a consultative pact, or by any means, little or big, slight or important, to get us involved in European diplomacy or in European offensive or defensive operations, it is healthy for us to look back to the days of our revolutionary fathers and mothers, when our flag was born.

"WE SHOULD PLEDGE OURSELVES ANEW TODAY TO THOSE PRINCIPLES AND PLEDGE OURSELVES ANEW TO THIS FLAG, NOW 150 YEARS OLD."

It would be a sad day for the American people if it did not prefer that ringing call to American patriotism instead of the internationalism of a Britisher misusing his position of clergyman to disseminate propaganda for a defenseless America.

We Would See Dirt Fly On Our Federal Building

There is hope that a conference to be held Monday in Washington will iron out many of the difficulties that have tended to delay beginning of constructing a new federal building, including postoffice, here. For 20 years a new postoffice for Pittsburgh has been projected. When a central site was acquired in place of one far out Liberty avenue, selected many years ago, all thought the building would be well under way by this time. Instead of which we do not even have a set of adequate plans.

That is what is hoped to be definitely settled in Washington Monday. We feel hopeful because Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, spoke most encouragingly after coming here to discuss the matter with local business men. Plans have had to be changed time and again possibly because government architects could not foresee all of the requirements. The matter of traffic appears to be the latest difficulty.

We are not discouraged by all the delay. We are patient. We know we'll get that building some time and we feel that it ought to be right after so much deliberation. But, is it too much to ask that after a general scheme has been agreed to by all concerned, the detailed plans will be expedited so we can see the dirt fly?

Hearing Treaty Testimony Necessary for Senators

Two classes of witnesses will appear before the two Senate committees which will hold hearings for the next fortnight upon the London naval treaty.

Both the American people and their senators and representatives in Congress should be careful to differentiate between the different points of view from which these two classes of witnesses will testify.

First will appear the witnesses for the administration. These will include the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson; the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Adams, and Senators Robinson and Reed, who went to London not as the representatives of the Senate but as the representatives of the President.

These administration witnesses went to London under the instructions of the President; they negotiated under his instructions and they signed under his instructions the treaty that they brought back. Throughout the London conference they relied upon the advise of the technical expert assigned to them by the President and this technical expert in the person of Admiral Pratt will follow them on the stand as another witness for the administration.

Next will come the witnesses for the American Navy. Preeminent among these will be Admiral Hilary P. Jones and Admiral Mark L. Bristol.

President Coolidge sent Admiral Jones, the president of the General Board, to the Geneva naval conference as a delegate and sustained him in every position he took there.

At London Admiral Jones was only an adviser and his advice was ignored by the delegation because the delegation under instructions from Washington abandoned the position which President Coolidge maintained at Geneva.

Admiral Bristol is now the President of the General Board of the Navy, whose advice the delegation at London also ignored under instructions from Washington.

Fortunately for the information of the Senate both Admiral Jones and Admiral Bristol are beyond the power of any administration to punish or reward. Admiral Jones retired for age some time ago and Admiral Bristol is full of honors and eligible for retirement whenever he wishes to leave the active list.

It is to be expected that the witnesses for the administration will urge the Senate to ratify the treaty that they brought back from London. They negotiated and signed that treaty. They will not at this late day repudiate their handiwork.

It is equally to be expected that the witnesses for the Navy will give the Senate committees before which they testify the truth about the treaty as they believe the truth to be, regardless of whether it pleases or displeases the administration.

Not until these two classes of witnesses have been heard, not until their testimony has been carefully weighed will the Senate be in a position to study the London naval treaty as it should be studied before it is finally disposed of.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The rate for thorium is slower, but the principle is the same. The one assumption made is that the radium clocks never change their rate of going; and physicists, after trying in vain to alter that rate by every conceivable means, are agreed that they never do.

There are various small mathematical corrections to be made, and various precautions to be taken in the practical procedure; but all such difficulties can be readily overcome. How they are overcome is clearly set forth in Professor Holmes' little book, "The Age of the Earth."

H. G. Wells

There, too, will be found an account of other methods of estimating geological time, as by the rate of erosion of the land, by the rate of deposition of new sediments, by the rate at which the sea, which is always receiving dissolved salts and always evaporating grows saltier, by timing geological processes against periods of known length, such as the precession of the equinoxes with its 21,000 years' cycle, and so forth. These all supply checks upon our radio-active estimates.

In addition there are one or two methods by which, at certain pages of the record of the past, we can get even an estimate in single years.

For example, trees form annual rings, and some of the big trees of California take us back several thousand years.

When ice sheets cover part of a country, the flood produced by each summer's melting lays down a layer of clayey deposit over the neighboring country; and Baron de Geer has shown, by counting these layers in Southern Sweden, that the retreat of the last ice sheet in Scandinavia took over 10,000 years. But these more detailed methods commonly apply only to the immediate past, and to periods of time that are but one or two ticks of geology's clock.

There is also a further method applicable to any period where marine shells were fossilized. It is based on the fact that many bivalve shells show annual growth rings like trees.

The annual growth rings are divided up into minor rings, each new addition to the shell being made after a feeding period.

These minor rings vary much in breadth, according to outer conditions, so that each annual growth ring bears its own individual stamp in the number and size of its separate feeding rings; and the same stamp will be impressed on all the shells in the same neighborhood.

By comparing a whole series of shells in the successive layers from one locality we can identify the separate years by the patterns they have left on the growth rings, and so count their succession.

This method has been as yet little worked out; but it should give valuable results whenever thick layers of one type have been laid down in one place, and contain the shells of bivalves.

Ultimately by such means as these we carry a surprisingly detailed calendar back for hundreds of thousands (and even millions) of years into the past from the present time.

And even for the remoter periods we are already approaching a sufficiency of knowledge whereby the margin of error can be narrowed down to 10,000,000 years or so, which on the geologist's scale of time is not a large figure—a matter of being out by about 5 or 10 per cent.

Such are the data upon which we base the figures we have inserted upon our diagram of geological formations. If the reader will turn back to that he will find one or two points of very great interest in relation to our curiosity about the future course and duration of evolution.

In the first place he will remark that there is a huge disproportion between the lengths of the great eras of geological time.

The age of mammals seems hardly to merit the name of era at all; it has only endured for about 50,000,000 years.

The age of reptiles lasted almost 130,000,000 years, while the Paleozoic droned on, without even a bird or mammal or flowering plant, for over 300,000,000.

That puts the date of the Early Cambrian back to 500,000,000. Below these lowest Cambrian rocks there is still a huge thickness of earlier rock deposits—at least 180,000 feet of them—in which, however, save in the uppermost 10,000 feet, no fossils have been found.

THE BUSY MARINES

neither soldiers nor sailors, do the work of both.

We are reducing our Navy to a size where it can maneuver in a duck pond. Our standing Army is so weak it has to sit down.

But the Marines, being

They are having a testimonial war down in Nicaragua. Marine aviators zoomed forth and dropped 50 high-pressure eggs on a picnic of bandits.

There is nobody in this war but bandits and Marines. A very even contest.

Nobody in Washington seems to know anything about this conflict. Mr. Hoover didn't declare battle on any foreign nation unless he sneaked it in as a rider on the farm debenture bill.

The War Department hasn't got any fresh or stale wars on its books. Nobody has issued 1930 Liberty Bonds and you can get married without being accused of seeking to evade the less hazardous career of a soldier.

The Senators are only at war in the Senate as usual. Yet, the papers carry daily items of Marines chasing bandits all over the Nicaraguan terrain.

If there is a war we wish Congress would let us know.

We would like to do some profiteering.

We missed a chance to get in some neat financial digs in 1917 by enlisting on that man's Army.

Marine flyers dropped many bombs on the Isthmus which is a weak neck of land, thereby making it a very tough golf course.

The bandits haven't got any planes and its cavalry has lost its roller skates. We don't like a war like this. It's too much like sniping at Phil Scott.

There was much consolidated agitation in 1918 to get our boys back from Europe. But a Marine can start a fight in the halls of Montezuma or on the shores of Tripoli and nobody even reverses a long distance telephone toll on him.

His business is fighting. And when he starts he doesn't know friend from foe. He wallops everybody he can reach and throws snowballs at the rest.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

The "Single Standards"—One hears a lot about it nowadays. Wild Oats for the girls as well as the boys?

"And why not, if the girls know what they're about and can pay their own way?"

A fine argument, my friend, but it won't work! Philosophize as you will, what's sauce for the gander isn't gravy for the goose. And Wild Oats do harm women more than they do men.

It's all a question of one's usefulness to society. Your Big Job—that's the important thing. Do Wild Oats mess up that Big Job—or don't they? That's the test.

They don't necessarily mess up a man's Big Job. Papas, apparently, were planned to be promiscuous. Mating was an incident but not man's main responsibility. Work was. Man's place in his tribe and his pride in himself depended on that work. Times have changed and so have papas. A little. Gentlemen have been taught to use wedding rings and cherish consequences. But the old order still holds. Reprehensible as it may seem, men can still love 'em and leave 'em without messing up their jobs.

But women can't! Women can't make light of love without messing up their jobs because love is their big job.

"But women aren't just wives and mothers any longer," somebody snorts. "They hold as many positions as men now and that changes everything!"

They do—and it doesn't!

It is true that women do hold positions, but love is still their big job—for out of it come their greatest contributions to society and themselves. These contributions aren't just children and homes. They are the priceless and fundamental things of the spirit. Tenderness and a peculiar wisdom are born in women when they love—as well as children—and a reckless, sacrificial courage—and a stability in which other lives may root.

These are the most valuable and beautiful things that can happen in a woman's life. They will happen in her life is she will keep faith with the law of love in her own body and spirit—if she will keep love rare and constant as it was meant to be for women—for the mothers of the race.

But if she does not keep faith—if she makes a sport of love and gives love no chance to ripen into any fruit—then she demoralizes the very plan of her being. And none of the things that come of real love can come from her wild oat sowing. Tenderness and courage cannot come, nor any stability in which other lives may root. And her outraged nerves and spirit will make her an unsatisfied, unnatural thing.

The woman who makes light of love makes light of herself.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 14.—A certain block on West Forty-seventh street is known to the inner circle of the Tenderloin as Malaria Lane. Hundreds of fancy ladies and highly manicured gentlemen live on the grift of Malaria Lane. The men are "mugs" who talk in whispers of the Baumes Law. And shudder.

Most of them have done their stretch up the river but continue to obey Neitzsche and live hard and dangerously. They manipulate the floating crap games, direct the Janes in badger games, distribute bouncing checks and even deal out decks of coke in hallways.

It is not until the sun blinks a blood-shot eye from back of Jersey hills that the grifters seep out for breakfast coffee. They fill chop houses and lay plans for another night — bootleggers, highjackers, hand bookies, confidence sharks, gigolos and petty racketeers.

Later they are joined by their glacial and kalsomined ladies distinguished by heavy perfume and flashy costume. Malaria Lane's attitude toward women is cynical. They are addressed in closely clipped sentences interpolated with sneers. And the ladies seem to love it.

With no attempt at secrecy, the ladies pay restaurant checks or slip a sheaf of bills under the table for "walking around money." They drink gin straight, punctuate conversation with frequent "Migawds!" and burn up cigaret after cigaret with deep, quick inhalations.

The big shot of the mob was the late Arnold Rothstein. He typified the engaging man of mystery who pulled the strings of the half world—a tight-lipped gambler who could sit unblinking at $10,000 losses over a turn of the card. He died with his shoes on, as Malaria Lane inelegantly says "Shot through the guts."

After dark the grifters gather on the steps of a church midway the block. Here they await the tip-off men who bring news of the dice and card games and where they will be held for the night. There is no crime along Malaria Lane save honest labor.

The Duke of Manchester is becoming an increasingly well known figure in night life. When in town, he may be seen at an alley theater in the Village or the center of a gay group in a dollar-for-dives Park avenue cafe. He is known by his London nick-name of Kim—not after Kipling's Kim but because the heir of the Manchester Dukedom is the Marquis of Kimbolton.
